

delay the destruction of the liquor traffic by lulling the public conscience to the enormities of the traffic?

5. Does your experience coincide with that of Neal Dow, John B. Finch and Dr. Herrick Johnson, as expressed on enclosed slip? The following are the opinions referred to:

"It is my opinion that High License here (Chicago) is not at all working out a sentiment in favor of Prohibition. . . . The saloons closed by High License are chiefly those connected with groceries, and kept as an accommodation to customers, and probably the least harmful, the least patronized, and the most decent of all. All the vilest saloons are in full blast. The great arteries of the cities show no closed saloons."—Dr. Herrick Johnson, in a letter to The Voice, April 25th, 1885.

"High License is only a buffer interposed between the liquor traffic and the popular indignation against it."—Hon. Neal Dow, of Portland, Maine.

"I now know I was terribly mistaken in my theories. Many of the delusions urged in defense of High License have been exploded by the trial of the law."—Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska, head of the Order of Good Templars.
