MISSIONARY LETTERS.

INDIA.

Miss Sinclair and Miss Scott Arrived Safely.

INDORE, CENTRAL INDIA,
Jan. 14th, 1889.

MISS SINCLAIR.—We should have written you immediately upon our arrival at Indore ; but, I think, I left it for Miss Scott to do, and she likewise left it for me, with the result that on mail day there was no letter ready.

On the afternoon of December 31st, our steamer, the Arabia, dropped anchor in Bombay Harbour. From the deck we had watched for the first glimpse of land that would tell us we were nearing the place where the Master had chosen to send us with the "glad tidings of great joy." From the agent who came to meet us, we learned that Miss Rodger had come down from Indore ; and I can assure you we appreciate her kindness in coming so far to bid us welcome to India. After spending a few days in Bombay we came on to Indore, and were kindly received by Miss Beatty and Miss Oliver. At present we are with them, but expect to be in our own bungalow soon. Miss Rodger will go with us to initiate us into the mysteries of housekeeping in India.

We have begun study ; Miss Scott takes Hindi, while I devote myself to Marathi. We do not expect to find the study irksome, for we believe that during this preparation time He can and will satisfy us and make us patient.

I wish I could tell you of the emotions that rise within me as I look upon these people who sit in darkness and know not God. May the time soon come when the knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus shall raise them from the degradation in which they now lie !

We were well cared for every mile of the many which separate India from Canada ; and we could not but feel that it was in
