AWFUL STORY

Of Wife Slavery in British Chinatown.

(London Tit-Bits.)

Recent revelations as to the immensity of the secret drug traffic have shown that much of the "dope" which is being used so indiscreetly by promising young actresses, jaded society women, and others finds its way into this country via the Chinatowns of Great Britain. And this is but one of the many underground ways by which the yellow man grows wealthy by catering for the vice of the foolish.

Scores of Chinamen have made big fortunes out of the secret sale of such harmful drugs as opium, cocaine, heroine, trionel, bang, veronal, and betel-nut. Despite the public attention which has been focused on the traffic and the increased activity of the authorities, the game is still proceeding.

The profits are enormous. And the business, all the more dangerous because it is generally carried on under the cloak of a seemingly innocent trade, flourishes not only in the Limehouse district of London, but in Liverpool, Cardiff, and Glasgow, and, in a lesser degree, Birmingham and Manchester as well.

DELPORABLE MARRIAGE.

All the Chinese colonies in these cities are connected by strange mysterious links. The inhabitants of one known perfectly well, in an incredibly short space of time, what is going on in the other. They stand or fall together in any financial enterprise. A wrong done to one is a wrong done to the whole race domiciled in this country. And, if necessary, they will band themselves together and spend any amount of money to avenge an injury to the most insignificant member of their community. There is no more "clannish" race on earth.

The "Yellow Peril" is far from being merely a figure speech. It is a real menace. Perhaps the most deadly form it takes is in the marriage of Chinamen to white girls. Recent investigations I have made in the Chinatown of Great Britain—London and Liverpool in particular—reveal an astonishing and deplorable state of things. First of all the fact stands out clear and distinct that any white girl who marries a "chink" sells herself into the worst form of slavery.

For the Chinaman seldom marries for love. He wedd so that he can utilize his white wife in various crooked money-making schemes, such as, for example, sending her into the night resorts of great cities to dispose secretly of harmful and costly drugs to depraved devotees who are willing to pay practically any price to satisfy their craving.

If she is caught by the police she goes silently to prison. Terror prevents her from knowingly or willingly implicating her husband, for the "chink" has ways of dealing with a white wife who endangers his liberty beside which the horrors of ordinary prison life pale into insignificance.

TERRORIZED DECOYS.

Another way John Chinaman utilizes

"I have used Zam-Buk myself for the same ailment, also for soree and burns, and have the greatest confidence in it."

his white wife is to force her to act as a decoy and bring rich visitors to his opium-den or fan-tan room. If he dared to venture into crowded night resorts himself he would be subject to suspicion. Every movement would be shadowed by plain-clothes police and prospective victims prevented from falling into his clutches. Accordingly to sends his white wife as his representative, and although the task may be repugnant to her she has to perform it or suffer the penalty.

When she is at home the wife has to work like a slave. The idea of disobedience never enters her head. In the Chinese lodging-houses of Liverpool and Cardiff it is not an uncommon thing for the English wife of the proprietor to have to wait upon twenty or thirty lodgers by day and when night falls sally forth well dressed to dispose secretly of drugs or decoy the stranger to the den her husband runs-a-den which can never be found by the street on a second visit after it has been robbed, because it is so cunningly camouflaged.

THE LAUNDRY CLOAK.

Wealth is the only god the Chinaman really worships. His methods of making it are most thorough. He lives on next to nothing. No matter how much money he derives from the secret sale of drugs—and in London the profits of some Chinamen from this source alone range between £30 and £80 a night—he will still wash a garment most beautifully for sixpence and show genuine distress at a customer's threat to find a new laundress.

If any unpleasant official inquiries are made as to the extent of a Chinaman's wealth he can generally produce well-kept books of account to show that his laundry business—which is often a cloak for many sinister transactions—is in a flourishing condition, that he has made several profitable deals in curtos, or that he has disposed of some rare Chinese jewel at a good profit. Clever, indeed, is the detective who can trap a Chinaman on a matter of account.

The methods by which a "chink" lures a British girl into marriage are ingenious in the extreme—well worthy, indeed, of a race whose chief characteristic is cunning. I have discovered these methods at first hand, and an exposure of them may serve the useful purpose of causing any girl to think very carefully before she allows even the idea of life-long alliance with a Chinaman to enter her head.

CHORUS-GIRL DANGERS.

With the sole object of finding a wife, he can turn eventually into a slave—not one whom he can love and cherish—the yellow man haunts the theatres and takes stock of the chorus girls. Perhaps a poor struggling girl is dazzled by the visions John paints of his wealth.

When thousands of girls were engaged on mullions, he carried out this plan at various factories, and in the Birmingham district in particular several girls fell into the net so cunningly spread. Now that the munitioneers are disbanded and have to find some other means of livelihood, John Chinaman is dividing his time between them and the theatre girls. He has no object in contracting an irregular alliance; what he desires is a proper legal marriage so that he may have legal control over the girl he has chosen.

In the courtship stages he is an ideal lover—generous, solicitous, and ardent. He lavishes presents on the girl (which he takes back forcibly after marriage!) paints glowing pictures of the future life of ease and happiness, and only reveals his true character on the return from an expensive honeymoon. That is usually the last piece of happiness the British wife of a Chinaman experiences.

THE ONLY RELEASE.

No sooner has she settled down than she is gradually initiated into the mysteries of drugs, the playing of fan-tan, the luring of the victims to her husband's resort, the secret sale of "dope", and the way to dodge the police. She has been married as a speculation or investment. And she earns every penny of her keep and a great deal more.

Too late she realizes that the life John Chinatown had, in his wailing days, sworn to her would be a garden of roses is, instead, a garden of thorns—from which there is no escape except death.

Electric Protection.

Many of the devices conjured up for war service, under pressure of deep desires, will be useful for the piping times of peace. The Canadian aviator who has designed a way to keep a flier warm by equipping his suit with electric wires may be painting the dawn of a new day for people who live in apartments where the janitor is careless.—Montreal Star.

Worth Remembering.

To freshen salt fish quickly, soak it in sour milk. Saved used paraffin, melt it up and use on linoleum. It will retain colors in the linoleum and make it wear longer.

A pleasant home deodorizer is made by pouring spirits of lavender over a lump of bicarbonate of ammonia. If whipped cream is to be flavored, it should always be done before the cream is whipped. Stale macaroons, ground up and added to any pudding will improve the flavor.

A good shoe polish is an outing flannel bag about five inches by eight inches. This slips over the hand and enable you to polish your shoes without soiling your hands. To remove old wallpaper, place a boiler full of boiling hot water in the room and close all doors and windows tight. The steam will soften the paper so that you can pull it off easily.

Building the City.

The new and better world after the war, of which we dream these days, will not build itself any more than the rubble which marks the site of Ypres and Louvain will come together of itself into beautiful and splendid buildings, observes a writer. It will take time and struggle and infinite patience, and if men and women are not willing to pay the price of a new and better world, such will not come merely because they have airy visions of it. Much of our talk about better things to come is too cheap and easy and has not enough of grip and purpose to make it worth much. What God is giving us, and will give us in those great after-the-war days, is a wonderful opportunity, but we shall have to meet that opportunity with heroic endeavor and self-sacrificing effort before it can possibly become fruitful. Talk is cheap and dreams are sweet and inspiring, but it is not with these alone that the Kingdom of God is builded in the earth and mankind is won for righteousness and brotherhood.

DIED OF FRIGHT.

Man Who Declined to Save Zeppelin Crew.

Pathetic circumstances attended the fate of Skipper Martin, of the Grimsby, Eng., trawler King Stephen, who declined to rescue the crew of a Zeppelin in the North Sea. The adventure preyed on his mind, and he died after a nervous collapse caused by the mistaken belief that he had been poisoned. He had received a number of anonymous letters containing threats, apparently from Germans in England, and when he became ill after smoking a cigarette from a packet which had been sent to him by post, he was convinced that the cigarettes had contained poison. Analysis proved that his fears were unfounded, but he never recovered from the shock. "He died from sheer fright," was the verdict of his medical attendant. The Zeppelin incident occurred on Feb. 1, 1916, and public opinion held that Martin acted rightly. The trawler discovered the disabled airship in the sea, with its huge envelope rising about 50 feet out of the water. The commander offered to handsomely reward Martin and his crew if they would save them, but Martin declined on the ground that he would not trust the Germans. "I had," said Martin, "talked it over with Denny (the mate), as we were drawing near, and after considering all the pros and cons, both of us agreed that if we lowered a boat and sent some of the crew to the Zeppelin they would at once be secured and kept as prisoners until we did as the Germans wished, which would probably be to take charge of the ship if they came on board, or if we refused to fetch them off they would carry out their threat and the crew of it down with them. I had all my own men safe and sound, and I was determined to take no risks. I knew what the Germans had done to my class in the North Sea, and, besides, Zeppelin crews dropping bombs on houses and killing women and children didn't appeal to me. Even if the Huns hadn't proved barbarous, there would still have been a big risk, because there were eighteen Germans and only ten of us, and you could scarcely imagine their allowing us to take them to Grimsby as prisoners. Nothing we could have done would have prevented their taking charge of the trawler, seeing they were two to one."

Ship on Girl's Back Bar to Society

A ship on a girl's back is a bar to her entrance into society, according to State Senator Alfred J. Gilchrist, of New York City. The senator declares that a Brooklyn girl is barred from society because, when ten years old, a ship was tattooed on the girl's back. She cannot wear a fashionable, low-neck dress because of the spreading sails across the ocean on her back. The senator, therefore, asks for a law imposing a fine of $500 for anyone who mars a young woman's beauty.
