FRENCH CABINET FALLS FOLLOWING DRAMATIC SCENE IN CHAMBER

PARIS, July 20.—The Clemenceau cabinet fell suddenly tonight under dramatic circumstances at the conclusion of a violent debate over naval armaments, extending over several days. M. Delcasse, chairman of the investigating commission, led the attack upon the naval administration, especially during the incumbency of M. Fleury and M. Thomson, former ministers of marine. But M. Picard, who succeeded M. Thomson, had promised in the name of the government a complete series of reforms, both in the administration of the department and the methods of construction and the chamber was ready to vote confidence in the government, when an incident occurred which changed a majority into a minority.

Taunted Delcasse

Premier Clemenceau, who always has been an adversary of M. Delcasse, smarting under the criticism and doubtless over-confident of a majority, which on July 15, upon the general policies of the government was 186. He taunted the ex-minister of foreign affairs, who was thrown overboard by the Rouvier ministry at the dictation of Germany during the crisis of 1905, with having led France to humiliation at Algeiras. The spectre of that chapter of France's foreign history, in which Delcasse was sacrificed, was a fatal error. Instantly there was an uproar of dissent from both sides of the chamber. Delcasse flung back the taunt in Clemenceau's face with bitter words, declaring amid cheers that France had gone to Algeiras in the interest of peace. Hot words were bandied back and forth. It was a veritable duel between the enemies. M. Delcasse intimated that Clemenceau had inspired articles in the foreign press during the crisis, but the latter emphatically denied this imputation. The premier seemed for the first time in his parliamentary career to lose his head.

The scene when the premier took his seat was indescribable. Amid the wildest excitement the vote was taken and when it was announced that the government had been beaten, 212 to 176, Clemenceau clapped his hat on his head, pulling it far down over his eyes and stalked out of the chamber, followed by the other ministers, in token that he intended to resign. M. Clemenceau went immediately to the Elysee Palace and told the story to President Fallieres, who seemed stupefied at the incident which caused the fall of the cabinet, but he accepted the resignation of the premier and his ministers.

Paris Astonished

There is but one opinion in Paris tonight—astonishment that an old parliamentary war-horse like Clemenceau should have committed political suicide by his awkwardness by recalling the Algeiras spectre upon the eve of adjournment when the government was assured of a majority on the naval question. The premier's action drove about fifty members of the Republican "block" into a combination with the right and extreme left, unhorsing the man whose ministry has been the longest in the history of the third republic and who for three years has been absolute master in France.

Many times during his ministry M. Clemenceau apparently was on the eve of defeat, as many strong combinations, especially by the members of the income tax, were forced to accomplish his downfall and often there was much secret opposition in the ranks of the majority.

Teething children have more or less diarrhoea, which can be controlled by giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. All that is necessary is to give the prescribed dose after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Wall Street—The opening dealings in stocks carried prices upward, the majority of gains showing small fractions. American Car and General Electric rose 1/2, and Reading, Norfolk and Western, 5/8. The dealings were quite active.

EVELYN TELLS TALE OF LOVES TO BE AVENGED ON THAWS

Pictures Harry as a Brute; White as Chivalrous—Slayer's Wife Admits New Passion and a Possible Marriage—Can't Get More Money.

NEW YORK, July 20.—It is evident that Evelyn Thaw realizes that what she will get out of the Thaw family in the future will be mighty skimpy. Having come to this understanding with herself, the former art model, chorus girl and spot-light figure in New York life is giving her tongue plenty of action.

For at least a year attorneys for the Thaw family and for Evelyn have contended over the allowance which should be made to the young wife. Neither side cared to force the issue to a trial in open court, but each tried to bluff the other into thinking that the demands must be granted to prevent an appeal to court.

Evidently Mrs. William Thaw's attorneys have won and Evelyn will receive only her allowance of $70 a week. Hence the remarkable interview of yesterday.

PICTURES THE REAL EVELYN. She talked as only Evelyn Thaw could talk, in an irresponsible way, tearing to pieces by her own confession what little footing she held on the platform of respectability, driving the dart into the side of Harry Thaw, announcing her love for Stanford White, whom Harry Thaw killed, and admitting that just now she has met up with a new man associate and frankly declaring that she is not at all straight-laced in her views of life.

She paints a new picture of Evelyn Thaw which is likely to shock her many sympathizers who read through the Thaw trial all about the suffering of a pure, unadorned girl. Most of these sympathizers live in the rural districts and do not linger long on Upper Broadway.

Here is the whole story as Evelyn told it yesterday:

"I have been quoted so many times by women writers of mawkish sentimentality with reams of sobbing words at the ends of their pencils that I rejoice at being able to tell this story which, at last, is ready to be told with the understanding it will be put in any kind of language that is not my own.

"I laugh and play and cut up the highest kind of jinks in spite of all I've gone through. I'm still a very young woman. I'm an optimist by disposition. I don't talk the way I am quoted in newspapers. I am just as forlorn a person as these wonderful interviews would make me out.

"I have no desire to pose as an example for young American women to follow. I want no one to have illusions as to what I am. But I am just anxious to end for all time the ridiculous nonsense that is being spread abroad as portraying me. I had not two things thoroughly understood.

"The first one is that I have never committed any crime. I am a young woman whose unfortunate upbringing has ended in my being connected with a sordid murder in which I had no part and which I tried for three years to prevent.

"During my married life with Thaw I lived at home as quietly and with as much regard for the conventions as any woman ever had.

"I may marry again. It is all a question in my mind as to the advisability of giving up a career. I have mapped out for myself or of settling down to rear children in the fashion of a good housewife and mother.

"If you will have the truth, I am distinctly unmoral, as the world today views morals. I have my own code of ethics, and I live up to them. But from present-day ideals I am unmoral. There is no question of it."

And here Mrs. Thaw made it known for the first time that there is a man of whom she thinks more than of any one else in the world. She would not tell his name.

"But I am not a bad woman," she went on, "in the sense that I spoke of bad women in that first trial. It is I make up my mind to marry the man I love. I shall do it and the world will hunt in vain for a chance to accuse me of indiscretions.

"If, on the other hand, I reach the conclusion that my art means more to me than the raising of children; if I decide it is not right for me to become a mother and stigmatize children with the curse brought upon my name, I shall tell the man I love, as I have already told him I should, that I cannot marry him.

"That is that our marriage would be a thing to hurt us both later.

MIGHT ABANDON HER NEW LOVE

"And I shall have no hesitancy under those circumstances of giving him all the love any wife could give any husband. But always, that way, I shall reserve to myself the right to devote myself to my art, and there will be no bond holding me to him.

White and left unconscious. I also said I recovered from the ill effects of that drug in less than three hours; dressed and went home as usual. As that time I knew as well as any one else that every one doubted the truth of the statement.

"But I wasn't untrue, and what is more, District Attorney Jerome has told me since that he has discovered what he believed was impossible, that there is not only one drug but three drugs that can do this.

SHE LOVED STANFORD WHITE.

"It is not true that I hated Stanford White then or at any time. He was my mother and hisger best friend and more considerate of all women than any man one meets in the course of events that his unhappy attitude toward women and girls is a fault to be minimized in summing up his whole life's career.

"Thaw stole me away from White, just the same as men in the Stone Age stole women, if folk lore says such things happened, and I understand that is the way the old tales go.

"For more than a year before that Christmas night in 1903 I had seen White only occasionally. But he was my protector, my patron, if you will, and I loved him more than I ever had any man or woman in my life, my mother and father not excepted.

"He was giving me a birthday party the very night Thaw appeared with a revolver in my dressing room and told me he would kill White before he would allow him ever to take me away from him. There was nothing for me to do under the circumstances but go with Thaw. I hardly knew him. I did not like him. It was simply a case of go or be killed.

"That was the nature of the beginning of my love affair.

"Before I begin the story of my life with Thaw, though, I must tell just what happened about Jack Barrymore. He was a dear, sweet, whole-souled fellow, and the first man anywhere near my own age I had ever known since I began to understand the way of the world. But Stanford White opposed the idea as hard as he could. He got my mother to side with him, and when they finished darning poor old Jack they had said many terrible things.

"After Thaw took me away from Stanford White, after I found myself entirely dependent on Thaw's beneficence in newspapers, I did not respect for me.

"Never once in all the years that I have lived with him, did I find him right, when he took me out of the dressing room in the garden theater, and Thaw said to me: 'You are a very different type of man who wants to deck me out in beautiful gowns and jewels and have me sit on a balcony and I said: 'That B. G. has been here and has gone.' B. G. stood for blackguard, you know.

"I had never come to New York I should have settled down in Pittsburg and made some shoe clerk and had beautiful children and been peacefully happy. I am naturally do as I please to dust my own room and insist on being treated like a real invalid for a month afterward.

"Also I want to be fair enough to Thaw. He has allowed me to use a penny of the letter of credit for $200 that Stanford White had given me before I met Thaw. It was the only unjust thing Jerome did in that first trial, trying to make out Thaw let me spend any of that money. He took the money order up. And he took every little piece of jewelry that any man had ever given me and threw that into the ocean on the way over.

STINGY, NOT BRUTAL

"The story that he beat me in the stomach in Germany, that Mr. Jerome tried to make me admit when he sprang the Abe Hummel affidavit in the first trial, was also absolutely untrue. Except that he was absolutely stingy with me at all times, Thaw never abused me in all the time we were together before our marriage.

"In Paris he refused to allow me to go to see any of the things all Americans take in. He said if I hadn't seen them it wouldn't hurt me any to miss them. He took me to just two places—the Cafe de Paris and the Rat Mort, and those who know say that they are Sunday schools compared with what may be seen in Paris. I do not say this in a complaining spirit. I want to be fair to Thaw. I honestly believe it was because he wanted to keep me from all such things.

"Getting back to New York, let me

Go Where You Will; Look Where You Will

The fact remains that you will not find at any other store such values for your money in MEN'S and BOYS' SUMMER CLOTHING and FURNISHINGS as you can get at Oak Hall

There's never any wobbling at Oak Hall when the time comes to cut prices. Our mid-summer clearance sale started last Thursday. It's a sale of clothing fully up to the mark in fabric, style and color. In many cases the difference between the original price and the revised price is quite large. You'll notice we're paying big toll to get clear counters.

There's good reason for it. We know that the true starting point for a great business next season is to sell the present fine line of serviceable clothing now. Carrying stock to another season is an old-fashioned method. We won't do it.

PICNICKERS HAVE ROLLICKING TIME

Two Enjoyable Outings Yesterday

St. Luke's Church at Watters' Landing and St. James' at Westfield

The steamer May Queen, which was chartered for the occasion, carried hundreds of picnickers to Watters' Landing yesterday to attend St. Luke's annual Sunday school picnic. Many others enjoyed the trip in J. H. F. weather's motor boat, which also conveyed the belated ones to the picnic grounds.

Land and water sports formed part of the day's amusement, and many close contests were witnessed. Great interest was taken in the four-oared races for ladies and men.

In the ladies' race the finish was so close that the judges found it hard to decide a winner, but in the men's four-oared the St. Clements crew maintained a good lead over St. Luke's oarsmen. While St. Luke's held the cup last year it will adorn the room of St. Clement's for the next twelve months.

Refreshments were served during the day by a committee of ladies in charge assisted by several of the Sunday school teachers.

Rev. Mr. McKim presented prizes to the winners of the various events. The weather proved ideal and the day's outing was enjoyed by all.

At Westfield Beach yesterday the Sunday school of St. James' (Episcopal) church held the most successful picnic in the history of that church. Crowds left at 9.25 a. m. and 1.10 p. m. Upon reaching the grounds luncheon was served by the ladies in charge.

During the afternoon a series of sports, including five events for the girls and ladies and five for the boys and men, were pulled off.

Among the parishioners who donated prizes for these events were Kendall Hall, A. H. Ellis, Catherine Lee, R. J. Dabber and the rector of the parish. The following schedule gives the events and winners in detail:
