

20 words are not enough for me
To write about a trip that took us to the sea.
Had I a sheet 2,000 miles long,
It would not be sufficient for writing such a song.
Volkszeitung, St. Paul. F. W. Bergmeier.

A concentration of more notable scenery and more agricultural lands than any 10 days' outing
in the world ever offered.
Trade Journal, St. Paul. H. P. Hall.

My appreciation of this, the grandest and most satisfactory trip of my life so far, is only exceeded
by my inability to crowd any sentiment concerning it into 20 words.
Independent, Hutchinson. W. S. Clay.

Our trip.—Words fail, but Canada's scenery,
welcome and brotherly love will ever find a home
in our memories and hearts.
St. Paul. E. C. Downing.

The hospitality of the Canadian people cannot be surpassed. The mountain scenery is beyond all description.
Independent, Hutchinson. Felda M. Clay.

Interesting and instructive. Railroad service unsurpassed. Scenery beautiful, beyond description. Healthful to all. Excellent country and lands for homeseekers. Canadians desirable associates. Pleasures indescribable.
Advance, Worthington, Minn. H. Hawley.

It is beyond the power of mortal man to conceive of the beauty and grandeur of the mountains without first having seen them.
Ariel, Minneapolis. M. J. Luby.
