weakness in the steel stocks. Both common and preferred broke sharply, their sellers being room traders, who were successful subsequently in reaching a good many stop orders. There was no reliable news, but there were rumors that cuts had been made in the prices of iron and steel products. Another weak stock was Metropolitan. The statement made by Mr. Vreeland in regard to the earnings in 1901 and 1902 have started a bead impression. The market generally sold off rather earsily, and buying continues scarce; in fact, the market is, if possible, more professional than yesterday. Sales to noon, 350,100 shares.
