"Our Friends, the Liberals "

The New York Sun seems to h the chief exponent in the United States of Canadian annexation. It keeps a watchful eye on matterpolitical in the Dominion, care fully notes all changes in the personnel of the Federal Governmen and appears to regard the death Conservative Leader as of a rift in the clouds of its disappoint ment. Curiously enough, every manifestation of hope in its an nexation propagenda is couple with the names of the Liberals in Canada, whom it calls Me friends. When Sir John Donald died the States nexationis high and from "our triends," th Liberals, great things were expected. They were doomed to pected. They were doomed the bitter disappointment; but the death of Sir John Thompson ha again revived their hopes, as wil be seen from the following from a recent issue of the Sun:

"Our friends, the Liberals the Dominion of Canada, are justly encouraged by the patent fact that the death of Sir John Thompson has left the Conservatives without a Leader competent to reconcile the conflicting demands and preoccupations of the We trust that various provinces. events may justify Mr. Laurier in predicting that, should the present Canadian Government venture to appeal to the country. the Liberalwould sweep Quebec, and make so strong a demonstration in On tario as to make sure of a majority in the Ottawa House of Commons their success if the Canadian general elections were postponed until after our Congress had repealed those clauses of the new Tariff Canadian provinces are ready to accept, with the commercial privileges, the political responsibilities of members of our Union."

From this plain statement, two things are quite evident. The first is that the hopes of the annexationists are bound up in the success of "our friends the Liberals' at the next Dominion general election; and the second is that the dominant party in the United States Congress are prepared, in the hope of accomplishing their nefarious designs, to repeal every clause of the new United States tariff act that is any way favorable to Canada. It will now be in order for "our friends, the Liberals" to state exactly where they stand regarding this matter. Have they entered into a compact with their friends in the United
