A large and representative audience awaited Dr. Pugsley at Alexandra Temple Hall, North End, where he spoke first, and his arrival at 8 o'clock was the signal for an enthusiastic ovation. Heary Hilyard presided.

Dr. Pugsley in a stirring speech asked for the support of the electors. He asked them to look at his past and to consider his services to his constituency while a member of the provincial house.

He referred to the case in which

He referred to the case in which claims amounting to over $300,000 had been collected by the provincial government from the Dominion government, an achievement which, he did not hesitate to say, was due principally to the determined efforts of himself and his collected. They had labored and his colleagues. They had labored also to have the Dominion subsidies eadjusted, and by perseverance this matter had also been brought to a successful issue, and as a result the provincial government will be $130,000 richer during the current year. He was leaving the provincial government in better condition financially than any other province in the Dominion. other province in the Dominion.

Dr. Pugsley, continuing, said that Geo.
W. Fowler had been quoted as saying that the Conservatives should have a candidate and that he (Mr. Fowler) hoped the people of St. John would not be bribed by a portfolio. He knew that the electors of St. John would resent this insinuation.

pleasure because it is in the hands of a statesman who has done more and who will do more for the country than Sir John ever dreamed of."

Dr. Pugsley went on to say that he had noticed in the press that a short time ago in the Opera House a certain gentleman from Kings had said he hoped the city of St. John was not to be bribed with a portfolio. Did that man think that a constituency containing one-sixth of New Brunswick's population should not be represented in the cabinet? (Applause.)

Thanking those present for attending in so large numbers, Dr. Pugsley took his seat amid cheers.

George Robertson, M. P. P. George Robertson, M. P. P., responded to calls and spoke briefly. He appealed for united action in the coming campaign. There was a saying that those were most successful in war who prepared in time of peace, and the saying was true. It would be well for every effort to be directed toward earnest to him in that very hall. It had required him to resign the position of premier of the province and to run for the House of Commons, and he had consented to the requisition. At the time of his acceptance the electors had had no doubt and he had had no doubt concerning the possibility of his entering the House of Commons. He, however, had had no idea that he would again stand in that hall holding a portfolio of considerable importance. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had seen fit to appoint him Minister of Public Works entirely without his seeking the position.

Thanks Conservatives.

"I do not wish to introduce a subject of a controversial nature, but I must say that I feel grateful for the good spirit that the Conservatives have shown in not opposing me," said Dr. Pugsley. "I do not think that it will be a disadvantage to St. John that I should be elected." (Applause).

He went on to speak of the great advances that Canadian trade have made under Liberal rule, making numerous quotations to support his statements.

"A few days ago the Conservative leader speaking on a certain platform in the Dominion, had said that Sir John A. Macdonald's spirit still governed Canada.
