MEN'S DISEASES

There is seldom a day that we are not consulted in regard to a condition that, if we were to have seen it in its early stages, the sufferer would have been relieved, curred and saved considerable expense. W. A. Muir, of Lima, O., says:—"I was one of the countless victims of early vice at 15 years of age. The drains on my system were weakening my brain as well as my sexual and nervous system. For ten years I tried scores of doctors, electric belts and patent medicines. Some helped me, none cured. I was giving up in despair, in fact, contemplating suicide when a friend advised me as a last resort to give the New Nethood Treatment of Drs. K. & K. a fair trial. Witclout confidence I consented and in three months I was a cured man. I was cured seven years ago—am married and happy. I heartily recommend Drs. K. & K. to my afflicted tellow men."

WINTERING BEES

first step in this direction is to be sufficiently warm to prevent the ground, without a bottom, combs temperature from going below 40 degrees. A part of the cellar should he partitioned off from the rest for this be partitioned off from the rest for this purpose and provided with sufficient ventilation to allow the escape of foul air and also to regulate the temperature should there be any danger of it rising too high, which would cause the bees to become restless and crawl outside the hives. After a number of col onies are put into a cellar the tempera ture will be several degrees higher than it formerly was on account of the start a 4 inch pipe (tin or, better, galvanized) I foot from the cellar bottom, that happens to be above. This will champion player on the bagpipes, rapidly carry off the heavier foul air, which is loaded with millions of disea germs, which float away in the draught of heat and smoke. Many a damp, uncemented, unventilated cellar has proved a death trap to one or more embers of the family by the fatal germs that infest such places. And could the good people in Athens and region around it see the myriads of teria qualified to generate typhoid and diphtheria the ywould act promptly in this matter. The next best method of ventilation is to open the cellar door few minutes just at dusk. Two or three minutes will do a lot of good to the bees daily. Next, an inch pipe passing from outdoors through the cellar window-sash, close to the beams above to the bee room where the fresh air may fall like a spray over all the Bees are the better of a little pure air daily. The temperature ought to range between 40 and 50 degrees, resting at the point mostly where the bees are so quiet that one can scarcely detect a hushed hum. It is not easy to explain why twenty cellars that bring out the bees in first class condition out the bees in first class condition may all differ all the way from 40 to the Collegiates at some future date when they are older and better players. We do iron, cement, and gravel 50 degrees. Remember that cold air roofing and guarantee good work in every case.

We sell our paint by the gallon or hours! continued that cold air may not be pure air; foul air may be below zero. A little pure air will quiet bees when nothing else will, degrees pleases them well.

The fire-draught yentilation I have tested for near twenty years, and wom en have noticed the change and purity of their cellars at once, and said the cost was a trifle compared with the benefit. Remember, the cellar pipe must be 4 inches in diameter with a damper in the short elbow, uniting in the first joint in the stovepipe. So far as I know, I was the first to apply this system of ventilation, as well as spraying the pure air from the centre top of

A colony will give a better return if they go in with 30 lbs of honey, beside all other weight. The same colony will in a cellar that has a steady temerature of 45 degrees pass the winter well with 15 lbs, but must have prompt attention when first set out in the spring or may be just before that. The bee apartment should be so situated as not to be subject to constant invasion by individ uals when going to the cellar proper for fruits, vegetables, etc.

If a person has a number of colonies to winter indoors it would, no doubt, be an advantage to build a repository in a side hill and have the doorway at the lower side level with the ground so that there would be no necessity for a stairway. Sometime in November, when the indications are that cold weather is setting in, put the bees in. Do not break the sealing of the cloth on top. Where the maple leaf beds on treestles are used, the bottom should be removed This aids in maintaining interior uni form temperature, and at the same time ensures perfect ventilation from the bottom. Many very excellent and successful beekeepers tier up the hives. They tion for the right man on either salary loosen the bottoms the night before, then next day carry the bees in gently, leaving the bottoms behind. The first row of hives may be supported 1 foot or more from cellar bottom, 8 inches apart, the next one above and over the TORONTO spaces, also 8 inches apart; so on up.

This also insures uniform ventilation.
The dead bees in both these methods fall out of the hives. A little dark-WEST END GROCERY lantern is handy. If you can have

All swarms, all olonies, are not impressed the same by Apparists in the southern states are free from many of the attentions we are obliged to give, and the wintering problem is solved with less effort than is called for in our case.

I once by request wintered be s in the old box hives turned down on their side. I once, on the Moira river, wintered 30 colonies turned up side down (in the old box). It was a beatiful sight to see the big clusters all on top of the combs. Strange, they Probably the most convenient place were not inclined to fly to the light to winter bees is in the cellar. The were not inclined to fly to the light, three seasons two colonies (very strong assured that the cellar can be kept ones) suspended on cleats, 3 feet from sufficiently warm to prevent the the ground, without a bottom, combs snow dritted around bottom of combs. right. I have wintered bees by request in every place from the garret to a pit in the garden, but in our rigorous climate the best place is a felt beeroom in a good cellar.

Fifteen or twenty years ago I per-uaded here and there a beekeeper to sequential, amusing things you ever looked at. As they go marching passing up entering by a 4 inch long around, they actually have a pompour elbow into the first joint of any stove strut that beats the cleverest Highland
