though the medicine acted very slightly. What was the matter?

A. S. W.

Ans.—Your cow had evidently had free access to water, and had drunk to excess, thereby causing over-distention of the stomach and possibly paralysis of that organ. The tapping relieved the distention, and undoubtedly was the means whereby her life was saved.

BOG SPAVIN ON COLT

A year-old colt has an enlargement on the hock joint which appears to be a bog spavin. This enlargement only came on about a month or six weeks ago. Advise me what to do in order to remove it, or if there is a possibility of it going away without treatment?

E. A.

Ans.—We would advise letting the treatment of this case go until fall as there are always better results when treated in cool weather. If the enlargement is still there in the fall, apply a blister, which may be repeated in three weeks if necessary. For blistering use powdered cantharides, 2 drams; biniodide of mercury, 2 drams; vaseline, 3 ounces. Mix. Clip off the hair over the enlargement, and well rub in the ointment for twenty minutes. Tie his head up so that he cannot lie down for forty-eight hours, then wash off the blister with warm water and soap, and smear the parts with vaseline. He may then be allowed to lie down. Yes, it may disappear without treatment. In colts these swellings of synovial membranes frequently go away.

GOSSIP

PERCHERON AND BELGIAN HORSES

An English Shire breeder who has recently been visiting the horse breeding districts of France and Belgium writes interestingly to a British Exchange, on the horse interests of these countries, and points out to British breeders the reason for the popularity of the Percheron and Belgian with foreign buyers.

The Percherons are bred in the Department of La Perche, in the southern part of Normandy, a lovely country with grazing land unsurpassed, if equalled, in the world, and this excellent pasture is evident in the whole of the stock reared there. For some time this region has been the happy hunting ground of the foreign buyer, the centre being Nogent, and here foregather at almost every season of the year scores of men in search of the famous draft horse. Nogent is the headquarters of the Percheron Stud Book, and practically the whole of the Department of La Perche is given to the raising of the Percheron horse, none of which are emasculated, except it be through vice or blemish. Our informant is a gentleman who has visited the locality during every month of the year, and has already made four trips during 1909.

In summer American buyers are there in great numbers, but all the year round representatives of various nationalities are to be found here, thus creating a continuous trade. Some countries, such as Spain, will take the smaller-sized horses for breeding for military purposes; whilst the States take the larger-framed and bigger-boned ones; so that breeders find a market for all classes of their stock. Hundreds of first-class Percheron mares have been, and are still being, shipped, until, with the increasing demand, it is becoming a serious question for the breeders regarding the future supply. The matter of price, too, is of great significance. 2,500 francs ($500) being the minimum figure for a two-year-old colt, aged horses from three to five years old commanding very high prices, and being exceedingly hard to come by. A note worthy fact is that in France a stallion is allowed a paved mile, owned by Government, to carry a load of 15,000 lbs. and the stallion is paid for his services. The Percheron horse is a wonderful animal, and the Percheron breed is a wonderful one. It is a pity that the Percheron horse is not more widely known in Canada.
