Hunter Shoots Fellow Hunter.

Harrison, Ont., Nov. 27.—John Pears of Toronto, while hunting this morning in a swamp in Minto township was accidentally shot by a fellow hunter. Pears was wearing a white cap and was seated on low ground. His companion mistook the white cap for a rabbit and fired, twenty-four shots taking effect in the lower part of Pears' body and several in his arm. Dr. Thomas Henson of Harrison, was called and extracted some of the shot. Mr. Pears was taken to Toronto this afternoon for further treatment.

Hunting Season's Twelfth Victim

Lambert Lake, Maine, Nov. 24.—Edward Harding of Richfield, N.B., was shot and killed here Sunday, the twelfth human victim of the hunting season in this state.

Harding and his brother-in-law, Wm. Gavel, also of Richfield had been hunting together. They separated and Gavel, seeing a movement in the bushes which he thought was a deer, fired. The bullet struck Harding, who was instantly killed.

Factory Girls' Gift to Jessie.

New York, Nov. 24.—A delegation representing 500 girl employees of a white goods factory left to-day for Washington to present to Miss Jessie Wilson, the president's daughter, a hand embroidered linen petticoat as a wedding gift.

Miss Wilson, it was understood, had made appointment to receive the committee at the White House this evening. All of the 500 girls played some part in the making of the fine petticoat which is embroidered with a garland of roses, and an American eagle and flag bearing the initials J. S. W. (Jessie Sayre Wilson). The idea was prompted by appreciation of work that Miss Wilson had done as a social worker among the New York factory girls.

Mrs. Pankhurst Collected $20,000.

New York, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, England's militant suffragette, sailed for home to-day taking with her, she said, $20,000 collected during her recent lecture tour in this country. She will devote the money to the cause of woman's suffrage in England. Mrs. Pankhurst said that on her arrival in Plymouth she expected to be arrested and sent to jail to serve the remainder of a sentence uncompleted because of her hunger strike.

Suits may be elaborate or severe, as requirement dictates. The elaborateness is often of commonplace material, but complex in line, while the more simple ones depend on richness of material.

Suggests Glass Doors.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Would the Postmaster General or someone in authority, kindly inform the public, why plain glass (the kind that one can see through), is not placed in the doors leading to the General Post Office? More than a year ago, attention was called to this same subject, but up to the present no steps have been taken to effect a remedy.

Managers of Banks and other business institutions in the city made it a point to have the entrance as bright as possible, so that customers may find their way in and out with ease and safety.

Such I regret to say, is not the case at the G.P.O., for just as you are about to enter or leave there the door is pushed violently in your face, not through any fault of the person on the other side. Consequently friendly greetings are not always exchanged. Men who are not possessed with a strong push have had their shoulder almost dislocated, children of tender years are knocked down and ladies have had their latest hat crushed into next year's style, and still the torture goes on. We heard rumors more than a year ago about the up-to-date remodeling this institution was to receive.

For a start I would suggest having plain glass placed in the doors. Open the western door which is now so securely bolted. Place a bulletin board between the windows announcing the express is due.

We know the man at the window will cheerfully supply the information, with him we have no fault to find, he has told some of us nine hundred and ninety-nine times already.

Give us the board; I feel confident it would fill a long felt want, but I there should be sufficient reasons for not changing the glass, then hang it outside so that we can see it from the street, for all do not carry an accident insurance policy.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no meeting room under the old condition could deny the improvement that has taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudley, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity. The latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the light under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov. 8th.

Grenfell Nurse Saw Grand Falls.

New York, Nov. 23.—Miss Laurie Coates, a nurse who has been associated with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell in his work in the far north, arrived here to-day on board the Stephano of the Red Cross Line. She asserts she is the first white woman to view the Grand Falls in Labrador. Miss Coates says that she made the trip last summer from Hamilton Inlet, where she was stationed, the most northern relief station, in company with a half breed Indian guide. They travelled by canoe most of the three hundred and twenty-five miles to Grand Falls, losing one canoe in the trip.

Drowned When Schooner Sank.

On the strength of the identification by seaman John Bennett, sole survivor of the crew of the schooner Annie Roberts of the dead body picked up on the shore near St. John's some days ago as that of Wm. Francis, cook of the ill-fated schooner, the coroners jury at No. 6 Saturday evening rendered a verdict to the effect that the body was that of Francis and that he came to his death by drowning when the schooner sank. Coroner Ogilvie conducted the enquiry.—Gloucester Gazette.

ROYAL

Luxuries.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slish." A luxury is something which is a pleasure this year but will become a necessity next year.

Man can get along without luxuries and as long as he does so he is safe. But as soon as he adopts a luxury he cannot get along without it and has to classify it thereafter as "living expenses."

When man first began his variegated career, food and water were the only necessities, and a bed of nice soft leaves was a luxury. But after he had bedded his family down in furs for a few weeks a bed became a necessity and whenever he tried to lodge the job of gathering it on a cold rainy night his wife threatened to leave him on the ground of non-support.

Ever since then man has been industriously acquiring luxuries and then industriously accumulating enough money to continue them as necessities. There was a time when a fork was a novelty, and the man who owned one gave parties at which each guest was allowed to experiment with the new one. Now no girl can get married unless she has corded up several pounds of solid silver, meat, dessert, oyster, fish, lobster, soup and ice cream forks.

The first man who wore a plug hat in England got great pleasure from wearing it while his friends came slowly to a boil from envy. Now plug hats are a crushing burden all over the island and men who cannot earn the money to buy one frequently jump in the dock to end their sufferings.

Up to a few days ago the telephone was a luxury and people used it with pride and satisfaction in order to promote their pleasure. Now the world is full of appetite men who would gladly tear the telephone out by the roots and bid it several miles away with a low hissing sound if they could get along without it.

The automobile, two years ago was the world's greatest luxury. Now people sit idly at home while the country club dance goes gaily on because no friend has happened by with a limousine and they have forgotten how to use their feet.

If luxuries would stay put they would be very nice. But it is the luxury which creeps into our hearts and pockets and becomes a grim necessity that has sent the cost of living after the aeroplane record.

Recognizing these great principles, our governments should pay so much for honesty that it would have to be classed as a luxury—after which it would speedily become a necessity and we would all live happily ever after.

U.S. to Enforce Fishing Law.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Complaints against Canadian, Japanese and Russian fishermen invading Alaskan waters for halibut, have led Secretary Redfield to include in his estimates for the department of commerce an appropriation of $100,000 to purchase one sea going vessel, one light draft tug and six rapid motor boats to enforce the alien fishing law. For additional employees he asks $8,500,000.

The department now has no vessel to use for this purpose, and the secretary points out that when a government official has to visit an Alaskan cannery or fishery to see that the law is being observed, "his only means of transportation is a boat owned or run by the very company or person that may be violating the law."

The fisheries of Alaska yield annually more than $18,000,000, while almost $35,000,000 is invested in the salmon industry, which employs 18,000 men.

Dogs Guarded Dead Priest

One Animal Led the Way to Woods Where Body Lay.

Mobile, Nov. 22.—The body of Fr. Velasquez, a professor in the monastery at Rosaryville, La., was found today, guarded by a small dog, in the woods near the institution. Another dog led the searching party to the place. The priest had been missing since Saturday, and death was due to heart disease.

The dogs were fast friends of the priest. Nero, the larger, went to the monastery at 4 o'clock this morning and began to howl and whine, at the same time tugging at those who had arisen as a result of the commotion. When followed, he led several priests to where the dead man lay. The little dog was found whining over the body.

Father Velasquez was 58 years old and was the first rector of the University of Manila after the Spanish-American war.

New York, Nov. 24.—The total cost of the Fusion campaign that resulted in the election of John Purroy Mitchell as mayor of New York was $129,719, according to the report of Charles L. Bernheim treasurer of the citizens' municipal committee made public this morning. Among the large contributors to the fund were Andrew Carnegie, $7,500, Jacob H. Schiff, $6,000, and Cleveland H. Dodge, Geo. W. Perkins and John D. Rockefeller, $5,000 each. Many women contributed.

STOP Coughing.

How often do you awake during the night and have an attack of "Coughing"? Don't you find that the cough is caused from a tickling sensation in the throat? What is the cause of this tickling sensation? It is because you contracted a cold in some simple way and did not trouble about it. The cold has developed to a "cough" and now you must try and obtain some remedy to stop this "cough." If you do not do this you are making a great mistake. A mistake which is often the cause of regret for the rest of your life.

If you have a "cough or cold" try a bottle of Stafford's Phosphate Cough Cure; also mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and Camphorated Oil in a saucer, warm slightly, inhale a place of thick flannel with some, and apply to chest and throat. You will find relief at once.

The large quantity of these two preparations having been sold this year prove them to be genuine. Prepared only by DR. STAFFORD & Son, St. John's, Nfld., Manufacturers of "Three Specials" and "Stafford's Liniment."
