VITALITY REGAINED KIDNEYS CURED

Health Restored by "Fruit-a-tives"

Hagersville, Ont., Aug. 26, 1913.

"About two years ago I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys and liver were not doing their work and I became all run-down. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised I decided to try them.

"Their effect, I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the results all that could have been expected.

"My liver and kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever enjoyed, and I unhesitatingly give you this testimonial for publication if you wish."

B. A. KELLY.

In hundreds of letters received by the Fruit-a-tives Company, the same expression is used, "Fruit-at-ives is the best kidney remedy in the world." At any rate, these tablets have proved the best to the hundreds of men and women who have been cured by taking them. Fifty cents a box, six for $2.50, trial size 25 cents. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

LEGAL QUERIES

SUBSCRIBER.—A sells a business to B, who fails in it and leaves the place. Is A at liberty to go back to the business again, or can B, having given up the business, prosecute A for breach of contract? Answers.—If A agreed not to go into business again he is liable to an action for breach of contract, but the damages would be nominal upon the facts stated.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you, if you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

HUSBAND TIRED OF SEEING HER SUFFER

Procured Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which made His Wife a Well Woman.

Middletown, Pa.—"I had headache, backache and such awful bearing down pains that I could not be on my feet at times and I had organic inflammation so badly that I was not able to do my work. I could not get a good meal for my husband and one child. My neighbors said they thought my suffering was terrible.

"My husband got tired of seeing me suffer and one night went to the drug store and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me I must take it. I can't tell you all I suffered and I can't tell you all that your medicine has done for me. I was greatly benefited from the first and it has made me a well woman. I can do all my housework and even helped some of my friends as well. I think it is a wonderful help to all suffering women. I have got several to take it after seeing what it has done for me."—Mrs. EMMA ESPENSHADE, 219 East Main St., Middletown, Pa.

The Pinkham record is a proud and honorable one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FEDERATION OF LABOR PLANS MANY REFORMS

Resolution Passed Urging Probe Into Conditions On Pennsylvania Railway.

Seattle, Nov. 18.—The American Federation of Labor convention devoted the morning to the resolution reflecting the sentiment of the executive council, which was adopted on every point. Upon a resolution to open the postal banks to "full use by the people," however, the insurgents mustered 93 votes to the administration's 53.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Advocating construction and repair of all naval vessels in navy yards.

Urging the industrial relations committee to investigate conditions on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Urging higher wages in navy yards, and a Saturday half-holiday for government employees.

Requesting the secretary of the treasury to enforce the law against the importation of convict-made goods.

Demanding government supervision of unloading of vessels so as to protect the lives of longshoremen.

Favoring direct investment of postal savings deposits in school district bonds.

The report that President Gompers was considering retirement and would be offered the post of historian of the federation, and editor of the official paper was denied by Gompers.

GOVT. GIVES $25,000 FOR LAKE DISASTER

Amount Will Supplement the Money Raised by Cities.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Nov. 18. — A Government grant of $25,000 in aid of the relief fund of the sufferers of the Great Lakes disasters was voted at a cabinet council yesterday. It will be utilized to supplement the amount raised by public subscriptions for the same object.

The marine department is sending out one of its tugs to try and locate the steamer Leafield, supposed to have been wrecked on Lake Superior.

WANTED FOR MURDER

Joseph Larue Captured in Detroit for Alleged Killing of Wife at Soo.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Detroit, Nov. 18.—After enjoying several months of liberty since his escape from jail at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Joseph Larue, aged 24, wanted on a charge of wife murder, was arrested on the street here last night by detectives from police headquarters. Larue made no attempt to deny his identity, and expressed his willingness to return at once to the "Soo" and stand his trial. He was turned over to the Windsor police, and is now lodged in jail there awaiting the arrival of an officer from the "Soo." Larue says he "just walked out" of jail, and he boarded a freight steamer and lay at the "Soo" for several days after he made his escape.

KILLED BY AUTO

Little Girl Was on Way to Store for Doll's Cap.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Eight-year-old May Gordon, of 600 College street, was fatally injured yesterday evening, when she was knocked down by an automobile driven by Frank Ketchel, of 433 Palmerston avenue. She was taken to the Western Hospital immediately after the accident, but died fifteen minutes after being admitted.

The accident occurred on Clinton street near College street. With a companion of her own age, the child had gone from her home to a store to purchase some wool, with which she was going to knit a doll's cap for her chum's doll.

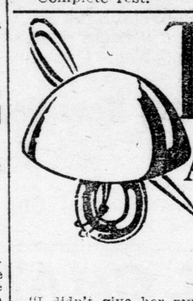
Fatality of Whooping Cough

Many parents think lightly of whooping cough, and treat it as a necessary evil, not giving the child who has it any special attention.

The seriousness of whooping cough was emphasized by the Medical Health Officer in Toronto a few months ago, when he reported 14 deaths during the month from whooping cough, and only ten from scarlet fever, typhoid fever and measles combined.

So many people write to us about the relief and cure of whooping cough by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine that we can recommend it with the greatest confidence.

It loosens the cough, aids expectoration, and by its soothing influence prevents the terrible paroxysms of coughing which are so distressing to witness, and which wear away the strength of the child. By using this treatment the disease is held in check, and cured in a few weeks, instead of months. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the bottle you buy. There are many imitations.



THE RED BUTTON

A MYSTERY STORY OF NEW YORK

By WILL IRWIN

Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I didn't give her my real reason. I was glad," she pursued, "to hear you burst out in that sincere way when I said you killed Hanska. I put that in for a test, and you stood it. Now, sit there and listen to what else your sister said, and see if any of that could have been worked out by detectives. She says you didn't kill Hanska, but he died of apoplexy and fell on the knife you were holding against him."

Estrilla turned his great eyes and again moistened his lips as though to speak, but he held to his nerve and made no sound.

"She says that you carried out that box of jewels with the cover open, and that a diamond buckle dropped out as you were passing through the door. And when she came back in your clothes after you telephoned to her she picked it up. The jewels are in Caracas. You dropped the box in the river. Could anybody patch that together? Could anybody guess that?"

"Then if he died of apoplexy—if I didn't kill him—why would they arrest me?" asked Estrilla.

"Young man," said Rosalie, "how could you prove it?"

Innocently and directly, Estrilla came out with what amounted to his confession.

"He was always in danger from apoplexy—my sister knew that. And undoubtedly it was a mortal seizure. For his hands were going toward his head, not toward the knife. Even when he fell and died, his hands were still going up, not down. I have seen doctors. I have read about apoplexy in every medical book in the public library. And when I saw him last there was blood in his nostrils."

Rosalie nodded.

"I saw that, too. My, but coroners' physicians are dense!" she said. "Now, I've got to talk hard and straight. You were in the act of burglary. It don't make any difference that you had a right to burgle—no jury would recognize that. The coroner's physician never thought of anything but that stab wound—never thought to look for apoplexy—case seemed too plain. You and I are the only people who thought about that bloody nose. The body's cremated, and even if it wasn't—well, we won't go into that. Why, Juan Perez, they'd laugh at you. Do you see? Don't you get your fix?"

He was trembling, and now he made a pitiful movement with his hands, as though to steady his head.

"So you must get away."

"But my sister——"

"Now, hold on to yourself. I've got to talk awful to make you see this thing. She didn't kill him—she couldn't. Anybody could see that. A sick little thing like her hasn't the power in her to drive such a knife into a big man who's standing on his feet. No jury would swallow it. She's accessory, or something—but you can bet, Mr. Juan Perez, that an American jury ain't going to give a verdict against a sick little woman who's an accessory because she's standing by her brother. They may do that in English countries, but not here. And which do you think would be better for your sister—to go to jail until her trial, or to wait by the gate of Sing Sing and take you away some morning all dead and floppy after you'd had ten thousand volts of electricity switched down your spinal column——"

Estrilla was on his feet now, in a crisis of nerves. His eyes closed and opened to a set stare; every muscle seemed to jump.

"I thought you'd see it," said Rosalie. "I won't keep you in suspense any longer. You're going to get away. And I've fixed it. Look at this—here, take it." She pulled another paper from her muff, and handed it to Estrilla. It shook in his hands as he read.

"A seamon's paper," he said at length. "For Antonio Corri," an Italian sailor signed for the schooner Maud. He fell down a hatch this morning and broke his leg. And he can't go. You're shipping as him. I've fixed it. The captain don't know who you are. He only knows that he's got a man who must beat it out of the country, and he'll do anything for me. He lands at Halifax. He'll fix it for you to get to the next place—wherever that may be. I'm going to write him at Halifax advising him about that. And you're to tell him, so he can tell me, so I can tell your sister, where you've gone. Got any money on you?"

"Only a little."

"Well, the captain has two hundred dollars of mine for you. I want you to understand it's a loan with interest at five per cent, to be paid when it's safe. If you need any more I'll send it to the skipper—same terms. That's agreed?"

"Yes. Why do you——"

"Take all this trouble? Old fool. Now listen. There's a taxi over there discharging passengers at the Casino. We're going to flag it. We're going to take it as far as Sixth avenue, and we'll travel by elevated the rest of the way, because guards don't remember their passengers and taxicab drivers sometimes do. I ain't going to take any risks of being traced. We'll get on separate trains and meet on the dock—Pier 16½, East River. Know where to find that? Well, I'll tell you as we go. Here! Taxi!" And Rosalie waved to the chauffeur.

"Sixth avenue elevated. Nearest station," she directed.

In the midst of her minute instructions Estrilla started to thank her.

"How did you come to do this?" he said. "And how did the police ever——"

Rosalie put her mouth close to his ear. "Taxis are built funny sometimes," she whispered. "The chauffeur might hear."

He turned on her a caressing look of gratitude. Life was back in his face and motion now. And Rosalie, looking him over, was moved to speak in such general terms as no chauffeur could possibly interpret.

"What I can't understand," she said, "is how a man could live in a situation like that and be gay and natural and take risks. Dagos—Italians and Spanish and such-like, I mean—must be different. It beats me."

"We are different," said Estrilla. "I have learned that." He looked out on the serried rows of West Side apartment houses, and dropped for a second into Spanish.

"Sangre de Dios! How I shall always hate New York!"

They were drawing up at the elevated.

"Remember how to get there," she whispered before she opened the door. "Sure? Go ahead and take the first train. I'll follow on the next. Walk slow after you get off. I'll walk fast. Neither of us wants to loiter on that pier."

If Estrilla hoped that he would hear further clearance of these mysteries at the dock, he was disappointed. As he passed the gate, Rosalie shot from under shadow of a truck. She glanced to right and left. None of the roustabouts were looking or listening.

"That first gangplank," she said. "The captain's aboard expecting you. Just say to him, 'I am Corri.' He knew the rest. You'll change clothes in his cabin. He'll keep you at work below until you sail at daybreak. Go—don't thank me—go—I'm sure you'll see your sister in a year or two. Go." Now for the first time in her dialogue with him, soft emotion entered her voice. "And God be good to you!" she said. She turned him almost roughly.

"One moment," he said; "my love to my sister—oh, take care of her." His voice grew lighter then, and he almost smiled. "And tell the mantilla blanca for me that she is beautiful and good!" He walked away. When a second later he glanced back over his shoulder, she was making a rapid pace toward the dock gate.

Rosalie passed the shadow of the pier, and gained sight of the Maud's deck. She saw Estrilla go aboard, saw Captain Baldwin meet him, saw them enter the cabin together. She waited no longer.

That was a day of heavy personal expense for Rosalie. Two blocks away she took another taxicab. This time she hesitated before she gave the driver his directions.

"Hotel Cyrano, Brooklyn, first, I guess."

After a time she began talking under her breath again—repeating her last phrase to Estrilla.

"'God be good to you'—God or somebody will have to be awful good to me now." Then her thought turned and so did her speech.

"'Tell the mantilla blanca she is beautiful,' and smiling when he said it; well, there's one relieving feature, he won't break his heart over Betsy-Barbara. It was only a flirtation with him, after all. I wonder what they're made of inside—those high-cairs dagos!"

To Be Continued.

Ed. A. Tipton and H. K. Devereux are said to be at work on a plan to form a new trotting association to consist only of the mile tracks. This would not be a bad idea, as it is hard to make rules equitable for both the big and the little ovals.

One Cause of Bad Complexion—the Cure

[From Family Physician.]

"Look at a section of skin under the miscroscope and you will readily understand why cosmetics generally injure the complexion," says Dr. H. Robert Mackenzie. "The skin, smooth as it looks to the naked eye, under the glass exhibits a lacework of tiny holes, mouths of myriads of little glands. To keep the skin healthy these holes must be unobstructed, that the perspiration and natural oil can have free outlet. Should the glands be blocked up with irritating gritty particles, a common result of using powders and creams, Nature retaliates by causing sallowness, roughness, blotches or pimples.

"As a substitute for all cosmetics I recommend ordinary mercolized wax. It not only does what the various face preparations are supposed to accomplish, but its peculiar absorbent action frees the pores from the daily accumulation of impurities, also absorbing the devitalized particles of surface skin. This produces a natural, healthy, youthful complexion. One ounce of this wax, to be had at any drug store, usually suffices to rejuvenate the poorest complexion. It is put on nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings."
