Walker was the fastest sprinter of his time. He defeated Bobby Kerr, a famous Canadian, and John A. Rector of the University of Virginia, in the final of the 100 meter race at London. CUBS AND INDIANS WANT TOM DALY

Another Controversy Over Former St. John Boy—Patsy Donovan Says He is One of the Cleverest Catchers in the Business

Another controversy has arisen in the major league and Tom Daly, formerly of this city, is again brought into the limelight. The St. Louis Sporting News published on Nov. 1, has the following article: "Cubs and Indians Want Him." "Inspection of the reserve lists filed by clubs of the major leagues reveals that a club in each league lays claim to Catcher Tom Daly and the mix-up gives him the first chance to get into public print, at least as a major leaguer, that he has had all season. Daly figured in a trade between the White Sox and Cleveland that made him an Indian, but he decorated the Cleveland bench until late in the season, when he was sold to Buffalo. He finished the season there and the next news of him was that Buffalo had sold him to the Chicago Cubs. However that may be, his name didn't appear in the published list of purchased players, nor did it appear in the list of players recalled, but there was a Bailey recalled by Cleveland from Buffalo. A little thing like a mistake in the letters of a name doubtless won't interfere with Cleveland's claim, but it would be interesting to know just how Buffalo and Chicago thought they could make a deal for a player belonging to another club. One of Chicago's sportsman's clever ideas for rebuilding his Cubs, perhaps.

"This is not the first time Tom Daly has been the subject of dispute, by the way. The Boston Americans thought they had purchased him once from Lowell, but the validity of the deal was disputed and when Boston withdrew its claim Lowell sold him to the White Sox. Daly was rated a big prospect as a catcher at that time, but Ray Schalk, like Steve O'Neill with the Indians, refused to yield to him. "Tom's greatest claim to fame lies in that home run he made before the King of England when the White Sox and Giants, on their tour of the world, were playing their final game of the trip in London. It was a great battle that game. Each team wanted it, for there was a good deal of rivalry as the tour drew to a close. Recollection is that it went eleven innings and that when Daly broke it up with a homer even King George stood up and cheered just like an ordinary fan in the bleachers. "The Boston Globe in a recent publication had the following to say about the sale of Daly to Chicago. "While the contestants of the world's series for the time overshadowed some of the other players, the friends of Cambridge Tom Daly have reason to rejoice. Fred Mitchell has taken Tom from the Buffalo Club of the International League. Daly, according to Manager Patsy Donovan of the Bisons, is one of the cleverest catchers in the business. He is now going to get a real chance under Mitchell in Chicago. A real chance is something he never had. When with the White Sox in 1914 and 1915 he never had a chance to show what he could do, because the great Ray Schalk was in there almost every day and Tom had to sit on the bench and get rusty. The same condition prevailed after his switch to Cleveland where headliner Steve O'Neill caught practically every day. If all that Patsy Donovan says about Tom Daly is true, the Cubs will have a star behind the bat in 1918.

Mary Pickford In Big Feature "The Little American" Thrilling War Story, Arouses Enthusiasm of the Imperial Audiences. After witnessing The Little American the one improvement that will possibly suggest itself is a change of title. This five-reel photoplay, written by Jeanie Macpherson, staged by Cecil De Mille, and starring Mary Pickford, is so superior in theme and craftsmanship to any of the previous Pickford pictures that it should have been dignified by a title more in keeping with its merits. To begin with, the theme is right up to the minute, the United States and the battlegrounds on French soil being the scenes of action. It is the story of the love of a man for a maid, and no matter how broad the interests involved and how surprising the truth with which the realities of the present world conflict is brought home to the spectator, it is the destiny of this man and this woman that absorbs the attention and places their fate above everything else in the story. Angela Moore, a young American girl living in Washington, is courted by Karl Von Austrein, an attaché of the German legation, and Count Jules de Destin of the French embassy. Angela prefers Karl. At the rumor of war each of the men returns to fight for his native land. Later Angela is sent across the Atlantic to join her great aunt, a French lady of title. The ship is sunk by a submarine, but the girl is saved, and reaches the chateau, only to find it full of wounded French soldiers and her aunt dead. Angela takes charge of the estate and meets the count, who intrusts her with the workings of a secret telephone that may be used to help destroy the chateau by gun fire in case it is taken by the Germans. This happens, and Karl is among the invading forces. He has heard that Angela went down with the ship, and has allowed himself to be influenced by the acts of immorality practiced by his brother officers. When he discovers a young girl trying to hide from the invaders he seizes her in his arms and finds that she is Angela. Horrified at his act, he does his best to save her from the fate that befalls the other women of the chateau. The subsequent action
