Bloodhounds on Trail of Outlawed Allens, Hidden a Month in Mountain Wilds

Hungry and footsore, two leaders of the Allen gang, which shot up Judge Massie's court at Hillsville, Va., about a month ago, are still hidden in the mountain wilds. But detectives and bloodhounds continue the pursuit indefatigably. The upper picture shows a search at the home of one of the Allens. Below are three children of Sidna Allen, one of the outlaws, who never expect to see their father alive. Inset is a photograph of Topsy, one of the bloodhounds on the trail, who also participated in the Beattie case.

BOY SCOUTS GAVE GOOD EXHIBITION

Demonstration of Scout Work in Opera House, Saturday, Proved Delightfully Entertaining to the Audiences.

To the casual observer whose conception of the boy scout is intimately associated with that of the emmy-fisted, undisciplined street urchin, the second annual tournament held in the Opera House, Saturday afternoon and evening, must have provided a few surprises. Although the attendance was not as large as had been hoped, those who were present received full value for their entrance fee, and were privileged to witness an entertainment of exceptional merit. From the opening chorus, O Canada, rendered by all the troops, to the closing camp fire scene by the St. Matthew's corps, the boys showed efficiency; the result of careful training which could not but have been appreciated by the audience. All the boys were garbed in the conventional scout uniform, and their khaki figures moving in unison, presented a most attractive spectacle. Perhaps the feature of the tournament, was the demonstration of first aid methods, by the St. Paul's troop, wherein the boys demonstrated their ability to administer preliminary remedial measures in case of accident. The German street troop followed in a bridge building act and the Centenary scouts appeared in a signalling demonstration, after which the Y. M. C. A. presented a farcical sketch entitled Family Troubles. After the intermission, an exhibition of fancy marching and self-defence was given by Stone church troop, the Trinity troop were seen in the physical drill, and the performance concluded with a camp fire scene by the St. Matthew's scouts.

FAMILY STRICKEN BY IROQUOIS FIRE ALSO PERILED ON TITANIC

MRS. L. A. HIPPOCH, SON AND DAUGHTER. All the terrible fear that he had lost wife and daughter on the Titanic overwhelmed L. A. Hippach, a wealthy Chicago man, who only a few years ago went through the horrible experience of losing two beautiful daughters in the Iroquois fire. Mrs. Hippach, long prostrated by the fiery death of her daughters, had finally gone to Europe to recuperate and was returning home with the remaining daughter, Jean, on the Titanic. At first it was believed both were lost. Then appeared the daughter's name among the survivors, but not the mother's. But later Mrs. Hippach's name was also sent by wireless as among the rescued. The son and father went to meet them in New York.

MONCTON EDITOR AS PLATFORM SPEAKER

John T. Hawke Delivered Two Addresses in City Yesterday—The Church and Social Unrest His Theme.

"It is time for the church to wake up, and lead the movement which is the offspring of the spirit of social unrest," said John T. Hawke, the well-known journalist and lecturer of Moncton, in the course of an able address delivered in the Portland street church before a meeting of the Y. M. A., yesterday afternoon. Men are not content with present conditions. The social unrest grows more pronounced; it cannot be ignored. The workers demand a change. The question is: Shall the socialists be left to lead the movement, or shall the church wake up, realize its duty to tolling humanity suffering from the injustices of our social system, direct the movement of labor in right channels, and pave the way for the regeneration and amelioration of the condition of the masses of the people. The church's mission is plain; it must develop a democratic programme adapted to modern conditions and help men to solve the social problems confronting them. Mr. Hawke's subject was the relation of Christianity to social unrest, and his treatment of this theme evidently impressed his audience. He pointed out the important parts played by men inspired by the teachings of Christ, in abolishing slavery in the Roman empire, and in the evolution of democracy in Great Britain and other countries. He told how the church under feudalism protected the masses from the oppression of the barons; and pointed out that distinguished churchmen had led the movement which forced King John to sign the Magna Charta. He referred to the part played by the priests in organizing the agricultural uprising under Watt Tyler, referred to the religious spirit animating the uprising against the oppression of the Stuarts, told how John Wesley had saved England from revolution, and how Joseph Arch, a lay preacher, had organized and greatly improved the position of the agricultural laborers of England in the last century. The speaker quoted Thorold Rogers to show that no movement for the uplift of the masses had succeeded unless it was inspired by the teachings of Christ, but went on to say that while the church had given leaders and done much good in social and political crises, it had not done as much good as it ought to. He thought that instead of holding aloof should teach people to live good lives, because it was good for them on this earth. He scored the churches of St. John for permitting the liquor traffic to flourish here and send liquor all over the province. Mr. Powers presided, and Ald. Hayes and Lingley moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer.

RAPS THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN ST. JOHN

John T. Hawke Says Business Here Destroys Force of Prohibition in Moncton and Elsewhere.

There was a large attendance at the Every Day Club last night. John T. Hawke, of Moncton; Rev. W. W. Brewer and Rev. H. D. Marr occupied seats on the platform. During the evening there was a solo by Miss Hill, and a duet by the Misses McCuskey and Smith. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Hawke who gave an eloquent address on total abstinence. In the course of his remarks he censured the Christian people of St. John for permitting the liquor traffic to exist in this city, because, he said, that it enables dealers to ship liquor to Moncton and other places in the province where they are trying to get along without it. In the interest of the province St. John should adopt prohibition. He made a strong appeal to the young men present at the meeting to be total abstinents and to take an active interest in everything tending to repress the communis-
