Chinese At Oxford Like Baggy Trousers

LONDON, Sept. 17—The Chinese may be backward in government but they are forward in styles.

About fifty Chinese students at Oxford who are vacationing at Hoddesdon have riled the citizens of the latter town by their adoption of baggy Oxford trousers of the very latest type.

So extreme are the styles that the Chinamen are wearing that the residents of Hoddesdon have taken to "guying" the Chinese. The insults are ignored, however, and the Chinese continue their Oxfording in the baggiest of baggy trousers.

Nebraska Corn Husks Forecast Hard Winter

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 17.—It's going to be a hard winter—if the word of the Nebraska corn growers can be taken as authority.

The corn husks this year are thicker than usual, which means a long, winter, according to the proverbs of the great American corn belt.

Another indication, the old timers point out, is the fact that the corn is "making" early this fall.
