

THAW'S CASE HOPELESS, SO FAR AS LEGAL INVESTIGATION CONCERNED, SHERBROOKE

Continued From Page One. "No, I don't know whether the years of quiet and rest in Mattawan have assisted in improving his mental and physical condition. I couldn't say what factors have entered into this."

O'Mara at Sherbrooke. The Canadian Press was informed this evening that Roger O'Mara, the famous Pittsburg detective, who has been connected with the Thaw case ever since the death of Stinson White and who is head of a well known detective agency in Pittsburg, will be in the city tomorrow as official representative of the Thaw's in consulting with counsel. Mrs. Thaw, it is admitted, may also arrive tomorrow.

A Peculiar Error. Sherbrooke, Aug. 21.—Until Wednesday next week, starting on Tuesday, the Thaw's will remain in the Sherbrooke jail. On that day he is to be arraigned in the Superior Court on a writ of Habeas Corpus. Between now and that time his battery of lawyers hope to perfect plans not to thwart deportation, but to submit to it gracefully at a point selected by Thaw.

This, in brief, was the status of Thaw's case on Tuesday night. He was committed to jail here on a defective warrant. Ignorant of the moves made by his lawyers, Thaw has spent his time pacing the length of the narrow corridor in the Sherbrooke jail, and was not even aware that the writ of Habeas Corpus in his case was signed by the judge this afternoon, and that, but for the timely telephone message, he would have been produced in court today with the benefit of a full hearing.

This incident, variously described as a blunder, a case of absent-mindedness, and an error of judgment, arose after Superior Judge Globensky failed to specify in writing that the writ was returnable before him on Wednesday next. He had set this date in chambers, but the writ reading "instantly" when served on the jailer set that official into instant motion and he had called a carriage and ordered Thaw to dress for an outing, when a telephone message from the judge informed him that the latter was leaving for Montreal, not to return here until next week.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Conner of Dutchess county, N. Y., Deputy Attorney General Franklin Kennedy, of Albany, and others primarily interested in getting Thaw out of the country, seized on the possibility of his immediate production and sought to find another judge before whom to arraign him. But Mr. Laford, governor of the jail, declined to surrender the prisoner until he had consulted with Sheriff Aylmer, and the latter, after reading the writ carefully, said that while no time for its return was stated, he had understood from the court that Wednesday was the day and he allowed Thaw had better stay in jail.

"A Kidnapping Plot?" Rumors circulated meanwhile that the New York authorities were trying to kidnap Thaw, that an automobile was ready to whisk him to the New York line, that an open clash perhaps in street battle was imminent. As a matter of fact, however, the New York authorities were as much surprised as anyone. They had protested at postponing the proceedings until Wednesday, but their protests falling, had decided to bide their time, hoping that when arraigned, Thaw would be released as a fugitive, and promptly snatched up by the immigration authorities as an undesirable.

The Jailer's Statement. The governor of the jail, explaining his difficulties tonight said: "Some one representing himself to be Judge Globensky called me on the telephone this afternoon, and said Thaw would not need to appear in court before Wednesday. I was not entirely settled as to the time, because I thought he said something about tomorrow. As a matter of fact, I rather doubted that it was Judge Globensky. I was confused particularly when I received another call. This time it was from a man who told me to 'get under cover because something is going to happen.'"

"Half an hour later the bailiff appeared and served the Habeas Corpus papers upon me, saying that I was to deliver Thaw immediately. I was as near bewildered then as I ever had been in my life. Within half an hour I had been told to produce him Wednesday, tomorrow and immediately. "I found a crowd outside and there were wild rumors that the prisoner was going to be taken away. But of course, these were untrue and I finally straightened matters out by consultation with the sheriff."

Thaw's Lawyers Hopeful. Thaw's lawyers said tonight that they were well satisfied with the events of today. They feel now that Thaw's fate, so far as the Canadian authorities are concerned, is practically settled. The departure for Ottawa early this morning of W. L. Shurtliff was the first step in a plan to procure Thaw's removal from Canada without long legal proceedings.

All of them profess to believe that the Minister of the Interior will accede to the request that Thaw be permitted to "nominate his destination" in return for submitting without further protest to deportation. Those who are advising Thaw, among them some of the ablest criminal lawyers in Canada, said they were confident that the government will welcome such a solution of the problem with which Thaw's unexpected arrival so suddenly confronted them. No one contends that Thaw has violated a single law of the Dominion, unless it be that one which provides that no alien may enter Canada without special permit within five years after he has been an inmate of an asylum for the insane. May Take Him to Vermont. In the event that such an alien has entered by railroad the law, it is understood, provides that he shall be transported to the capital of the state through which he passed prior to crossing the frontier. But Thaw did not enter by any train. He came behind a wind-blown horse, and when captured he was nearer Vermont than any other state of the union.

Already the immigration authorities have arranged to hold a hearing at Montpelier, the nearest Vermont town to the Vermont border, whenever Thaw may fall into their hands. The plan of Thaw's lawyers and there is reason to believe that they may have assurances of its success, is to have Thaw examined before that board and ordered deported to Montpelier. Than any other state Thaw would prefer Vermont as a refuge. Investigation made in his behalf has convinced those who are working in his interests that Vermont would present the most involved extradition proceedings.

The New York authorities, while exerting pressure at Ottawa to bring about Thaw's deportation, are also endeavoring to have him transferred to Montreal, as a prisoner of the immigration department. The Canadian side, the party who has nevertheless anticipated the Vermont contingency and sent there today John E. Mack, former district attorney of Dutchess county, to arrange for a possible hearing.

That Midnight Trip. Details of Thaw's trip on the night before he was arrested near Coaticook were obtained today by immigration officials, who went over the ground in search of witnesses to use against "Mitchell Thompson," under arrest on a charge of aiding and abetting Thaw, a lunatic, to enter Canada. According to the officials, Thaw, when he left the train at Beechers Falls, Vt., had supper with his two companions, one of whom he hired a rig and drove to Canaan, Vt. They then doubled back and crossed the frontier into Canada.

The roads were of the old corduroy variety and the horse was exhausted. When two miles from Canaan, on the Canadian side, the party was compelled to forsake the rig and hire another from an old French Canadian farmer named Octave Nadeau. The best that Nadeau could give them was one horse and a rickety buggy. In this they made slow progress over the bad roads that led to the farm where Thaw was arrested.

Bryan Takes a Hand. Washington, August 21.—Without authority to make a formal request for the delivery of Harry K. Thaw by the Canadian authorities, Secretary Bryan today responded to Acting-Governor Glynn's appeal for assistance in the effort to bring the Mattawan fugitive to justice. He sent a telegram to the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, now at Dublin, N. H., in which he informed that Harry K. Thaw, who lately escaped from an insane asylum in New York, in which he was confined after a verdict of murder on the ground of insanity, is in custody in the Province of Quebec, with a view to his deportation under the Canadian immigration laws. The department, while not in a position to make a request in the matter which is its present aspect, brings it to your notice with a view to such action as the Canadian authorities may find themselves justified in taking.

LOOKS FOR GENERAL IMPROVEMENT IN 1914. Vancouver, August 21.—John Aird, assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, arrived here today after an extensive tour of the prairie provinces, and said: "The business outlook throughout the Dominion is very satisfactory and I am decidedly optimistic regarding the coming year. The volume of trade of the whole country is expanding at a phenomenal rate and thousands of newcomers, many provided with ample capital, are flooding to the Canadian West. With a good crop almost assured and the present situation in Europe greatly relieved, I am expecting to see a decided improvement of affairs in Canada by the beginning of 1914."

The City of St. John and Some Moncton. J. T. Hawke, of Moncton, in an eloquent address then proposed the health of the City of St. John and in his address he said that the rapidly approaching greatness of Moncton, Mr. Hawke had once read in an Ottawa paper the statement that the people of the provinces, if they were anxious to help solve the problems of transportation, he urged them to exert that influence along the lines of loyalty to the institution which was owned by the people, and aimed to serve the people as "The People's Railway."

might as well try to stop the tides of the Bay of Fundy. This message from Mr. Hays had been an inspiring one. The city had a new hope and he was certain it would be realized. True it was linked up with the transportation interests and more directly than in the way of through traffic to the ports of Europe. There had been a recession of industrial establishments from the East end of the city and unless adequate transportation facilities were supplied for them he felt other factories might be forced to move to other parts of the city. He pictured the whole of Lower Cove as an industrial rather than a residential district and said he could imagine more nefarious acts for the city to buy a block of property there and provide industrial sites with transportation facilities.
