THREE ARTS CLUB SEASON IS OPENED

First Meeting Held at Home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Jordan.

HONOR MISS LITTLE

Leaves Staff of Institute After Several Years' Connection.

The Three Arts club of the Institute of Musical Art held their inaugural meeting of the season last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Jordan. The meeting took the form of an informal reception to the new members of the staff. Miss Jean Walker, the president, wearing a broad-based gown with touches of blue, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Jordan in receiving the guests.

The program, which was arranged by Miss Mabel Stevens, presented the following: Misses Dorothy Pelver and Marjorie McAllister, pianists, and Misses Olive English, Eleanor Kerr and Mr. Lloyd York, vocalists.

The departure of Miss Nora Little from the staff is very much regretted, and during the evening, as a remembrance of the esteem in which she is held, Miss Jennie Steele read a letter of appreciation and Miss Hazel Taylor presented a small gift from her associates.

Supper was served from a table centered with a silver bowl of pink roses and silver candlesticks with pink shades. Misses Alberta Tord, Dorothy Davis, Jennie Steele, Gladys Roeding, Hazel Taylor and Margaret Jordan assisted in looking after the guests.

The following new teachers were welcomed to the staff: Misses Dorothy Pelver, Eleanor Wilcox, Rose Kaplan, Marjorie McAllister, Dorothy Davis, Mrs. Jessie Calhoun, Mrs. W. B. MacDermott, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest O'Dell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Milner.

Other guests included the following teachers and friends: Misses Gladys Sharpe, Mildred Chantler, Gladys Irving, Irene Foster, Dorothy Munroe, Hazel M. Taylor, Irene Burns, Alberta Tord, Mabel Stevens, Jennie Steele, Eleanor Kerr, Belle Brown, Jean Walker, Olive English, Miriam Fox, Madeline Timbrell, Marion Gray, Helen Hughes, Elizabeth Kunz, Maude Pearson, Ethelwyn Shannon, Mrs. S. P. Orth, Mrs. W. W. Rowley, Mrs. C. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Fetherson, Mr. and Mrs. George Winterbottom.

MRS. F. J. GREENAWAY, who will be nominated for alderman by the citizenship committee of the social council of women.

Queen's and McGill. The choice of Mr. Rennie as Western's delegate is a popular one, since he has made a number of friends at the university, both as leader of the Little Theatre orchestra and as an untiring committee worker in connection with many of Western's social events.

W.M.S. WILL HAVE DAY OF PRAYER

Presbyterian Women Meeting For Devotions at New St. James Church.

Presbyterian women of the city are holding a day of prayer at New St. James' church on Dec. 4. Plans for this interesting occasion were drafted at a meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society held yesterday, and Mrs. W. E. Kelly, president of the London Presbyterian W. M. S., will preside. Representatives from each of the auxiliaries in the city will participate.

The first part of the service on "The Chalmers W. M. S. and will include a silent prayer for personal dedication, an exhortation by the leader, a hymn, prayers, and a scripture lesson. The second phase of the session will be on "Home Life" and will be taken by the New St. James and Knox Presbyterian societies. It will include besides devotions a brief talk on "Christ, the Head of the Church."

The third section of the program will be devoted to "Church Life" and will be in charge of the members of the Hamilton road W. M. S. This part will include a talk by the pastor, Rev. J. H. G. Galt, on "The Church as a Social Center," and a prayer by the pastor.

After the service, refreshments will be served in the church hall. The day of prayer is a time when the members of the church can unite in prayer for the world, for the church, and for their own souls.

Mrs. Charles Santo was the hostess of a very enjoyable luncheon recently at her home in Byron, entertaining for her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Maitland, formerly Miss Lillian Santo. Little Miss Margaret, a Black and Tan pointer, was the guest of honor. Mrs. Santo and her daughter, Mrs. Maitland, were door attendants. Mrs. H. E. Maitland poured out tea at a prettily-appointed table, while Miss Jane Maitland assisted in the tea room. Mrs. Maitland leaves very soon for her new home in Detroit.

An enjoyable event of yesterday afternoon was the delightfully-arranged gift exchange given by the girls' department of the Lorne avenue school at the Boyle Memorial school. Household science rooms, when the teachers and students were entertained. Under the direction of their teacher, Miss Margaret Langford, the young hostesses served delicious refreshments.

DR. C. J. COPP TO BE HERE TOMORROW

Commissioner Will Make Awards to Candidates in First Aid Work.

In connection with the awarding of certificates and medals to the members of the Lord Kitchener nursing division classes of the St. John ambulance brigade, a splendid program of first aid work and musical numbers has been arranged. Dr. C. J. Copp of Toronto, who is the commissioner for Ontario, will be in the city and will act as chairman. Dr. Copp will also present the certificates and medals.

A demonstration of regulation first aid, including hemorrhages, fractures and wounds, will be given by two teams of the division. These include Mrs. Churcher (captain), Mrs. Mary Routledge, Miss Agnes Clarkson and Miss Letitia Kettle, for the first team, and Mrs. Jean Lawton (captain), Mrs. Mary Sutherland and Mrs. Harris for the second team.

Excellent demonstrations are to be put on by the boys' scouts. There will be four teams, each of which will have its own member acting as the patient. The teams include: John's church, Jack Wiloughby (captain), Bruce Boyd, Gordon Francis, Norman Floyd and Alfred Kemp (patient); No. 2, 7th London troop of Christ church, Owen Patcher (captain), Arnold Patcher, Frank Patcher, Albert Say and Wallace McKie (patient); No. 3, 8th London troop of St. Paul's cathedral, Walter Smithers (captain), Ernest Jones, Dinty Moore and Floyd Jones (patient); No. 4, 3rd London troop of St. David's church, Jim Bailey (captain), Borden Hopper, Joe Holmes, Sydney Lawton and Jack Kerton (patient).

Garde Wigley and his "Moonlight Serenaders" will supply attractive orchestral selections during the evening.

Uncle Wiggily

Uncle Wiggily has just finished making a snow pie in the hollow stump bungalow—a snow pie which the little bunnies were eating. Really it was more like a snow pudding than a snow pie, but to please the old rabbit gentleman we shall call it a pie, as he did.

And just as Weezie was passing her dish for a second helping the door burst open and a roaring voice cried:

"I want some! Oh, I must have some!"

Mr. Longears made a dive under the table and Nurse Jane, Mr. Longears and all the little bunnies scampered away to hide, for they thought the old rabbit gentleman was back.

"Pooh! I guess it was you all the while," said Wiggily.

The roaring voice might be that of the Bob cat, but it wasn't. Instead it was Mr. Whitewash, the jolly old polar bear gentleman. He couldn't help roaring when he talked—all bears either whine, roar or growl, but it doesn't mean anything. And when the little bunnies saw that it was their old friend, Mr. Whitewash, they didn't run away any more.

"Pooh! I guessed it was you all the while," said Uncle Wiggily. His pink nose twinkling a bit faster than usual.

"Then why did you hide under the table?" asked Nurse Jane.

"I wasn't hiding, replied the rabbit gentleman. 'I dropped this and I crawled under the table to get it,' and he held up a small red stick which he had found when he went out in the drift to get the snow to make the pie—or pudding, whichever you like to call it.

"What a funny red stick," growled Mr. Whitewash. "What's it for?"

"I don't know," answered Uncle Wiggily. "And before I try to guess I should like to know why you roared so about wanting some, and saying that you must have some. Gracious! I thought maybe it was the Fox, wanting some of my ears."

"Oh, no," laughed the jolly old bear. "I meant that I wanted some of your snow pie. I was passing your bungalow and smelled it. Please may I have some?"

"Of course you may," answered Nurse Jane, and she gave Mr. Whitewash a large dish of the snow pie which was very sweet. Bears like sweet things, you know.

"Now I can tell you what this red stick is," spoke Uncle Wiggily, who had been looking closely at the queer thing he had found under the snow. "It is a piece of red chalk, or crayon, which the Lady Mouse School Teacher must have dropped before the storm. It's just a stick of red chalk!"

And so it was.

"Let me take it and I will make you a funny picture," said Mr. Whitewash. And then the polar bear gentleman drew many funny pictures on an old toy blackboard which Nurse Jane found a good time watching Mr. Whitewash draw red pictures, and the polar bear even made one of Uncle Wiggily.

Well, then about a week after this, when the snow had all melted and Jack Frost had frozen all the ponds, rivers and lakes with a covering of ice, that Uncle Wiggily received a letter from Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels. "Please come and spend Thanksgiving with us," they wrote.

"Yes, do go," urged Mrs. Longears. "You need a vacation, Uncle Wiggily." So the bunny gentleman started over the fields to the big hollow tree where the Bushytail family lived. He came to the edge of the big pond, on the other side of which the squirrels had their home. But when he tried to cross the ice, Uncle Wiggily slipped, stumbled and fell down so much that he bumped his pink, twinkling nose.

"Oh, how am I ever to get across the ice?" he sadly said. And then he saw a large tin basin on the edge of the frozen pond. "I know what I will do," said the rabbit. "I'll get in that tin basin and make believe it is an ice boat. I will hoist my umbrella for a sail and the wind will blow me across the ice to the squirrels' house."

No sooner said than done. Into the basin jumped the bunny. Up went his umbrella, sail. The wind blew and across the ice he went skimming in his queer tin boat. He was within sight of the other shore and could see the squirrel tree, when all of a sudden a voice from the Bushytail home cried:

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Wonder why they should hurry," thought Uncle Wiggily, and you shall learn about it in the next story—that is if the apple dumpling doesn't stay out so late to the movies that it turns into a huckleberry pie.

WEDDINGS

MAHON-KENNEDY.

A very pretty autumn wedding took place at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Church of the Redeemer, when Miss Lorna Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Kennedy, and Earl Mahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mahon of this city, were united in marriage.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, the Rev. J. H. Galt, was dressed in a white gown with black velvet hat, and carried pink carnations. Mr. Reginald Farnon performed the duties of groomsmen. Miss Mary Jane McCormick made a dainty flower-girl in pink tulle, carrying a basket of pink roses, while Master Peter Rourke was ring-bearer.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Hugh McCormick, aunt of the bride, sang in charming voice. Until, after the ceremony the guests, who included only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, returned to the home of the bride's parents in Partridge street, where a dainty buffet luncheon was served by four girl friends of the bride and groom. Mrs. E. L. Geoghegan and Mrs. A. McCormick were the bridesmaids.

At the evening Mr. and Mrs. Mahon left for their new home in Detroit. For travelling the bride wore a black silk crepe dress with gold trimmings, black velvet hat and Hudson seal wrap.

LIDVAK-PINSKI.

The Horton street synagogue was the scene of a lovely wedding on Sunday evening, when Rabbi Abraham performed the interesting marriage service of the Jewish church for Miss Rose Pinski and Mr. Benjamin Lidvak, both of this city.

The bridal couple were given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. S. Maitland of Ottawa avenue, city, and were attended by Miss Alice Kalmanson and Mr. Edis Gould.

The pretty bride wore a bridal gown of white georgette trimmed with silver and a necklace of pearls. Her flowers were orange blossoms and roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding banquet was served in the reception hall of the synagogue, with Mr. Harry Goldford as master of ceremonies. Mr. Herman Leff sang an appropriate solo, and excellent music was provided by the Normandy Five orchestra, led by Mr. Hyman Ginzberg. Later Mr. and Mrs. Lidvak left for New York and will, on their return, reside on Beaconsfield avenue, this city.

Guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. William Leff, Mrs. B. Lewis and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Weinstein and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. B. David, Mr. and Mrs. S. Lipovitch, Miss Ida Lewis, Mrs. Nathan Leff, Mr. and Mrs. Woodstock, Victor Hart of South Ste. Marie, Herman Leff, Hugh Lewis, Arthur Leff, Samuel Silverstein, the Siskind family, David Langberg, Harry Lewis, Isaac Siskind, and David Brand, all of London.

HOWE-MARTIN.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, November 14, at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. James MacKay officiated at the marriage of Miss Elva Irene Abram, who became the bride of Mr. Arthur Howe, one of London's popular young businessmen.

The bride was charmingly gowned in sand georgette with shoes and hose to match and wore corsage of Ophelia roses. Miss Irene McIntyre, of this city, attended the bride, while Mr. Claude J. Gunther, of Toronto, was the best man.

After a short honeymoon to Port Huron, Detroit and points west, Mr. and Mrs. Gunther will take up residence in this city.

ALL SAINTS LADIES' GUILD GIVING BAZAAR THURSDAY

An interesting event of Thursday will be the bazaar being arranged by the ladies' guild of All Saints' church, for the afternoon and evening of that day.

In the parish hall, where the bazaar is to be held, there will be a number of prettily decorated booths and these will supply a variety of lovely articles. The stalls will be looked after by the women of the church, with Mrs. F. D. Howell as general convenor. The home-cooking will be in charge of the W. A. of the church, while the A. Y. P. A. will look after the refreshments.

Afternoon tea is to be served during the event.
