

the assurance of the heartfelt sympathy felt by every member of the "Diocesan Church Society," for the painful bereavement sustained in the loss of a beloved relative, and their sincere hope that he will be effectually supported by those consolations which the God of all Grace so liberally bestows.

There was very generally expressed by the speakers a sense of deep gratitude to Almighty God for our inestimable religious privileges.

The Archdeacon in his closing address said, that the prospect of obtaining three additional clergymen, should stimulate the members of the Church of England to increased liberality and thereby endeavour to secure a continuance of those spiritual advantages, which, under the Divine blessing, accompany a well supplied and efficient ministry.

The thanks of the Meeting were accorded to the Chief Justice for his kindness in presiding on this occasion, which was gracefully acknowledged by His Honor.

A collection was then made, which proved to be larger than usual, a hymn was sung, and the meeting dismissed with the benediction.
