MISCELLANEOUS.

How to dissuade people from marrying. Send them to the sra side, and they will always hear the mosning of the tied.

A pious young widow in Milwaukee, speaking of a handsome young fellow who lives in her neigh-borhood, says: "I feel set back a year in my religion every time I meet him.

Has it never occurred to us, when surrounded by our sorrows, that they may he sent to us only for our instruction, as we darken the cages of birds when we wish them to sing.

At times it needs only a few cold drops of cold words to make the hot flowing soul, upon the contact of the strange, cold bodies, scatter like molten lead in zigzag globulets.

"Augustus, denr," said she, tenderly pushing him from her as the moonlight flooded the bay window where they were standing, "I think you had better try some other hair dye, your moustache tastes like turpentine."

Julia Ward Howe declares, with considerable feeling, that what married woman would want is, "more rest." Julia Ward Howe is a married woman; and if she'd only take what she wants, we'd all have rest.

A Texas woman is said to have become so skilful in the use of the lasso, that she can stand in the front door and throw it around the neck of the life insurance agent while he is unfastening the gate.

Were it given to our organic eye to see into the minds of others, we should judge a man much more surely from what he dreams than from what he thinks; there is will in the thought, there is more in the dream.

The "boss" grasshopper has been heard from. He took the window-blinds off a poor widow's house in Phelps county; Mo. and then he roosted on the fence and asked her, "Come, now. Are you ever going to bring out that cast-off clothing, or do you want us to starve?"

Detroit boys seem to advance in education whether they attend school or not. A newsboy, who couldn't change a ten cent piece a year ago was recently heard remarking: "William Scott, if was recently neard remarking: "William Scott, if you ever corrugate your brow at me in that way again, I shall temporarily deposit my papers on the pavement, and cause the blood to coagulate your left optic. Hear me William.

A Chicago poet, upon hearing that Nilsson was about to erect a cowshed upon her Peoria lots, has burst forth into the following verse : " Christine. Christine, thy milking do the morn and eve be-tween, and not by the dim religious light of the fitful kerosene; for the cow may plunge, and the lamp explode and the fire-fiend ride the gale, and shrick the knell of the burning town in the glow of the molten pail."

Good humor is the clear blue sky of the soul, on which every star of talent will shine more clearly, and the son of genius encounter no vapors in its passage. It is the most exquisite beauty of a fine face; a redeeming grace in a homely one. It is like green in a landscape, harmonizing every color, mellowing the light, softening the bues of the dark: or like a lute in a full concert of instrumental sounds not at first discovered by the ear, yet filling up the breaks in the concord with its deep melody.

How Hans Got Even .- Once upon a time there lived a jovial Dutchman, whose name was Hans Von Shrimpetifiel, He had a wife. He had a little grocery, where beer and such personal property was sold. He gave credit to a parcel of dry customers, and kept his book with a piece of white chalk, on the head board of the bedstead.

One day Mrs. Shrimpetifiel, during a neat fit, wook upon herself to clean the house and things. So she did, and she cleaned the head-board, and with soap and water settled the old man's accounts by wiping away every chalk mark. Pretty soon, before long, the old vender of things came into the house and saw what ruin his frau had wrought. Then he said : " !" "Mein goot Frau Shrimpetifiel, what for you make a ruined man of me? I guess not? You make wipe away all dem names and figures what I get ready, and I loose more zwie hundred del-

His frau left the room in fear and disgust. When she returned he had recovered the head-hoard with chalk marks. Then she said:

" Hans, you have make them all right, don't well, mein tear frau, I make the figures all right out I put down same petter names as dem ole fel-lers vot you viped out."
