

should you do so, I would receive you courteously, and try to render your visit agreeable and comfortable. If we do not meet again in this world we shall in the next, and the sincere prayer of my heart is that you may have, ere this, repented of your cruelties to myself and my unfortunate fellow-slaves, and that you have made your peace with God, so that you can enjoy his presence for ever and ever.

Yours truly,

RICHARD WARREN.
