FINED $60 FOR USING A KNIFE

Sheffield Street Stabbing Case Disposed of in Police Court

George Green, a native of Newfoundland, who was arrested yesterday on charges of cutting Thomas Kelly on the face with a jack-knife and using profane and obscene language on Sheffield street, was before Judge Ritchie this morning, when he was adjudged guilty and fined $60 or four months in jail with hard labor.

Thomas Kelly was called to the stand and swore that as he was passing along Sheffield street yesterday afternoon, he met Green, who, without provocation, used some very bad language and cut him on the head with a jack-knife. Witness struck the defendant and knocked him down and then passed on his way.

James Francis, colored, was also sworn, and told of having trouble with Green, declaring that he saw defendant passing along Sheffield street with a knife in his hand and when he came to the house of an old woman named Celia Grant, who happened to be near the door, he said something about what he would do to anybody who interfered with him, whereupon she showed his hat down over his eyes and then went into the house, slamming the door. Witness also stated that he had heard Green use bad and threatening language.

The prisoner said he came in from Mipec yesterday, and although he had taken no liquor for several years, had several drinks during the afternoon. He had purchased a ticket for Cape Breton, but missed the train. When passing along Sheffield street he was cutting tobacco, when someone struck him, knocking the knife and tobacco out of his hand. He picked up the knife and, without closing it, put it in his pocket, and happened to have it in his hand when he struck Kelly, but did not mean to cut him.

Mrs. Edith J. Fitzgerald and Edward Corbett were fined $8 each for drunkenness and Edward Holt was released on a similar charge.

John W. Hornbrook and John Rose were in court to answer a complaint against them for driving through the public square in action. Both pleaded ignorance of the law, adding that they thought it was allowable for teams to drive through there as they had seen others do so.

Mr. Thompson, the road-master, who was also in court, said he had been told that persons had been trespassing on the square referred to, and had placed a man on the lookout with instructions to report all such parties, as he was to put a stop to such practice.

CIRCUIT COURT

The March Term Opened This Morning—No Criminal Business.

The circuit court opened at the court house at 11 o'clock this morning, Mr. Justice Landry presiding.

After the docket had been made up and arrangements for hearings fixed, adjournment was made till 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

In honor of the anniversary of the grand jury, said that it was always pleasant for a judge in the course of his rounds for the representation of any constituency. He remarked also that several of the jurors were absent. Their attendance at court, he said, was after all a response to the call of their sovereign, and the duty of all good citizens. Even should they know that there would be no criminal business to come before the court, it would be well to attend—as it gave evidence of a healthy state of affairs and of the respectability of the citizenry. He honor expressed gratification at the fact that there was no criminal business to come before the court.

The jury lists are as follows:

- Grand Jury.
Edward A. Smith, Jonas Howe, James G. Carleton, Arthur R. Melrose, John W. Blake, George F. Barnes, J. Newton Harvey, Charles Robinson, Joseph H. Noble, James E. Quinn, James C. ### PLAYING TENNIS IN FEBRUARY

An Interesting Picture Which Comes to the Times From Calgary.

Kenneth R. Schofield, son of John K. Schofield of this city, has sent to the Times a marked copy of the magazine section of the Toronto Globe of February 22, in which there appears a good sized picture, depicting a tennis game on a Calgary lawn on February 11. The picture shows a background the large boarding house known as "The Wigwam," and the tennis players are shown enjoying a game on the lawn in front of the house. There is not a vestige of snow, and from its appearance one would think the view was taken in midsummer, were it not for outside notices on the house indicative of the colder season.

Kenneth Schofield, and also his brother, Aubrey, are located at Calgary, having apartments in "The Wigwam," and both are doing well in the western city. Mr. Schofield has written above the picture "pretty good for the wild west," and it certainly is a rather remarkable picture.
