

tion facilities, major critical components thereof or related technology should require consent of the original supplier. The same prior consent would be applied to derived facilities or major critical components thereof and to any heavy water or weapons-usable material.

Canada has followed the NSG guidelines in good faith and they are incorporated in all bilateral agreements that have been concluded to date. The guidelines are in fact a subset of Canadian policy.