It Puzzles the Oldest Inhabitant to Ac count for It. The weather this year is declared by the oldest inhabitants to be abnormal in a remarkable degree. They unite in declar ing that it is at least six weeks later than s usual. In May of last year there were days when the thermometer was close to the 90 degree mark, but this year, even in June, there has been nothing of this sort There has been clouds and rain and rain and clouds, and but very little sunshine. There seems to be only one way out of the difficulty. In farming communities when the ground is parched and dry for the lack of rain they pray for a dow pour. The residents of Rossalnd mi unite in a prayer to the weather clerk for a little dry weather.

It is particularly trying on those mer chants who have laid in a supply of fair and warm weather clothing. They have so far been unable to dispose of any of these, and declare that unless there is a change in the weather soon there will be no heated spell this year and they will be left with big stocks of summer goods

ROBBINS & LONG.

Each Is Building a Costly Residence in Spokane.

Leo. H. Long and Charles P. Robbins, formerly of the assaying firm of Robbins & Long in this city, are now living in Spokane. It will be remembered that they made a large fortune out of the Republic mine. They were among the parties who grubstaked the original locator of this great mine, and they have made nearly a quarter of a million each out of the venture. They have now settled down in client was allowed to go until Saturday, Spokane, where they are enjoying themselves. Mr. Long is erecting there a residence that will cost $25,000, and Mr. Robbins one that will be worth $14,000 when completed. Both are worthy gentlemen, and their friends here will rejoice to know that they are using the fortunes that they made to good advantage.

A Large Committee Appointed to Look After the Affair—The Banquet will be Given in the Allen Hotel—Limited Sale of Tickets—

Mr. Jones, though a young man, has been honored by his fellow citizens on several Among the places of public occasions. Among the places of public trust held by him was the attorney-generalship of the state of Washington, which he held for eight years. He was also a member of the fifty-fifth congress, and his term of office as congressman expired on the 4th of March. The state of Washington was never better represent ed than during the fifty-fifth congress, when Hon. George Turner was the sena-tor from Washington and Hon. James Hamilton Lewis and Hon. W. C. Jones the representatives. All three are bril-liant and able men, and they attracted great national attention with their broad and bright views and wise actions.

Mr. Jones says he is an expansionist, but not in the sense of the absorbing of the Philippines by the United States. He will not allow, he says, those who favor the acquisition of these islands to call him an anti-expansionist. "I believe," he said, "in a policy of expansion that will absorb good countries inhabited by people who will make good citizens. For instance, if a country like Canada wished to annex itself to the United States I would rejoice in expansion of this kind. Mind you, I do not think that there is any probability of this, nor do I think that there is any considerable sentiment either in this country or in the United States in favor of such a step. I simply use it to illustrate my meaning. I am not an expansionist in the sense of acquiring a bad country inhabited by an undesirable class of people, like the Philippine Islands Besides this the islands are too tar away from the United States, and I do not believe that these islands will ever te of any benefit to the Linited States! In speaking of the political situation in the United States, Mr. Jones said that the coming presidential dection was any-bedy's fight, for the reason that it was difficult as yet to tell how the idea of imperialism and expansion took with the voters of the country. It would, he thought, play a very important part in the presidential campaign.

A CHAT WITH HASTINGS.

He Tells the Vancouver People About the Rossland Camp. J. B. Hastings, general manager for the War Eagle and Centre Star companies, is in Vancouver. He was interviewed by a Province reporter and among other things he said that when he left Rossland a week ago the output of the War Eagle was 250 paying $27,000 per month dividends on War Eagle stock. IT IS SAID TO BE THE BEST ROAD TO COPPER MOUNTAIN.

He Does Not Believe in Acquiring a Bad The Properties of the Canadian-American Gold Mining & Development Company Are Turning Out Well.

> Peachland, June 7.—The tide of travel nland toward Princeton and the Copper Mountain country seems fairly inaugurated, now that the last vestige of snow has gone from the hills. Messrs. Stritkse of Rossland and Suter of this place, were the first to set out. They were joined here by two other prospectors from the Slocan, who had shipped their baggage on to Penticton with a view to entering by the Fairview route, but who immediately changed their plans on hearing about the Peach-land-Glen Robinson route to Princeton. Since they set out many others have come over the trail and all are highly pleased with it. Barring a few fallen trees, they say, it is in good condition and presents an admirable course for a wagon road in-to that country. We expect the government will shortly be persuaded to continue the road already surveyed to Glen-Robinson and thus afford Princeton peo-ple an outlet by their natural gateway, and save the bones of the public generally the many extra miles of weary travel ecessary to access by other routes. The distance from here to Princeton over the old Granite creek trail is 43 miles, for the most part over level country or on easy grades. By Fairview the trail is over a long and steep divide into the Samilkameen valley, while by Spence's Bridge, on the main line of the C. P. R., the road is something over 122 miles in length. That the Peachland-Princeton road will soon be the one most widely used (especially for passenger traffic on account of its brevity) is indicated by the fact that the Okanagan is indicated by the fact that the Okanagan valley is already being tapped for supplies for that growing camp, and as your correspondent writes a train of 13 pack horses from Princeton is waiting to take home a cargo of oats. Rossland people intending to visit Princeton and the Copper Mountain country will find this route works. vastly superior in point of comfort to any other on the map, provided they are not Sinking has been resumed this week on the Silver King at Glen Robinson, owned by the Canadian-American company. Hoisting machinery has been laid in, the shaft has been timbered and all things are ready for turning out some good ore. The shaft is down 160 feet on a footwall that dips 80 per cent, and is clear cut as a grave stone. The ledge crosses the formation, and the hanging wall toward the surface shelves over and recedes, covering, without doubt, an enormous body of ore. The shaft is all in ore, yielding values as follows: Copper, $15.30; silver, $13.86; gold, $2.20; total, $31.36. A crosscut will be made at the 200-foot level to find out how large the ore body is anyway. Superintendent Shelton says there is a great mine there sure.
