Every Bottle Warranted

Every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is guaranteed, and the dealer from whom it is purchased will refund the money to anyone who is not satisfied after using it.

The many remarkable cures of colds and grip effected by this preparation have made it famous over a large part of the civilized world. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. It not only cures colds and grip, but counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia.

This remedy is also a certain cure for croup, and has never been known to fail. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack.

Whooping cough is not dangerous when the cough is kept loose and expectoration free by the use of this remedy.

It contains no opium or other harmful substance, and it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

GALICIANS WILL SOON TAKE PART IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Growing More Independent Politically — American Invasion

EDMONTON, Alta., May 7.—Among the numerous peoples who make up the population of the West an unmistakably important part is that taken by the Galicians. A large colony of them is growing up in the Edmonton country, and a number are among the business and laboring classes of the city as well. That we are to have more of them is evidenced by the fact that recent immigrant arrivals at Winnipeg have included a large portion of Galicians, whose purpose it is to work during the summer on Grand Trunk Pacific construction.

The Galicians have proved thus far a useful class. It can hardly be said that they are entirely desirable citizens, for they are not only imbued with domestic habits and ideals that are distinctly not Canadian, but they are of unbecomingly temperamental, still undeveloped in the principles of practical citizenship and independence, being subject largely to the men who pose as their local leaders. Nevertheless, they are sturdy workers, industrious, and thrifty, and will assuredly play a large part in the building of the West. They are, so far as industrial worth goes, a more desirable class of settlers than the Doukhobors.

GROWING MORE INDEPENDENT. The day is coming, too, when the Galicians will be a political factor to reckon with. Of late, there has arisen among them a feeling of independence, and some of the men best fitted to be leaders have been thinking of themselves. The result of this is a resentment against any attempt at political coercion, easily to be perceived as election time draws near again, the Galician vote will be found less pliable than heretofore. A sign of a change is also afforded by a project now under way to establish an independent Galician newspaper in Edmonton, of which Gonda, a local Galician, who has made some reputation as a poet and who for several years has served as bookkeeper for an Edmonton business firm, is to be editor.

The educational development of the Galicians has proved to be something of a problem. School work among these people have centered chiefly in Winnipeg, the Manitoba provincial Russian school at Brandon having been opened only a few months ago. At about the same time a school was opened in Edmonton of the Synod of Alberta, the question of conducting this work on different lines was discussed at length. Involved with it is the larger question of religious affiliations of the Galicians who throughout the whole west are now hesitating between the orthodox Greek church and the formation of an independent Protestant body, or the continuation of their orthodox connections and the probable drawing into closer union with the Catholics. It is evident enough with the church, that the Galicians of western Canada are beginning to feel their own powers.

MANY SETTLERS FROM STATES. Another notable feature of this season's immigration is the coming in of a much larger number than usual of intending settlers from the Western States. This applies indeed, to all of the West as well as to the Edmonton district and from Winnipeg west the immigration and publicity offices are receiving large numbers of enquiries from men who want to know about the Canadian west. Several advance parties have already come to Edmonton, and the country north and west of here will be a favorite objective point. It is noteworthy too, that the inquiries this year indicate a somewhat different intention on the part of the American farmers who are now looking for homestead lands instead of buying as has hitherto been largely the case. This is no doubt partly due to the money stringency and does not necessarily indicate that a poorer class of men are coming. A different class of homestead land is also being taken on just now as instead of following the lines of existing railroads, applicants are now looking for land in the new country which is to be opened up by the new transcontinental and branch lines of the Canadian Pacific. It has been said during the past year or two that the homestead lands of the west had been nearly all taken up, but the opening of new country to the west has furnished another large area of territory for incoming settlers, and the land offices still have enough to do in the allotment of homesteads and the placing of settlers.

WAY TO AVOID HARD TIMES. At the present time the farmers known in the Western States as "renters," which is to say men who rent farms instead of owning them, are putting in their crops, but as soon as this is done they are likely to be driven north to look over the land in the Canadian West. Many of these will, while here, make a domestic farm of their own which costs him nothing, and will then go back to their rented farms and prepare to come across the line when they have gathered their crops in the fall. Thus the money stringency will not materially affect this phase of the American immigration movement, for whereas a owner might have great difficulty at the present time in selling his farm, a renter can easily leave it and go to a farm of his own which costs him nothing. During the month of May there will be a considerable movement of landseekers from the Western States, some of whom will come to Central Alberta, and choose permanent homes hereabouts.

NO FEAR OF AMERICANIZATION. Very little is heard nowadays about the dangers of an American invasion. It was ever a fanciful bugbear, but both last year and this the influx of American farmers has been very well balanced by British arrivals and others. The number of Englishmen in and around Edmonton has now become very considerable and some of them, it must be admitted, are not of the type that the West looks to to build it up. The Dominion-wide discussion as to the comparative merits of the Englishman and the heathen-man has figured here as elsewhere, and the honors have been divided. The normal type of Britisher who comes to Alberta is, however, a good fellow and will not suffer in any way by comparison with the man from the States.

REFUSED ADMITTANCE TO TWENTY NEGROES. LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, May 7.—Canadian Immigration Agent Humphrey refused admittance at Coult, on the American boundary line, to twenty negroes coming with Corry Bros., grading outfit, which is going to do irrigation work at Calgary.

Angel's Fad.

By ANNA MUNSON.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.)

Michael Angelo Moultrie was his name, and the diminutive of "Angel," bestowed upon him by a doting mother, was well applied. At least this was the opinion of other tenants in the big Burlington apartment house.

Angel was eight years old, but he scarcely looked six, with his long golden curls and ethereal beauty. In his velvet suits he suggested some child of the Little Lord Fauntleroy period held over into an age of Buster Browns.

Mrs. Moultrie was possessed of a theory that as the child is named so the tastes incline, and he had set her heart upon his being a painter.

Angel was quick to perceive his popularity, and with unerring instinct he found his way to those apartments where candy and cake were to be had. He seemed to know when callers with offerings of candy had visited the different young women, and his own calls were scheduled for the following day.

His one exception was Nannie Dimmick. Nannie seldom entertained callers of the sort Angel most approved. No five-pound boxes of sweets lay upon her table, and no great masses of flowers scented the room. Yet Angel liked best to visit at the Dimmicks apartment, for there was a certain tenderness in Nannie Dimmick's manner of which Angel approved much.

"She always looks like she's going to cry," he had told his mother in an endeavor to discuss the girl's peculiar charm. "She looks like she's going to cry—but she doesn't; she just holds you tight in her arms and you feel glad and sorry all at once."

Clearly this blending of emotions appealed to Angel, for he was a regular visitor to the Dimmick apartment, and the girl found odd comfort in his prattle.

Nannie sorely needed comfort, for the look of sadness in her eyes deepened as the weeks sped by with no word from Arthur Ryder. When he had come to her with his face aflame with happiness to tell her that he had found his chance at last; that the firm had decided to send him on a tour of the African and Asiatic countries to introduce their wares, it had seemed that fate, with kindly hands, had saved him from their path.

"It will be the making of me," Arthur had explained. "I start at Cape Town and work up the east coast of Africa, then cross to Asia and so up to China. It will take about eighteen months, but, if I make a success I shall be taken into the firm and we can be married, dear."

Mrs. Dimmick had refused to listen to an engagement of this kind. Time enough for that when Arthur came back, she had told them. An engagement of a year and a half would be worse than useless.

It would deprive Nannie of many pleasures, and no formal engagement was really necessary. If they both were of the same mind when Arthur should return there would be no opposition to a short engagement and an early marriage.

So and Arthur had gone on his long journey with glasses in his heart, for Nannie had assured him that it did not need the formality of ring and announcement to ratify the promissories of her heart.

First had come glowing letters from London and from Cape Town, letters that Nannie had read with a heart that blank silence. For more than a year not a letter in the familiar handwriting had been received from the West.

With trembling hands Nannie opened the blue and white envelope and drew out the slip. Her expression changed as she read.

"It is from Arthur," she said quietly. "He is sailing from Japan."

"Much good may it do him," was the unsympathetic reply. "This is a nice time to hear from him. It's more than a year since he stopped writing. I suppose that you will let him give you some dinky excuse and be as crazy about him as ever."

number of purveyors of candy. His face took on an expression of surprise as the operator returned an answer, that Miss Dimmick was not at home.

"She was there a little while ago," insisted Angel, selfishly interested in the stranger's success.

The operator flashed an angry glance at him which caused Angel to subside, and the stranger left the lobby with an air of dejection far different from the springy step with which he had entered.

The next day he came again and asked that a note be sent upstairs. He waited for the answer and read it before he turned to leave. Angel followed him to the street.

"I say," he began, "are you the fellow Miss Nannie used to like?"

"Why?" asked Ryder, parrying question with question.

"Because she's sore on you because you didn't write," continued Angel. "Are you the fellow?"

"On the level I didn't mean to do nothing, but—I took the letters for my collection."

"You are collecting letters?" asked Ryder, hardly comprehending the confession.

"Stamps," exclaimed the Angel. "They were bulky stamps. I didn't suppose Miss Nannie would care. Ma sets lots of letters that she throws into the fire without reading, so I took the ones with the funny stamps. I guess that's why she looks like she always wants to cry. I didn't think of it that way until the other day. Then I waited until I saw whether you made it up."

Ryder's face grew black as at last he realized what the boy was saying, but Angel's eyes were again his salvation and the scowl vanished.

"Go up and tell Miss Dimmick what you have told me," commanded Ryder. "Tell her that I received no replies. Tell her that I have been half frantic. Have you the letters that you are now?"

"Burned 'em," exclaimed Angel, "that is, all except the stamps. They had no business leaving the mail out on the table where any one could swipe 'em. The elevator boy got most of the picture cards, I don't collect postcards."

He added virtuously, as though this were some extenuation of his fault.

Ryder paced the sidewalk while Angel went to make his confession. It was a long quarter hour, but at last Angel's face was white and scared, appeared on the steps.

"I fixed it for you," he announced, "but Mrs. Dimmick heard what I said, and I bet I got the licking of my life." And he sat down on the steps while yet he could sit, to ponder on the fatal fascinations of a fad.

Kokomo Woman Gives Fortune To Help Women Who Suffer

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $25,000.00 in giving medical treatment to afflicted women. Some time ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or piles.

More than a million women have accepted this generous offer, and as Mrs. Miller is still receiving requests for medical treatment to afflicted women. Some time ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or piles.

This is the simple, mild and harmless preparation that has cured so many women of the privacy of their own homes after doctors and other remedies failed.

It is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhea or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacements or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause, or no matter of how long standing.

Every woman sufferer, unable to find relief, who writes Mrs. Miller now, without delay, will receive by mail free of charge, a 50-cent box of this simple home remedy, also a book with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they can easily cure themselves at home without the aid of a physician.

Don't suffer another day, but write at once to Mrs. Cora B. Miller, 6363 Miller Building, Kokomo, Indiana.
