WALTING GOWN OF CLOTH AP-PLIQUED WITH VELVET.

At a Fifth Avenue opening which took place a few days ago there was exhibited a Parisian walking gown of goblin blue satin faced cloth made upon a foundation of satin. The skirt was close fitting over the hips and had an elaborate stitching of black slik braid running vertically upon its gores.

The waist was tight fitting and had an applique trimming of black velvet The waist was tight fitting and had an applique trimming of black velvet finished with bias bands of the dress material. The lapels were of goblin blue panne velvet edged with a delicate passamenterie of imitation turquoises and sapphires. A high, flaring collar completed the neck and was fastened at the front with a brooch of brilliants.

One of the new features of house gowns is a very pretty sash effect and one that is so simple that anyone can arrange it.

The simplicity of the new sash obviates the need of a helping hand and recommends it to lovers of the tasteful in dress. It is made of the material that is used to trim the gown and finished at the ends by a little fringe or a border of lace. Fringe, however, is in better taste.

When a boy turns his bulging pocket inside out we marvel at the quantity and variety of articles he has stowed away. Odd lengths of string, marbles, a horse-chestnut, a top, brass nails, hickory-nuts, an apple, and many more articles are garnered by this "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." We think the collection must be hard on a boy's pocket. And it is. But do we ever think of the variety and miscellany of think of the variety and missensus the substances we put into the pocket of our stomach? There's the apple and the puts, and things besides quite as indigestible as brass nails and with no more food value than so many marno more food value than so many mar-bles. And yet we wonder that the stomach "gives out." When the sto-mach breaks down under the strain of careless eating and irregular meals it can be perfectly and permanently restored to health and strength by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Med-ical Discovery. The action of this medicine on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition is so marked, that relief from disease is so marked, that relief from disease is at once experienced, and the head-aches, liver "troubles," kidney disorders, skin eruptions and other symp-toms of a diseased stomach are quick-ly cured. Whenever the use of a laxative medicine is indicated, use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They act in harmony with the "Discovery" and as-sist its action by purging the bowe's foul accumulations.

THE DEACON'S MISTAKE His Stolen Maul Staid In the Water

With the "Old" Man. The Annapolis valley, or the famous "Land of Evangeline," gives more oppor-tunity for the study of human nature perhaps, than any other locality along the entire Atlantic seaboard. The scenery of this region is beautiful beyond description, and tourists soon become well enough acquainted with its people "to go altogether to the kirk and altogether pray.

One Sunday the parson in a village church delivered with special emphasis an able sermon on putting off the "old man" and getting on the "new." This signal feat, he stated, was accomplished by simply going down into the waters of baptism and burying the "old man" and coming out of the waters a new creature.

After the service a wealthy deacon in-quired of a certain wayward individual who occasionally presented himself to the gracious influence of the church how the sermon impressed him. He said it was the only sermon that ever touched his heart. The deacon, putting on a smile of gratification, gave him a hearty handshake. For quite awhile he had been trying to persuade him to submit to baptism In this he had an ax to grind.

Almost a year previous the prospective convert stole a maul out of the deacon's sawmill and more than once flatly re fused to return it. The deacon finally de cided that an ecclesiastical course of bam boozie would have more influence over him than harsh words. If he could make him a Christian, he felt sure the mau would be forthcoming. So that Sunday morning he solemnly entreated this way ward individual, whose heart was already softened, and won his consent to submi

When he arose out of the water, the deacon greeted him as "brother" and cor-dially congratulated him in that he had buried the "old man" and put on the "new." The deacon, now feeling that the long lost maul was as good as returned, went on his way rejoicing. Next day the "new man" sallied into the deacon's grocery store. As usual the place was crowd

His Idea of Humor. A janitress living on Washington square had an adventure one day which square had an adventure one day which she will not soon forget. It seems that the building which she has under her care was at one time used by a trust company, and afterward it was turned into an apartment house. When this was done, the vaults were left intact, and they were very seldom opened. The janthey were very seldom opened. The jan-itress was showing a party of gentlemen plague. through the building and pointed out the desirability of the vaults as refrigerators. When she opened the vault and stepped in, one of the party, who has a rare idea of humor, shut the door suddenly and im-prisoned the janitress. That was all right so far as it went, but the lock was a spring affair, and the janitress had the keys on the inside. The room hunters were throroughly frightened, and one of them ran for a locksmith in haste. Luckily a neighbor, who is an expert locksmith, came into the place and in a few minutes succeeded in releasing the woman, who was in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. The room hunters made themselves very scarce before the entry raged janitress came forth.—Philadelphia gia, dyspepsia, Bright's disease and a spring affair, and the janitress had the raged janitress came forth.-Philadelphia

"One of the boys at the hotel put me on to a little poker game," said the dry goods drummer, "and I went around to see what it was like. There were about 30 respectable looking people in the room, and one of them was trying to teach me the value of the cards, when the police broke in and made a clean sweep of everybody. Next morning, when arraigned at the police court. I wanted a lawyer, and there was a general laugh in court as his honor replied: 'I don't know where you'll get one.

He Was Very Thoughtful. A north country miller noted for his keenness in financial matters was once in a boat trying his best to get across the stream which drove his mill. The stream was flooded, and he was taken past the point at which he wanted to land, while farther on misfortune again overtook him to the extent that the boat was upset.

His wife, realizing the danger he was in, ran frantically along the side of the stream, crying for help in a pitiful voice, when to her sheer amazement, she was suddenly brought to a standstill by her husband relling out:
