—Sackville and Westmorland farmers should spare no pains to make their Exhibition a success. The shows at Moncton and Amherst, notwithstanding extensive booming, were somewhat deficient in the amount of agricultural products, and might easily be surpassed by the farmers of the Tantramar region. Farmers should strive to make a good exhibit. The winning of prizes is a secondary consideration.

—Brakeman Angus Steadman, of Moncton, was seriously injured at Sackville about noon Monday. He was engaged in shunting and fell between the car he had just cut off and the tender. He saved himself from certain death by catching hold of the brake beam, but was dragged some distance before the accident was observed and the engine stopped. He was taken to Moncton and conveyed on a stretcher to his home.

—The joint committee of the three Maritime Conferences of the Methodist Church, appointed by the respective Conferences to consider certain matters of common interest, is holding its session in the library of the College. A large number of ministers and laymen is present and important business relating to some of the funds of the church has been transacted. The general committee of the Supernumerary fund holds its session late afternoon, when the reports of that fund will be considered, and whatever legislation may be needed, will be prepared, so as to be presented to next general Conference for enactment.

E. Smith of the Nova Scotia Nursery Port Williams, Cornwallis. The clusters are not as fine as some that may be seen in the Annapolis Valley, but they prove that even grapes may be successfully grown in this region.
