The Supreme Law

It has always been recognized that the safety of the State is the supreme law, and conditions brought about by the Great War have extended in many directions the application of this principle. The railways in Great Britain have been taken over by the State. Factories have been comman deered for munition works, and other factories are being controlled and more than half the profits of the management turned into the revenue. Thousands of steam vessels, motor boats, motor roadsters and horses have also been seized and applied to the public need. The greed of those who control the meat trade was met by the British and French Governments commissioning the Board of Trade to enter into competition with them and commandeer many steamers which carry meats. There is a general topsy-turvy of the economic ideas which have guided statesmen since the days of Adam Smith, and could the men of the old Manchester school come from their graves and watch the doings of to-day, they would find principles in practice, as a necessity of the times, that would shock them back to their graves The war is teaching the nation much that will not be forgotten when Peace reigns once again, and particularly that the laws of the old school of Political Economy are not un-unchangeable as was claimed of the arrested under warrant charged with was occupied a part of this forenoon in the hearing of a unique case. Inspector General Sullivan had summoned a city mechanic for violating two sub-sections of the Motor Car Rules and Regulations, one of which was for driving a motor car at night time stern foremost up over a hill, thereby showing a wrong light. lefendant gave as his reason that he had run short of gasoline and that when such a contingency arises the driving of a car backwards will solve the difficulty and that was why he resorted to the method, but stated he had no intention of breaking the law. Some technicalities were discussed, but the violation was proven and the defendant fined $2 or 7 days and costs for the breach of this sub-section.

Journalists are Now Paying Visit to Trenches.

London, Sept. 15.—Canadian journalists now visiting the front will certainly not complain of having seen nothing. London, Sept. 15.-Canadian jour-

Sir Max Aitken, assisted by Major Manley Sims and Captain Hesketh Pritchard, has arranged a tour which in point of compressing much into a few days will equal the recent visit of Premier Borden and General Hughes.

The journalists were received at the British headquarters by General Rob ertson, chief of staff, subsequently visiting the hospitals, the machinegun school and the aviation ground. The whole of to-day is being spent in the Canadian trenches.

The party ran across a company of munition workers from England making a similar trip, who likely will

Responsible officers talked frankly offered readily information concern-00 the full the Premier and Minister of 2 00 | Militia in everything they have said concerning the future of the British forces in the field.

By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Siwash." Style is something which looks so

It is a sort of bacillus which afflicts clothes, furniture, houses, automobiles and the womanly form. When a thing is stylish, it is beautiful for a limited engagement, like an ancient actress with a talented press agent.

cost of living to soar. It makes great deal of the difference between a happy, contented life on $12 a wee ahead of the wolf on $200 a month.

A well-built dining-room table will last for fifty years, but the style generally wears off in four seasons. This is why a great many families are growing fat off of golden oak tables which they have bought second-hand, at a great bargain, from other families who have had to sacrifice said tables in order to make the first payment on a new table with a darker complexion and 1915 model legs. 1 00

When a moth getts into a closet and raises a happy family in a flan nel skirt the housewife shouts with despair and tries to call out the militia. Yet twice a year a new style gets into the show windows of the land and ruins $100,000,000 worth of perfectly good clothes-and nobody complains much.

Every woman cannot be continuously beautiful because of styles. To day the thin woman may be a willowy dream of grace, but next year the designers will hang a new variety of clothes on her and she will have to buy twenty-three pounds of excelsior in order to bulge in the right 00 | places.

There are fifty-seven; different 27 05 levels of style, each one of which is being attained with great effort by families which can't afford it. Those who are devoting their harassed lives to being stylish should remember that just as soon as they are rich enough to maintain themselves comfortably in Style No. 22, Style No. 23 will move around just out of reach in front of them and make them perfectly miserable until they get it.

For this season, American families should adopt "Let Swell Enough Alone" and live up to it, even though the family next door turns up its nos so high that they can't shed rain.

AMERICAN SHIPS TO CARRY GRAIN.

Ottawa, Sept. 9 .- If there is any shortage of vessels to carry grain on the Great Lakes this season, the regulations will be relaxed to allow American vessels to carry grain from one Canadian port to another Canadian port. This was allowed last year. Quite a number of Canadian lake vessels have been put on the Atlantic service because of the large number of ocean vessels taken over by the Admiralty. A good deal will, therefore, depend this year, on the number of American iron ore vessels Miss Sarah R. Gulliford, or Hant's Harbor, who was formerly Methodist School Teacher at New Chelsea, Prinity Bay, and who is now Sunday ry immense quantities of grain in the in the grain trade. Usually they car-
