Sporting Comment

Not a Square Deal

City league officials did not hesitate this morning, in expressing their opinion that Brantford did not receive a square deal at the O.B.A.A. meeting in Hamilton last night when Orcutt, Lee, Bradley and Cleator were debarred from playing in amateur baseball.

"It was a clear case of Toronto and Hamilton against Brantford," declared an official to The Courier, "when as a matter of fact the skirts of the Ambitious City are far from clean in this matter."

It is pointed out that neither Orcutt nor Lee have had any connection with professional sport in five years or more. Both are married men with families in Brantford. Jimmy Bradley has not played in the city league this year, nor does he intend to. Chris Cleator was debarred from amateur status because he pitched three innings for Brantford in the Canadian league at Hamilton several years ago.

W. Scruton expressed indignation at the course affairs had taken. Prior to the opening of the season, he pointed out, officials of the O. B. A. A. had approached Brantford, urging her to enter the association, and had promised that Orcutt and Lee would be allowed to play. At last night's meeting this promise was openly violated.

The local league has already been hit hard by war conditions, a number of players having been drafted already, and the unjust action of the O. B. A. A. executive is not taken lightly, so that there is a possibility that the league may break away from the association and run its course independent of all affiliations. An emergency meeting has been called for to-night, when plans will be discussed.

A remarkable feature of the entire affair is the fact that Brantford is the only city in the O. B. A. A. who has paid her dues and is in good standing. The others have as yet only given a promise to pay. Verily, there ought to be a law against such things.
