The Camel as a Soldier. The camel is a good soldier, says a condon writer. It may be stupidity, and if may be bravery, but a camel is as steady under fire as a tower. The Persians mounted small cannon on the backs of their camels and called them zambwahs, or "little wasps." This fashion was adopted in India, and aft-This er the battle of Sobraon 2,000 of these artillery camels were captured. In the Indian mutiny the British had a camel corps of 150 beasts, and on the back of each camel sat a Scotch highlander in his kilt. In 1845 Sir Charles Napier had a camel corps in Sindh, and in one day he marched seventy-five miles, defeated a brigand chief and marched home again. In 1878 the British used camels against the Afghans, and the government paid for 50,000 camels that died in those campaigns. Many of these were driven to death by their owners in order that they might claim the government bounty.

DRUGGING WON'T CURE CATARRH All the medicine in the world tak-All the medicine in the world taken into the stomach won't cure catarrh, and it's useless to squander money on tablets, bitters and liquid remedies. Catarrh is a disease of the nasal passages, throat and bronchialtyles. Stomach medicines can't reach these parts. It's only fragrant, healing Catarrhozone which is breathed all through the air passages that is sure to reach the seat of Catarrh. No failure ever known if Catarrhozone was used. It heals and doesn't irritate; it soothes, kills the gerus and therefore tures. Use only Catarrhozone, the one certain cure. Two months' treatment $1.00; trial size 25 cents.

"I recall an incident in which Kick-ingberg played a part. It was an im-portant conference between Dr. Ross-of Philadelphia and a delegation or Klowas and was held almost within the shadow of Fort Sill. In the course of his remarks Dr. Rose urged the red man to follow in the steps of the red man to follow in the steps of the industrious white man—to get a piece of land, till it, raise a family and become a citizen of whom the community come a citizen of whom the community might be proud. At the conclusion of his remarks Dr. Rose announced that he was willing to be interrogated.

"Kickingberg took the floor. He said.

Why don't white men do as white man says? Raising his arm and pointing to Fort Sill he continued, saying, 'Lots white men there got no squaws, no farm—they carry guns!"

"Dr. Rose was dumfounded. It would have been certain death to have truthfully explained to the Indians the reason for the station of the troops at Fort Sill. And so Dr. Rose made no attempt to answer the question, which had a demoralizing effect upon the con-

"Young men," he said, "when you be gin to paint don't choose peculiar and uncanny subjects for your pictures. Some of you, though, despite me, will choose such subjects. That has been the case with all my classes.

"A country lad painted under me a picture of Nebuchadnezzar eating grass. The picture was intended to be horrible and sad. In a gaunt land-scape the king, nearly naked, crouched on his hands and knees. He was eating greedily of a big bunch of grass that he held in his left hand. His aspect was bestial and insane. The pic ture wasn't badly done, but whoever looked at it laughed.

"Another student of mine once painted a picture that he called 'The De liverance of Jonah. On a sea beach Jonah knelt, his hands clasped and his face turned skyward in grateful prayer. The whale was disappearing. Its vast bulk was sinking into the sea.

"A young Australian painted 'The Pound of Flesh." In this composition the judge and the multitude of spectators looked on while Portia held a long knife against the bared ribs of Sny-lock. Shylock was howling with wide open mouth and arms stretched out in an appeal for mercy, and the blood was beginning to flow from his side. The Judge Silenced.

In the famous trial of the dean of St. Asaph, Mr. Erskine, the great English lawyer, put a question to the jury relative to the meaning of their verdict. Mr. Justice Buller objected to its propriety. The counsel reiterated his ques ion and demanded an answer. The judge again interposed his authority in these emphatic words:

"Sit down, Mr. Erskine. Know your duty or I shall be obliged to make you know it." Mr. Erskine, with equal warmth, replied: "I know my duty as well as your plied: ') know my duty as wen as your lordship knows your duty. I stand here as the advocate of a fellow citizen, and I will not sit down."

The judge was silent, and the advocate persisted in his questions.

old Tree Superstitions. The old Teutonic and Saxon races in central and northern Europe, be-fore the introduction and spread of Christianity, had a great veneration for trees. They would never willingly damage them. Under large trees; especially old oaks, the great councils were held and judgment given, and the graves of this people were found in groves, they always being buried un-der the roots of a tree. This all was a result of the superstition that their gods lived in those trees. THE CHINESE BABY.

Elaborate Ceremonies That Take Place After Its Birth.

On the evening of the first day after the baby has arrived the paterfamilias according to the Chinese custom, pros-trates himself before a joss and, touching his head to the floor, voices thanks to the gods and to the honorable ancestors for the small son who was sent perfect of body and full of health. On the evening of the second day the cere mony is repeated, and on the third day the voice of the wife joins that of the husband in thanksgiving. Also on the third day a limited number of relatives and friends are called in to witness for this occasion with green branches of either fir, cedar or spruce, to insure fueng-suey, or good luck, to the house, Other ornamentations in honor of the baby are long silk threads, bearing little circles, squares and hearts of gold and scarlet paper. These are festooned from the walls and are hung from the ceiling. A few feet away the threads seated in a semicircle before the joss.

The mother is carried to a seat of baby, swathed in yards of scarlet and purple silk, is brought in on an elabo-rate pillow. The eldest child or near-est relative carries a green branch, crossed with threads of scarlet paper, and waves it slowly over the her the baby. This wards off evil influences and insures good health. After a quaint ceremony by the father before the joss the tiny forehead of the baby is shaved by the mother and a christening similar to that of the Christian religion-except that the prayer is made to the ancestors and the water used to sprinkle the baby is perfumed with sandalwood-is a part of the ceremony. mother. After the shaving of the head a cap of scarlet silk, with decorations of gold and jewels and with a tiny round hole in the top, is placed upon the baby's head, and the christening is completed. In every Chinese family, however poor, at least one banquet is given in honor of the birth of a boy. over, the gods being supposed only to appropriate the best.

The banquet viands may be only rice and a bit of salt fish, and there may be only a half dozen or so present. Nevertheless the feast is given, for it is baby's right, and the rights of babies are respected by oriental parents.
