The general public, also, who place deposits in the different branches of the bank thruout the country, will find in the report, which is published in detail elsewhere in The World this morning, much information of Canada in particular, and several other countries in general.

Owing to the liness of H. S. Holt, president of the bank, the chair was taken and the annual address presented by E. L. Pease, the vice-president. The annual report of the financial condition of Canada in particular, and several other countries in general.

country. Throughout the year the banks exercised restraint upon their customers, without unduly restricting credits. They did, however, put a ban on real estate speculation, and curbed the extravagance of municipalities. In view of the dearth of capital in Europe, resulting from expenditures for wars and armaments, the Canadian public would be well advised to postpone any new enterprise dependent up-on foreign capital until financial conditions are improved abroad. Pending European Government loans now hang-ing over the foreign markets, and waiting for a favorable opportunity to be floated, we cannot expect to obtain our usual supplies of money from Great Britain.

A Holding Company. After going over the features of the annual report, Mr. Pease announced that the company, to be controlled by the bank, was to take over the bank's real estate holdings.
