Mrs. T. J. L. Orme, Port Stanley, died suddenly yesterday morning. In the afternoon Mr. Orme received a telegram from Chicago announcing the death that same morning of Mrs. Orme's mother. The first named was the wife of Mr. T. J. L. Orme, one of Port Stanley's merchants, who recently had his store and dwelling destroyed by fire, and who had the misfortune to lose his aged mother in the flames. Mrs. Orme leaves five children, the youngest being only a few days old. Her death was due to apoplery superinduced by her recent illness. Chairman McRobert's Treat.

After last night's session of No. 1 committee of the Board of Education the members repaired at the invitation of Chairman McRobert to Bradford's oyster parlors, where they were treated to an oyster supper. Seated around the board were: Messrs. McRobert (in the chair), Trustee Dewar, Trustee Dr. Campbell, Treasurer Pope, Trustee Craig, Trustee Saunders, Trustee Alexander, Principal Merchant, Inspector Carson, Trustee Griffin, Secretary McElheran, C. B. Edwards, of the Institute staff, and representatives of the press. After the disposal of the viands Mr. Dewar introduced the toast list by proposing in a few appropriate words the health of Chairman McRobert. The latter made a modest and characteristic reply, in which, after reviewing the work of the year, he thanked Principal Merchant, the retiring chairman, Mr. Dewar, Treasurer Pope and Secretary Mc-Elheran, for their assistance in the discharge of his duties. Mr. Alexander then briefly proposed the health of the retiring chairman of the board, Mr. Dewar, and expressed great regret at his withdrawal. While speaking to the toast, he said that he looked forward with pleasure to the time when Mr. McRobert would be chairman of the board, and he felt that it was pretty well understood who the for 1894 would be, and Mr. McRobert would no doubt make as good a record for himself in that capacity as he had done in a similar connection on No. 1. Mr. Alexander spoke strongly of the needs of a university and a normal school for London. Mr. Dewar, in reply, echoed the sentiments expressed by Mr. Alexander re the want of a normal school and a university, and he also spoke well of Mr. McRobert, and expressed the hope that he would occupy the position of chair-man of the board for 1894. He gave Mr. McRobert much good advice gained by his own experience. In response to the toast of No. 1 committee, with regard to Mr. McRobert, Mr. Griffin, among other things, said: "He's a hustler from the word go. Dr. Campbell: "He has made a good chairman." Mr. Craig: "We have never had as good a chairman." Mr. Saunders: "I fully indorse what has been said." Messrs. Merchant, Carson, McElheran, Pope and Edwards replied in a happy strain to the toast of "Our Officers. "The Press" was also honored and the gathering broke up at iolly good fellow." Discovered in Time. The other evening about 7 o'clock, as an employe of the C. P. R. was walking on the track near Maitland street, he noticed that a flat car had been pushed along the side track towards the main line. When the car reached the switch, which was set for the main line, one end had run off the track. The case was reported to the authorities, and Constable Consent was put on the track of the miscreants. It was put on the track of the miscreants. It was learned that a number of small boys had been playing around the cars on the day in question, and further investigation | Jan. 6. At From. Glasgow Umbria. Queenstown. New York goods. fastened the offense to Justin Dodd, aged 16 years, and Frederick Duncan, one year his junior. They were arrested last night, and Westminster, against Duncan Ferguson, a this afternoon at 1 o'clock the boys were brought before Squire Jarvis. The pleaded guilty, but both said they never let the brokes on the car loose, and they were unaware that the car had run off the track or ever went so far as it had. The magistrate let the boys off on suspended sentence, giving them a warning which they will not soon forget. It was a very fortunate thing that the accident was discovered in the time it was, as had the car remained there an hour louger it might have caused a collision with the west bound express which would have caused a groat loss of property and endangered many dives.

SOMEONE BLUNDERED

The French Say They Took the British for Arabs

Because They Were So Tanned-Six British Killed and Nineteen Wounded.

London, Jan. 6.-Further developments have been received from Freetown, capital of Sierra Leone, of the killing of British troops by the French. The British were encamped in the Connohdistrict, near Warina. The camp was within the British sphere. At daylight on Dec. 23 they were attacked by the French forces, consisting of 30 Senegalese sharpshooters and 1,200 natives, who were headed by Lieut. Moritz. When they were fired upon the British at once responded, and the French shortly afterwards retired. Lieut. Moritz was wounded and captured by the British. He was questioned by his captors as to his reasons for attacking them, and explained that they thought the British troops, who were blacks, were members of Sofa's tribes and that their European officers, who were deeply tanned by the African sun, were Arabs. Lieut. Moritz died from the effects of his wounds.

The British loss was less than at first reported, only six of the privates being killed. The report of the killing of Capt. Lendg, Lieuts. Wroughton and Liston and sergeant was correct. Nineteen of the British troops were seriously wounded. The loss of the French force is not known. The British force remains at Warina.

Another report of the engagement says it took place by moonlight and that it was owing to this fact that Lieut. Moritz was not able to distinguish the uniforms of the British troops. The latter were taken by surprise. The confusion in the British camp was great and this was added to by careless firing on the part of the British. The latter were well within British terri-
