The days wore on the Derby came and passed. "Woe worth the coward that ever he was Who did not dare to draw the sword be-fore he blew the horn."

Poor Gilbert hated the very sight of Flippant now. He wondered he could ever have listened patiently to that "beguiling tongue," or looked without loathing on those hyacinthine locks, the pride ing on those hyacinthine locks, the pride of a coiffeur's art. He said as much to Holyhead one day, as they turned out of St. James street, and the energetic peer at once avowed his opinion that "Flippant was a d—d old humbug. But, after all, Gilbert, mv boy, women are very much alike!" And then he fell to talking of Bravoura. Of Bravoura! and Gilbert's type all the time was Ada Latimer!

He had now but one object in the day, for rather one in every two days. This was his walk across the park with his enslaver. Three time a week for ten minutes he could converse with Mrs. Latimer. Thirty minutes a week, or two hours in a month. At this rate he could enjoy her society for one day in every calendar year; or about six weeks of his whole life, supposing he lived to seventy.

calendar year; or about six weeks of his whole life, supposing he lived to seventy. And for this he was content to barter comfort, liberty, friends, ambition, everything he had in the world, and hur himself on the exchange. Surely value received is but a relative term, incapable of prograte measurement or calculation. This was one of Gilbert's white days. A late breakfast to shorten the time as much as possible: a restless stroll out of doors to survey his ground, as it were, and enjoy by anticipation the delights of his afternoon: a total neglect of all business and duties, and a great disinclination for society; then an elaborate toilet afternoon drew on which unfortion for society; then an elaborate toilet as the afternoon drew on, which unfortunately, with a well-made good-looking subject, who, moreover, always looked like a gentleman could not be spun out to any great length; afterward an early appearance to share the solitude of the park with the son of Péleus, which was unnecessary as it was wearisome incounnecessary as it was wearisome inas-much as she never came till nearly seven o'clock, to be followed by two long ner-

He used to think the clock at the corner must have stopped, so provokingly slow was the progress of that shining minute-hand. What misgivings, too, lest she should not pass after all! She might be ill—she might have gone out of town—she might be anything that was most unlikely. He would bear the suspense no longer. This should be the last time. Today he would tell her, come what might, and put a stop to it one way or the other. Yes, no woman alive should make a fool of him beyond a certain point. At last! There she was! God bless her! Today he would certainly fell her!

But he didn't tell her, nevertheless, for she never gave him an opportunity, because she loved him; and he never made one for the same reason.

For forty minutes or so after the walk cause she loved him; and he never made one for the same reason.

For forty minutes or so after the walk he was soothed and calm and tolerably comfortable. Then the reaction began again; and the worry and fidget to last for another seven-and-forty hours.

There were the white days. The black ones were ditto repeated without the intervening period of delight. They passed very slowly, and he was glad when they were over. Yet am I not sure that they were the most uncomfortable after all.

after all.

Now, it may seem strange that a gentleman of Mr. Orme's standing and exobtaining a tete-a-tete with the of his affections, who was moreover her own mistress; and I am not prepared to say that Gilbert did not know perfectly well where she resided, although, with intuitive delicacy, he had although with the question of herself else aithough with intuitive delicacy, he had never asked the question of herself, else where would be the use of those functionaries in white hats and red waist-coats, who, with singular attention to the "unities." adopt the very colors of the postoffice directory and court guide? Indeed, he had walked past the house many a night when the moon was up, and Ada fast asleep; but he had never ventured to call upon her, as he would have done long ere this, had she been a duchess; nor had he ever intruded on the music lessons in Belgrave Square or the Villa, though often sorely tempted Villa, though often sorely tempted oth. This backwardness explains it at both. This backwardness explains itself at once to those who know by experience the thoughtfulness and consideration of true affection, high to the Flippant school it would an an inexcusable waste of time. The "faint heart never won fair lady," may be as true as any other proverb, but the stouter the heart the fainter it is likely to prove in any aggression on the feelings of her it really loves. So Gilbert contented himself perforce with his alternate afternoons, and longed and pondered and resolved to take so decisive measures, and didn't.

At last, one dull afternoon when the

which he cursed with improper energy, and wishing he could annihilate the intervening period that must elapse before

She must have done it on purpose. Heartless !flickle! unfeeling! No, he would not blame her. He would give her one more chance. He would wait for two days, and then it would be a week, a whole week, since he had seen her. If she didn't come then he would—what would he do? He was fain to postpone the contemplation of such a contingency. would he do? He was fain to postpone the contemplation of such a contingency. So he chafed and fretted and waited a whole week; and still she didn't come. Ada, too, had in the meantime been living a strange, unsettled life of alternate hopes and misglvings, dashed with no inconsiderable twinges of uncertainty and self-reproach. Yet through the motaley web there ran one golden thread of secret joy, which she prized the more that it seemed impossible to disentangle it from the hopeless confusion through which it twined. Woman-like, she concealed her feelings even from herself, satisfied and more than satisfied with away.

"Oh, don't you know?" replied Bella, still intent upon her chicken. "They say he's engaged to her; and I'm sure the other night nobody could be more attentive. He's very nice, too. You met him here once, and sat next him at dinner. Don't you remember?"

Remember! Poor Ada! Luckily her companion was so engrossed with the merry thought, that she did not remark how paler and paler grew the music mistress' cheek; but the observant butler, who held stoutly by his master's opinion that there is nothing like old sherry, filled her glass by stealth to the brim.

How the music lesson went on after How the music lesson went on after this, Ada knew no more than I do. Fortunately for her, a strong leavening of indignation, among her other feelings, prevented her giving way. "Then he was engaged to be married all the time," she thought—and if she was pale before, her cheeks burned with fiery blushes now—"all the time he professed to be so glad to see me. And I—foo! that I was—meeting him and watching for him and longing so to see him. What must he think of me? What must he have thought of me all along?" She would think of me? What must he have thought of me all along?" She would have liked to hide herself for a year. She was more angry with herself than with him. She was hurt, and sick at with him. She was hurt, and sick at heart.

But she must go through her lessons. From Regent's Park to Bayswater, from Bayswater to Knightsbridge, from Knightsbridge to Belgrave Square. There is no bridge to Belgrave Square. There is no respite for the bees, and herein they sting themselves less poignantly with their sorrows than do the idle drones. Ere she sat down to the plano with Lady Gertrude, she began to think it might not be true. Women read other women easily enough, and the young lady's manner was scarcely that of a fiancee. Where was the dreamy look, the unconscious smile, the atmosphere of happiness that diffuses itself around those who have attained their goal? Lady of happiness that diffuses itself around those who have attained their goal? Lady Gertrude was quick, lively, energetic as usual; completely engrossed in her lesson, somewhat sarcastic also, and not the least in the world like a maiden pondering over her absent lover. Probably the whole report was but one of the whole report was but one of the idle rumors of the world. It made her cross-examine herself, though, pretty searchingly, the while her pupil warbled a cavatina, making two mistakes and Zelica by Wilk. a false note undetected, and she came to the conclusion that at least the walks must be discontinued henceforth; she must break herself of this folly, for her. must break herself of this folly, for her, own sake, for his sake; ah! then it would be easier; and so, no more sunshine for her, but the old gloomy life, darker than ever it had been before.

It seemed hard, very hard. She would have liked to put her head in her hands and cry till she got better. Lady Gertrude was singing false and unrebuked. A footman walked up to the piano with a note, "Mr. Orme's servant waiting for an answer, my lady."

Again the cold, sick feeling crept round

Ada's heart. Her pupil stopped singing, read the missive, and flung it aside with the careless observation. "No answer." As it rested on the music stand, Mrs. Latimer could not avoid seeing his handartimer could not avoid seeing his hand-writing on the half-turned page; it be-gan, "Dearest Gertrude."

This was the reason the walks were discontinued; and Gilbert was driven to such a pitch of monomania as I am powerless to describe.

World's Letter Writers.

People who speak English write twothirds of the letters of the world, says Bradstreet's. There are substantially 500,000,000 persons speaking colloquially one or the other of the ten or twelve chief modern languages, and of these about 25 per cent., or 125,000,000 persons, speak English. About 20,000,000 Fred S. Wedgewood. r.h., by Speak Russian, 75,000,000 German, 55,000,000 French, 45,000,000 Spanish, 35,000 Captain Sphinx, b.g. Had Bleeding, Itching Piles

And Now Claims That the Best Thing in the World for Piles Is Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The doctors are wrong. They usually claim that an operation, with all its risk, pain and expense, is the only cure for piles. We can prove by the statements of thousands of good, honest men and women that Dr. Chase's Ointment not only promptly relieves the suffering from piles, but also positively cures this dreadful ailment. It frequently cures after the knife has

Mr. J. F. Miller, who is employed as cooper by the Kennedy & Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states:
"I believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the best thing in the world for piles. I say this because it has positively and thoroughly cured me of itching, bleeding piles, and this after all other remedies I could procure had failed. I played, won. In five out of the six can recommend this ointment to anyone suffering from piles, knowing that it will certainly cure."

GOLF.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS. Glenview Golf Course, Chicago, Ill., uly 17 .- Almost ideal weather conditions prevailed yesterday when match play for the amateur golf championshp was resumed. Chief interest centered in the match between Champion Travis and E. M. Byers, of Allegheny, and that between Walter Egan and Geo. A. Ormiston, whose score of 79 in the qualifying round was one of the biggest surprises of the tournament. Larger galleres followed both games. Yes-terday's match play brought the tournament down to the semi-finals. E. M. Byers, of the Allegheny club, played the prettiest golf in the nine last holes that has ever been seen in an amateur championship tournament, and added an "ex" yesterday to Champion W. J. Travis' title, defeating him by one hole. Byers' medal score of 35 for the last nine holes has only been beaten by one or two professionals. His game was simply unbeatable. Travis played par golf, or better, in fact, but this was not enough to defeat the Pittsburg

BOXING. POOL ROOMS ARE CAUTIOUS.

New York, July 18.—The local baseball and fight pool rooms have posted the odds on the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight, and they are laying against Jeffries, offering odds of three to five on him and six to five against Fitz.
The odds of three to five against Jeffries are undoubtedly liberal, and quite a number of bets have been made in New York on the big champion. The poolroom managers, however, believe that Fitz stands a good chance to win, and they will let him run for their money. Form may count for little in pugilism, yet it is the only thing that can be consulted when figuring on a fight, and on form Jeffries should make quick work of Lanky Bob. Fitz can fight but one way, and that is to be the aggressor, and that is the sort of customer that Jeffries can trim quickat 50 to 1, in the third race, was the only outsider to keep the choices from sweeping the board. Cameron, who was always well up, easily defeated against age and its effects. Of course, Fitz can hit hard. He has proven that on numerous occasions, but so can Jeffries, and perhaps he can hit a little harder than Fitz, Jeffries' admirers are of the opinion that the champion could take a good wallop on the jaw from Fitz without going down. Ten rounds should settle the question of supremacy, and at the end of that time it looks like a certainty for Jeffries to be declared the victor.

CARTER WANTS TO FIGHT. Frank Erne, Kid Carter and Kid McPartland were all at the Fort Erie track yesterday, says the Buffald Carter bore few marks of his Times. recent encounter with Weinig. Manager Macias says Carter is in great trim and is going to keep the middleweights hustling from now on. "Jim-my Handler and Jack Bonner challenged Carter at the ringside," said Macias, "and we will take them up after awhile. We will take all the men in our class, but we first want to fight Tommy Ryan, for the championship. I hear he is back in Kansas City. We will challenge him to fight at Fort Erie or before any club he prefers. The champion is now in Chicago, and in a few days will visit Detroit. After a brief round of calls on local friends he will go to the springs, where he will take a course of baths, staying probably ten days. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when these diseases have their origin in disease of the stomach and its allied organs. Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, and the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die. Then a neighbor said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles, in about six weeks. I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

THE fact that so many lawyers, writers, preachers and thinkers are devoted to coffee has caused it to be called "the intellectual beverage." Coffee of high grade is unquestionably a great stimulant to brain-workers, and Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is especially valuable. If you would be a brilliant thinker, drink it. A pound of such coffee is worth two pounds of ordinary coffee! Why not give it a trial the next time you buy coffee?

LACROSSE. SATURDAY'S GAME.

On Saturday London will meet Paris in a scheduled match at Tecumseh Park. The local team has got down to solid work after their week of holidays on form. It is said that the "homebrews" will have a much stronger team than they have yet presented this season, and they are coming up full of confidence. There is quite a bunch of Paris money already in sight, and the backers of that team are apparently willing to wager that they will get with Leddy's men on their own grounds. There must be some reason for this, not seen on the surface, as Paris in form should not be able to trim London at any stage. A solution of the mystery may be found in the fact that a couple of the New West-minster team, which played for the Minto cup, are now in Paris, and it is likely that they will be found in the line-up on Saturday. The match promises to be one of the closest and most exciting of the season. The local team had a good practice last night and the players did some useful work. will be no repetition of the St. game, and from now out the London team intends to win every match. Brown Jackson, of Seaforth, will act as referee on Saturday afternoon.

LAWN BOWLING. THE SEAFORTH TOURNAMENT. Seaforth, Ont., July 18.-The eighth annual tournament of the Seaforth Bowling Club was held on Tuesday and Wednesday, and was a grand success. The trophy match was won by R. S. Hays' rink, of Seaforth, with W. Jackson, of Clinton, second. The winbrilliant finish. With four ends to play, the score was 19 to 5 in favor of the Brussels rink, skipped by Ross. The score was tied on the eighteenth end, and in the nineteenth London won by a shot. The consolation game was won by W. Pickard, of Seaforth; D. Ross, of Brussels, second. Twenty-five rinks were in attendance.

CHICAGO OLYMPIAN GAMES. Montreal, July 18. — News has been received here that three Montrealers have been given places on the final committee on athletics, which has been named thus far to take charge of the athletic games at the Olympian exhibition, which will take place in Chicago during the summer of 1904. The final committee embraces all the most prominent men interested in sports in various parts of America, and to it will be added men prominent in European sports. The three men in question are sports. Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, Mr. E. Herb Brown, and Mr. Tom Wall. Dr. McKenzie's great interest in sports of any sort, both for the pleasure to be derived from them, and the scientific interest they have for him, is well known. Mr. E. Herb Brown, as the secretary of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, and as secretary of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union for years, is a most excellent choice, and Mr. Tom Wall, who is the representative of the Spaldings, Mr. A. G. Spalding being chairman of the final committee, is well known in the United States on account of the interest he ing counties, as soon as the wheat is popular there.

LIGHTEST WOOD TO BE FOUND IN THE WORLD

Weighs Less Than Cork and Grows in Missouri.

Deep in the bogs and swamps of Southeastern Missouri, in Dunklin and Butler Counties, where the land is never dry, and water from one to six feet deep stands perpetually in the forests, there grows a rare and curious tree. The natives know it as the corkwood, or cork, Science has given it a longer name, the Leitneria floridana-floridana because it was first discovered in Florida along ning rink was composed of J. L. In the semi-finals of being found, and hardly rises to the digthis match, the London rink made a nity of a tree. Only in Southeast Missouri, where it reaches a height of fifteen to twenty feet, and a diameter of two to five inches, is it really a tree. What makes the corkwood so remarkable is its exceeding lightness. Beyond a doubt it is, as Mr. William Trelease, of a doubt it is, as Mr. William Trelease, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has shown, the lightest tree in weight that grows. Its wood weighs less than cork. It is so light that the natives use it to make floats for their fishing nets. And yet its wood, though so spongy that one may easily sink one's finger nail in it, is far tougher than cork. The specific gravity of corkwood, as learned from careful tests made by Professor Nipher in St. Louis, is 207. The roots are even lighter than the stem; a test showed them to have the astonishingly low specific gravity of 151.

A further idea of the lightness of the corkwood may be gained by a comparison

A further idea of the lightness of the corkwood may be gained by a comparison with other woods. The great majority of woods range between .400 and .500. Cork itself is .240. The tree that approaches closest to the corkwood in lightness is the golden fir tree, which grows in the swamps around Tampa Bay, and along the Indian River, Florida. Its specific grayity according to Sargent is .2616. the Indian River, Fiorida, its specific gravity, according to Sargent, is .2616. In comparison with the corkwood, which is the lightest wood, with its specific gravity of .207, may be placed the heaviest wood known, the black ironwood of the control of the specific gravity of .207, which is spec Florida, whose specific gravity is

The Gleaners.

The old custom of gleaning in the harvest fields, which recalls the Biblical story of Ruth and Naomi, is not obsolete in England and in Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and the neighbormaking hockey and lacrosse gathered in the late days of August there may be seen in the newly cleared fields, numbers of women and chil dren diligently picking up one by on the scattered ears and forming them into neat little sheaves, which they carry in their hands until large enoug to be bound up. When the dayligh fails, all the booty is bound up it cloths and carried home on the heads of the gleaners. At home they thrash it out by hand and sell the grain or use it for their chickens. The gathering of a half-peck is usually a full day's work for a child, and often a woman spends the whole day in gathering very little more. Gleaning, however is looked upon somewhat in the light of a picnic. The mother and children leave home in the morning, take with them food for the day, and stay out in the fields until nightfall.
