

LOVE ROMANCE OF A SPANISH PRINCE

Titles and Honors Sacrificed for a Wife.

Nice of King Edward—King of Spain Much Incensed by His Cousin's Marriage.

A wonderful love-tale comes from Spain, Prince Alfonso of Orleans, first cousin of the King of Spain, having sacrificed his titles and honors to marry the girl of his choice, Princess Beatrice of Saxo-Coburg.

King Alfonso, being the union in account of the Princess Beatrice, a member of the Imperial family, the Prince also took the law into his own hands, the wedding ceremony being performed according to both Roman Catholic and Protestant rites.

The King of Spain was so incensed, the more especially as all three brothers of the King's family have contracted marriages, that he has now deprived the Prince of the rank of Infante, and of the Orders of the Golden Fleece and of Charles III, and has dismissed him from the army.

In court circles at Madrid King Alfonso's action is attributed to Queen Ena of Spain, who it is said, has always maintained a bitter feeling against the Coburgs since the difference of opinion between her mother, Princess Beatrice of Denmark, and the Dowager-Duchess of Coburg, on questions of precedence at the English Court.

It is hoped that the measure will be only temporary, as in the case of the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, who was deprived of his decorations for refusing to marry a sister of Princess Beatrice, but who was eventually reinstated with all honors.

The marriage had been in contemplation for over a year, took place last week at Coburg. When the marriage was first suggested, the Infante Prince Alfonso of Orleans, in opposition to the most energetic opposition, Prince Alfonso's own wedding to the Infanta Eulalia, and he was separated by mutual agreement for some years. When Prince Alfonso became aware of his father's opposition to the marriage he wrote, saying, "I shall marry the Princess Beatrice whatever the cost it may entail."

KILLS WIFE OF GUEST, AS BURGLAR

Carolina Planter Fires With Shotgun in Darkness

Receiving No Answer to Challenge Physician, It is Said, Advised His Host to Fire—Husband Seen Tragedy.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 7.—Mrs. C. C. Bigham, wife of Dr. C. C. Bigham, was shot and killed last night by a burglar, a prominent planter, who mistook her for a burglar. Mrs. Bigham had accompanied her husband on a professional visit to Avanti's home, Sunnyvale plantation, on Murrell's Inlet, near here.

Dr. Bigham and Mr. Avanti were sitting on the front porch of Avanti's home at about 10 o'clock last night, when the burglar, who was dressed in the darkness of a figure, passed the house and got toward a nearby creek. Not being answered when they called they got a shotgun and followed. They saw the figure apparently crouch near the creek bank and hearing no reply when they called, Avanti asked Dr. Bigham what he should do.

"Shoot it," said Dr. Bigham, it is alleged, and Mr. Avanti fired both barrels at close range, running back to the house, they obtained light, and returning to the creek bank, to find Mrs. Bigham stretched there dead. The contents of both barrels having struck her in the back. Even the gun was heard to penetrate her flesh.

Avanti then called the doctor to get up and accompanied the deputy sheriff and coroner back to Murrell's Inlet.

RAIL RACES A DAMPER ON THE ECHATHAM MEET

Only One Heat in Each Event Was Run, But Magnificent Racing Was Seen and Good Sport is Anticipated for Today

CHATHAM, N. B., Sept. 7.—There were three racing events on the card for the second day of the horse races, the 2:21 class, the named race and the free-for-all, but only one heat in each had been run off when rain fell so heavily that it was decided to postpone the races until next day. Some great racing is looked forward to as a result of these first heats for it was neck and neck in all of them, with three horses in each race near apart that there is no picking of winners, if the named race expected where Torbrook, Jr., looks very strong.

The named race was the first event called. There were three starters, Northern Star, drawing the pole and Torbrook, Jr., on the outside and Northern Star started well with Brown Hal close. Torbrook, Jr. struck his gait on the back stretch and walked to the front. Here Wery Willie showed a surprising spirit but could not hold it long enough to lap Torbrook, who kept his lead and finished first in 2:17 1/4.

In the next there were five starters. Those J. had the pole with Cecil Mack next. On the back stretch Cecil Mack went through the bunch like a rocket and struck a lively clip, followed by Cecil Mack and Cecil Mack. The positions remained the same until the back stretch the second time around was reached when driver Cummings put the seat to his horse and Wilton came to the front. Cecil Mack was wrenched with a magnificent burst of speed. He lapped Cecil Mack and was out on the turn and was a good length behind when Cecil Mack came third and Cecil Mack fourth. Time 2:19 1/4. Wilton all but put himself in the 2:19 class in this heat and there were some watches caught his time as

DETECTIVES SHOT BY A DESPERADO

Murderous Resistance to Arrest in Paris Flat.

A Master Criminal—Chief of Gang Who Rifled Churches and Museums in France.

A master criminal of a type more familiar in fiction than real life has been arrested in Paris after murdering two police officers and wounding a third. M. Blot, deputy chief of the French Criminal Detective Department, and M. Mugat, an inspector.

The two police officers had visited the flat of a certain Emile Delaunay in the Rue de la Folle-Mercurio, situated on the road from the Place de la Republique to the Cemetery of Pere Lachaise. Delaunay shot them one after the other, and then shot himself.

Two more were arrested and have been taking place in churches and museums round Paris and in the country, articles which could not be carried away being wantonly damaged, but every attempt to discover the culprits had failed until quite recently, when the Criminal Detective Department found a clue.

As it was not known whether Delaunay questioned the speaker of an individual who set them on the track of plunder and took charge of it when he was on the right track, Emile Delaunay was at the address given, the tenant of a small but smartly-furnished second floor flat, containing an ante-chamber and a dining room communicating with a large bedroom, which in its turn opened on a kitchen. He had settled there in October, and was described as tall and very strongly built, and as being invariably well dressed.

AMATEITE ROOFING

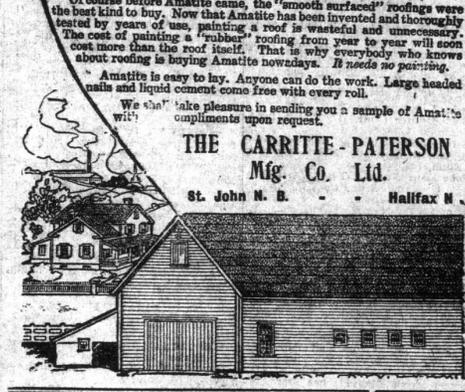

MINERAL SURFACE—NEEDS NO PAINTING

A MATITE roof needs no painting. The owner need never look at them; they take care of themselves. They are "no-trouble" roofs. They present to the weather a real mineral surface against which storm and wind and snow are absolutely powerless. This surface does not require constant painting like the smooth surfaced or so-called "rubber" roofing. The mineral surface is far better than paint.

Of course before Amateite came, the "smooth surfaced" roofings were the best kind to buy. Now that Amateite has been invented and thoroughly tested by years of use, painting a roof is wasteful and unnecessary. The cost of painting a "rubber" roofing from year to year will soon cost more than the roof itself. That is why everybody who knows about roofing is buying Amateite nowadays. It needs no painting.

Amateite is easy to lay. Anyone can do the work. Large headed nails and liquid cement come free with every roll.

We shall take pleasure in sending you a sample of Amateite on request.

PULLED DOWN OLD GLORY, RELEASED BY COURT

Toronto Highlanders Would Not Have Their Bare Legs Belittled by American

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 7.—Last Thursday night William Carson and James Mahoney, two Highland laddies, were wearing their kilts, hose and sporrans, arrayed in the full splendor of their Gaelic costumes. On Lincoln street they met an American, P. W. Benner, who scoffed at their naked legs and cast contempt on their Highland skirts. Benner was drawing attention to the beauty of the American flag which was hanging from the Alexandra Royal apartments on Lincoln street. After some words the Highlanders scaled the verandah and seized the "Old Glory" and wrenched it from the staff and cast it down into the dust and ashes. They were summoned, but the magistrate dismissed the case today.

STRANDED IN BOSTON, STANLEY CARR RETURNS HOME AND IS PLACED UNDER ARREST

Stanley D. Carr, the ex-Waterloo Street grocer, who left the city about a week ago, having obtained from several prominent citizens large sums of money, totalling over $1000, fell into the hands of the police early last evening, he having been forced to return to Boston, as he was penniless and could not obtain employment in the city.

Carr, who is only nineteen years of age, opened up a grocery, fruit and candy store at 7 Waterloo street about the first of July. He did not meet with very great success and began to purchase goods on extended credit. At various times he also borrowed sums of money from friends, and on Friday last he had pretty heavy accounts to pay and would like to have a loan for a few days. He was willingly given the money for a few days, but it was never returned, and immediately Carr's departure from the city, and action in the matter was at once taken. Fred Scott, his landlord, seized the stock, and immediately sent a man to Carr's home to demand the money. Carr had but thirty-seven cents and some papers in his possession when arrested. He had just returned from Boston yesterday afternoon and had been returned because he was dead broke and couldn't get a job.

For a short time after Carr set up in business he was apparently prospering, and immediately sent a man to Carr's home to demand the money. Carr had but thirty-seven cents and some papers in his possession when arrested. He had just returned from Boston yesterday afternoon and had been returned because he was dead broke and couldn't get a job.

COLD-BLOODED CRIME

He lived alone, a charwoman doing what work he needed, since, as he explained when he took the place, he was more often away than in Paris, as he was a commercial traveller. The man often went out on a bicycle, returning with boxes and parcels. Indeed, he had asked the concierge to accept any that might come in his absence and to deposit them in his apartment, as it would be all right. It was noticed, too, that he frequently went about in cabs and automobiles, and that the few meals which were cooked for him were comfortable, as he denied himself nothing. That there was some mystery about all this the neighbors had begun to amount, and two inspectors made their inquiries, and, as tongues were freed freely, the police officers promptly jumped to the conclusion that here was the instigator of all the more recent church and museum robberies which had baffled their colleagues in town and country.

"So it was decided, says the "Telegraph," that Delaunay should be arrested, and minute search made on his premises. M. Blot being entrusted with the task. He set out at seven o'clock on Saturday evening with his secretary, M. Perot des Gachons, M. Doll, a chief inspector, and with Inspectors Mugat and Mathieu. On reaching the flat Delaunay was found in his dining room, so that he would probably remain there all night. M. Blot, however, had a very plain, ascended a narrow and very plain staircase, and on tapping at the door heard a woman behind it ask "Who is that?"

"Open in the name of the Law," replied M. Blot, adding who he was. The woman replied and was heard to say "Delaney, open the door at once. I open it." "Go away, I shall do it myself," the man answered in a deep voice, and he opened it.

Blot, however, had no time to lose when he had a pistol in his hand, and putting his hand to his chest, tottered and fell backward into the arms of his secretary and Inspector Doll, rushed for Delaunay.

M. Mugat tried to seize him by the collar, but Delaunay fired and wounded him. Still the detective clung to him, and hence struck and M. Doll took out his revolver and fired at Delaunay, but missed him.

The bandit soon got the better of Mugat, and threw him on the floor. Standing over him, he then fired two shots through his back, which instantly killed the detective Inspector Doll, whom the murderer now inspected, sheltered himself behind the door, whereupon Delaunay closed and bolted it. A moment afterwards two more shots were heard, and Delaunay, who had blown out his brain, was afterwards apparent, fell beside the dead body of Mugat.

The three inspectors carried M. Blot down stairs and across the street to a pharmacy, where a doctor was soon in attendance. M. Blot had been shot by only a few words after he was wounded, and his few thoughts were about his wife. "I am dying," he said. "What a shock it will be to her!" When his last breath arrived, he was still breathing, but only very feebly, and had lost consciousness.

DESERTED CHILDREN DISOWN FATHER, 87

Court Upholds Them Because Parent Had Neglected His Family

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—"A father not willing to regard his children as a liability when they are powerless to help themselves is not entitled to consider them an asset when they are enjoying the fruits of prosperity."

This ruling by Judge A. H. Williams of McHenry county, temporarily occupying the bench in the Cook county court, spoiled the prospects of John Griffin from becoming a charge on the family he is alleged to have deserted thirty-seven years ago.

His four children told the court of their dead mother, and how she labored at the wash-tub to educate and clothe them.

Thomas Griffin, a well-to-do learning contractor, a son, was taken into court under the state support act, and "he has prospered at home very extensively, and has passed examinations in law. He has been Deputy-Chief of the Criminal Detective Department since 1904, and was greatly valued and well as a complete set of burglar's implements.

M. Blot, who was forty-six years of age, had been one of the best pupils at the Lycee Saint Louis, and had afterwards brilliantly passed examinations in law. He has been Deputy-Chief of the Criminal Detective Department since 1904, and was greatly valued and well as a complete set of burglar's implements.

SIAM WILL BE OPENED UPTO WESTERN TRADE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Anglo-Siam treaty which was ratified July 16, has opened a channel for the bringing of some very stringent laws relating to the House of Bourbon, of which the King of Spain is the head, and no marriage of any member of a reigning Catholic family with a princess belonging to a Protestant House.

In reply to this Prince Alfonso declared his unalterable intention to proceed with the marriage, despite the opposition of his family, the law, and the Church.

The Prince is in a very difficult position, as his marriage without the King's consent has created the breaking of some very stringent laws relating to the House of Bourbon, of which the King of Spain is the head, and no marriage of any member of a reigning Catholic family with a princess belonging to a Protestant House.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 7.—A warrant charging Ty Cobb, right fielder of the Detroit American League baseball team, with assault with intent to kill, was sworn out today by J. J. Standfield signed the affidavit in his room at the hotel, as it was said he is too weak to leave his bed.

Detective employed by a private agency will go to Detroit, where Cobb is now playing, to serve the warrant.

FACTS ABOUT FOOD WORTH KNOWING

It is a serious question sometimes to know just what to eat, when a person's stomach is out of order and most foods cause trouble.

Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any time with the certainty that it will do good. Actual experience of people is valuable to anyone interested in foods.

A Paris woman writes: "I had suffered with indigestion for about four years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very highest food, and then suffer such agony with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything."

"Our boys think he cannot eat a meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns so fast at school that his teacher and other scholars comment on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in Grape-Nuts."

"It contains the phosphate of potash from wheat and barley which combines with albumen to make the gray matter of the brain and nerve centres."

"It is a pity that people do not know what to feed their children. There are many mothers who give their young ones almost any kind of food and when they become sick begin to pour the medicine down them. The real way is to stick to proper food and be healthy and get along without medicine and expense."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CANADIAN NORTHERN SHOPS FOR TORONTO

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—D. D. Mann stated today that the Canadian Northern Railway will erect its general repair and construction shops in Toronto, and will employ between two thousand five hundred and four thousand men. He stated also that work will commence this month on the construction of 120 miles of road east from Toronto, which will be the first section of the ultimate Toronto-Ottawa line. It was money for this line that William MacKenzie secured, as well as other money, on his last visit to the old country.
