Oak Hall Overcoats

Only two business days till Christmas - and two business nights. More people are buying clothing --- for themselves and for gifts -- than this time last year. Or is this store getting more than its share of the business? No ; we'd get a good deal more if folks were more careful of appearance and of their money. Our prices are $5 to $20.

Holiday Styles in Boys' Fine Clothing Every parent is anxious to have his boy look as manly as the next one. It takes our kind of clothing to get this effect, and it costs no more than the ordinary kind. That's the beau ty of it.

Our Furnishing Department is overflowing with goods suitable for Christmas Presents for men and boys. Our Neckwear Display-as usual-is largest and finest in town. We delayed our purchasing so as to give you the very latest.

Corbett and among other buildings erected by him was the No. 5 fire station. He was well known and leaves a wife and two children. The funeral will take place on Tues-day afternoon at two o'clock. The sailors at the Scamen's Mission will be given their annual Christmas dinner, at one o'clock Christmas day. Already a goodly number of turkeys have been kindly donated, which, with a few more, would supply the demand. As a Christmas dinner would not be complete without the usual plum pud-ding and mincé ple, the society would be most grateful for a supply of these. BRITAIN'S SHIPPING INDUSTRY. DELAYS ON THE RAILWAYS.

DELAYS ON THE RALLWAYS. There has been a lot of complaint lately about non-delivery or very slow delivery of flour by the railways from western points. An instance told to the Star today is very much to the point. Two cars of flour were ordered from an Ontario point on the Grand Trunk on Nov. 30th. On Dec. 10th they had got as far as Lennoxville, and were handed over to the C. P. R. They have not yet reached St. John, nor can any trace of them be found. As the flour was needed to fill orders, the delay is a serious matter, for the interested firm. Delays of this sort are very injurious to the trade of the port.

It Has Taken Nearly Four Years to Trace It. (Harper's Weekly. Dr. George Davidson, of the Univer-sity of California, has been wondering for four years past how Cape Nome got its name. Geography is his special field, and it is his professional concern to know there wherefore or geograph-ical names. But "Nome" beat him. He set to work to trace it back to its or-igin, and the earliest appearance he could find for it was in a British Ad-miralty chart of 1853. That led him 'o surmise that the cape was named by officers of the English frigates Herald and "Plover- during an expedition in search of Sir John Franklin. So he wrote to the Admirely office in Lon-don to inquire if there were any "Nomes" on the list of men who sail-ed in those vessels. The reply, recently communicated by Dr. Davidson to the "National Geo-graphic Magazine," was that when the chart in question was first made, aboard the Herald, attention was called to this point by the mark (? Name). The chart was sent home in a hurry, and the draughtsman who inked it made the mark read "C. Name." But he did not make his "a" distinctly, and the admirality hydrographer made it "C. Nome." And so Cape Nome the point has been ever since, and is likely to remain so until it gets rich enough to support a board of aldermen. Then its name will be changed, for that is one of the mischiefs that aldermen can be trusted to do. be trusted to do.
