

BEARS BADLY BITTEN.

YESTERDAY'S TRANSACTIONS ON THE NEW YORK EXCHANGE.

Heavy Suit Against the Northern Pacific.

The case by Tuesday's opening... The suit is to be in the ascendant.

New York, Oct. 24.—The world says:

Among those said to have been squeezed by the unexpected bull movement are Henry N. Smith, for whose account so much Northern Pacific preferred was bought in under the rules on Saturday; C. F. Worcester, A. Cammack and H. Victor Newcomb, all wealthy.

The stock market this afternoon was strong and buoyant.

After 2 p.m. the market was at the top of the day. The Standard Oil stock was particularly prominent.

CONFESSING HER MURDERS.

A Kentucky Girl who Killed Two Men and Allowed Two Others to be Hanged for Her Crime.

FLMINGTON, Ky., Oct. 23.—Last Monday Miller Walker, alias Mary Gaudin, was shot fatally in Johnson county. Last night she made a dying confession, and said she had been a woman of ill-repute since her fifteenth year, when she was led astray by George Radcliffe, who she killed for his perjury and buried his body in a sawdust pile in Red River, Manitoba, who was the suspected of the crime, was captured by the police and lynched in front of the Frenburg jail. Miller's lips were sealed.

ANGLO-AMERICAN.

Statistics Presented to the Episcopal Convention—The Authorized Ceremonies and Ecclesiastical Doctrines.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—This is the nineteenth day of the Episcopal convention. The committee on the state of the church, to whom was referred a resolution concerning a rumor that certain ministers have introduced unauthorized ceremonies, symbolizing erroneous doctrines, reported, Oct. 24.—The large store of S. B. Smith was completely destroyed by fire with a loss of $30,000 yesterday.

REFORM CANDIDATE FOR ALGONA.

ROSEMART, Oct. 24.—Reformers met today to select a candidate for the local house.

CELEBRATING AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The Aldermen today voted in favor of appropriating $20,000 for celebrating the centennial of the anniversary of "evacuation day" in this city.

THE ASSAULT AT ROME.

Canada Represents and a Former Canadian Priest Elected Head of the Order.

A NIGHT IN NEWMARKET.

Mr. Edward Murphy, Fined, Flogged and Fired Out of the Northern Capital of York.

NEWMARKET, Oct. 24.—Last evening a representative gathering of gentlemen from Newmarket were present at a magnificent dinner in the shape of a banquet to Mr. Edward Murphy on the eve of his moving to Toronto, where he is to assume a responsible position in one of the railway companies there.

DR. WILKINSON'S ADDRESS TO THE CONVENTION AT COBURG.

Professor Case on Sunday School Music.—Rev. N. Barwick on "Bricks and Mortar" Criticizing the Bond Street Church.

THE GREAT NATIONAL EQUINE FAIR AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The national horse show has been attended by thousands since it opened. It is a great success. The show is held in the Madison Square Garden.

THE LATEST AND BEST NEWS FOUND IN OUR CANADIAN EXCHANGES.

C. W. Ross, M.P. for Middlesex, is unseated for bribery by agents of the Liberal party. One hundred hands have been discharged from the Hudson cotton factory and seventy-five from St. Anne's.

THE LATEST AND BEST NEWS FOUND IN OUR CANADIAN EXCHANGES.

NEWARK, Oct. 24.—A meeting was held here yesterday, presided over by Warden Jackson, to discuss the question of separation from Toronto. The argument which probably had most weight was contained in the speech of Mr. Wilson Gordon.

THE LATEST AND BEST NEWS FOUND IN OUR CANADIAN EXCHANGES.

NEWARK, Oct. 24.—A meeting was held here yesterday, presided over by Warden Jackson, to discuss the question of separation from Toronto. The argument which probably had most weight was contained in the speech of Mr. Wilson Gordon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

DR. WILKINSON'S ADDRESS TO THE CONVENTION AT COBURG.

MORONEY'S MURDERER IN COURT.

Opening of the York Assizes—The Grand Jury's Verdict.

The criminal assizes of the county of York opened at 1 o'clock yesterday before Judge Galt. The following grand jury were sworn in: B. W. Eddis (foreman); R. C. Bothwell, Wm. A. Brock, Wm. O'Brien, Hugh Clark, Allan Cook, Richard Dill, G. R. Farber, Wm. Forbes, Robert H. G. R. Edwin Hamby, Thomas Lawson, George Pearson, Edward Shuttleworth, R. H. Temple, Wm. Treadway, Thos. Wadsworth and Wm. Watson. Mr. F. Fenton acted as crown prosecutor until Mr. B. M. Britton's arrival from Kingston.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE MEN OF MANY TRADES.

MEETING OF THE ONTARIO MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

The President Speaks on the Tariff Question—The New Officers Elected—Resolution of Confidence.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Manufacturers' and Industrial Association was held at the Rossin house yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. McKeehan of Dundas, president of the association. Mr. A. W. Wright, the secretary, read his annual report, touching legislation, tariff changes and showing the growth of the association. The finances of the association were reported healthy. President McKeehan addressed the meeting briefly on the relative merits of free trade and protection. He said he was glad to be able to testify to the prosperity which manufacturers were enjoying, and to add his endorsement of what the secretary had said of the excellence of the goods which were being produced. The question of whether or not we are to have a reciprocity treaty with the United States was more likely to be a live question here long. For although prior to the adoption of the national policy the Americans cared nothing for such a treaty, having almost free access to our markets, it is quite a change which is noticeable since the adoption of that policy. For one he very much doubts that the advantage of such a treaty for Canada, for it was more than doubtful if its negotiation would not prove fatal to the development of free trade in Canada. The question of whether or not we are to have a reciprocity treaty with the United States was more likely to be a live question here long. For although prior to the adoption of the national policy the Americans cared nothing for such a treaty, having almost free access to our markets, it is quite a change which is noticeable since the adoption of that policy. For one he very much doubts that the advantage of such a treaty for Canada, for it was more than doubtful if its negotiation would not prove fatal to the development of free trade in Canada. The question of whether or not we are to have a reciprocity treaty with the United States was more likely to be a live question here long. For although prior to the adoption of the national policy the Americans cared nothing for such a treaty, having almost free access to our markets, it is quite a change which is noticeable since the adoption of that policy. For one he very much doubts that the advantage of such a treaty for Canada, for it was more than doubtful if its negotiation would not prove fatal to the development of free trade in Canada.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Garlington's Reply to the Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The secretary of war received to-day Lieut. Garlington's answers to the questions asked by General Hazen after the receipt of his official report of his expedition to Smith's sound. Garlington says that he had left only his small stock of provisions at Littleton island, he would have endangered the safety of his men to no purpose. Had he remained a fortnight at Littleton island for the chance of the walrus's arrival his supplies would have been reduced to a dangerously small margin; he did not arrive he would have to commence the retreat during a rapidly closing season with inadequate provisions, and might not have been able to reach the Danish settlements and send home news of the disaster this year.