

URGES BROAD NATIONAL VIEW FOR CANADIANS

Problems of Each Section Concern Other Parts, Says Judge Macdonald

PACIFIC THE COMING WORLD'S HIGHWAY

Speaker Lauder's Work of Mission in Presenting Maritime Case

That the problems of each particular portion of Canada were the concern of the whole Dominion and that such should be considered from a broad national point of view in order to produce a unity of thought for the common purpose were declarations made by Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald, of the Court of Appeals of British Columbia, in his address on "Problems of the Pacific" before an audience of 150 members of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs at the Admiral Beatty Hotel last evening. He said that the people of the West had been aroused by the address of A. M. Belding, who had been sent through the West last winter by The Telegraph-Journal to plead the cause of the East and the citizens of Canada were beginning to realize that these problems were of national import.

During the luncheon period two musical numbers were carried out. Dr. P. L. Bonnell gave two vocal solos and Mrs. Harold Macdonald entertained with two violin selections and Mrs. F. J. Hodgson acted as accompanist. Among the guests present were Miss Irene Ward, of England, who has been traveling over Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education; Mr. Justice O. S. Crockett, a member of the Canadian Club, Fredericton, and Colonel Sander, who addressed the Canadian Club here several years ago on Indian problems.

INTEREST ON WANE. Before introducing the speaker Mr. Weyman said that it was felt that interest in the Canadian Club seemed to be on the wane throughout Canada and in order that interest might be revived an executive had been appointed with headquarters at Ottawa and a permanent secretary secured for the purpose of assisting the clubs to obtain good speakers. A reciprocal arrangement of speakers between the east and the west was planned, he said, and the first man to be selected under this arrangement was Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald, of the Court of Appeals of British Columbia, a former Attorney-General of that province. This city was the first point in his itinerary.

In opening his address, Judge Macdonald amused his audience by saying that he would try to make his remarks "like a woman's dress; long enough to cover the subject, but short enough to be interesting."

INTERCHANGE OF VIEWS. He said that by an interchange of views the citizens would understand the difficulties and problems of the various sections of the country and thereby promote a feeling of unity. "One of your own citizens, Mr. Belding, aroused the West by his discussion of eastern problems," the speaker declared, and he felt that problems would be given the warmest consideration in the West. In considering their respective difficulties the people should not be narrow as the country was united by sentiment and a common purpose.

PACIFIC MOVEMENTS. Turning to the subject of his address Judge Macdonald drew attention to the movement toward the Pacific as the centre of the world's activities of the future. As the Atlantic had been the highway of world commerce for the past century, so would the Pacific be the highway of the future. He quoted figures to illustrate this point, stating that there were only 19 deep-water lines entering Vancouver in 1914 and in 1922 there were 54. In 1912 there was not a single bushel of wheat shipped from Vancouver and last year there was 54,000,000 bushels, of which 15,000,000 bushels went to the Orient.

To show the enormous possibilities of the western lands, he said there were 48,000,000 acres in Western Canada which were yet uncultivated and the entire wheat crop of the United States in 1923 was produced on 58,000,000 acres.

The population of the lands bordering on the Pacific was 836,000,000 and with the spread of western civilization to these countries they would become great consumers of wheat.

LOOMS LARGE. It was for these reasons that the problems of the Pacific loomed large and were ever uppermost in the minds of the people of the western provinces. In the Pacific the East met the West and the Mongolian race faced the Caucasian race. The Washington Conference had spent practically all of its time in considering the problems of the Pacific and he felt that the press should endeavor to familiarize the people with the shifting of events and the movements of the teeming millions about the shores of the Pacific.

RACE WILL ENDURE. The speaker said that the Anglo-Saxon race was sure to endure and the English language would spread over the world. This fact was recognized by the Japanese who made the study of English compulsory in their higher schools of learning.

He drew a vivid picture of China a century hence. He contended there was an awakening in China; the heaven was working upward and it would not be long before the Chinese institutions were established on a sound basis.

Japan, he said, was the Great Britain of the East, and since her ports had been opened to the rest of the world in 1853, that country had gone ahead very rapidly.

The natural desire of all races was to preserve themselves and the Mongolian and Caucasian should both be

English Baronet Refuses To Pay Father's Debt; Criticized

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Notoriety is making life anything but cheerful to Sir J. Henkle Heaton, an English baronet. But he finds few to sympathize with his grievance against an English weekly that has been telling the story of the debt that the baronet refuses to pay.

STRANDED IN CARLSBAD. The curious tale goes back to the outbreak of war. About 200 British visitors were caught at Carlsbad, the famous resort for invalids, that was then an Austrian town. Most of them were ill and they could not get money from home. Their plight was pitiable. Herr Lederer, a well known Carlsbad banker, came to their rescue. He not only loaned them all the money they needed to get home, but arranged to get them into Switzerland.

One of the beneficiaries was Sir J. Henkle Heaton, father of the present baronet. He borrowed £75 from Herr Lederer, but he was too ill to get home. He died in Switzerland.

After the war ended all the men who owed Lederer repaid him, with but one exception. This was Sir J. Henkle Heaton, who had inherited his father's title and property. Lederer, like all other Austrian bankers, was hard up after the war was over. The £75 meant a good deal to him. He wrote several times to the baronet, but he could not get answers to his letters.

Friends of the older Heaton were outraged by his son's action. They said that the father would have repaid the money that he had borrowed could he afford to part with it.

The story was published in the belief that this would shame the baronet into acting honorably. But he has refused to do anything, and feeling is running so high over the small debt that the other men who borrowed from Lederer's generosity are planning to raise the sum by public subscription.

Even this has not made the baronet write his check for the small amount that his father borrowed. It is such an odd case of meanness that it is raising more talk than any national scandal of the hour.

Roman Smart Set Bid High For Whelp of Famed She Wolf

ROME, Dec. 4.—A wolf whelp from a litter of the Capitoline she-wolf in the city of Rome has become the latest bid of smart society folk here.

A she-wolf is always kept in a cage on the Capitoline Hill in Rome just under the shadow of Michael Angelo's Campidoglio in order to commemorate the fabulous founders of the Eternal City, Romulus and Remus.

This tradition has gone on for centuries now, and when one wolf dies, its place is taken immediately by another. Old fashioned Romans say that if the cage remains without a wolfish occupant, ill fortune will come to Rome. It is the custom of the authorities to

Deaths

Mrs. Mary McGuire. Mrs. Mary McGuire, aged 76 years, widow of Frank McGuire, died on Nov. 23 at the residence, Atlantic Apartments, 635 Graydon Park. She was a native of Saint John, New Brunswick, but had been a resident of Norfolk for fifteen years. Surviving her are one daughter, Miss Florence McGuire, of Norfolk; three sons, W. H. McGuire and Howard McGuire, both of Norfolk, and S. J. McGuire, of Saint John, N. B. Funeral services were held at Sacred Heart Catholic church, Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Stanley Harris Furness. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Furness, 225 Prince street, will sympathize with them in the death of their infant son, Stanley Harris, which occurred on Wednesday evening. The funeral which was private, was held from his parents home yesterday afternoon. Rev. James Dunlop conducted the service.

George H. Sharkey. The sad death of George H. Sharkey, 66, occurred at his home on Nov. 30. Although he had been in poor health for six months the suddenness of his death was a great shock to the family and his many friends. He leaves besides a sorrowing wife, three daughters, Myrtle, of New York City; Rita, and Madelyn, of New York City; four sons, Harold, Douglas, Sarto and Paul, at home; one brother, Nicholas, of Jacksonville.

ON WAY TO ORIENT. Civilization had moved in the course of time from Asia Minor, to Greece, to Rome, and from thence to the continent of Europe to America, and it was now making its way to the Orient. The white race had been the bulwark of all that was best in civilization and it must be maintained, he concluded.

Mrs. FitzRandolph, president of the Women's Canadian Club, expressed the gratitude of the gathering to the speaker, and Colonel Weyman formally tendered Mr. Justice Macdonald the hearty vote of thanks.

Canadian National Railways. He is a speaker at today's meeting of the American Railway Development Association.

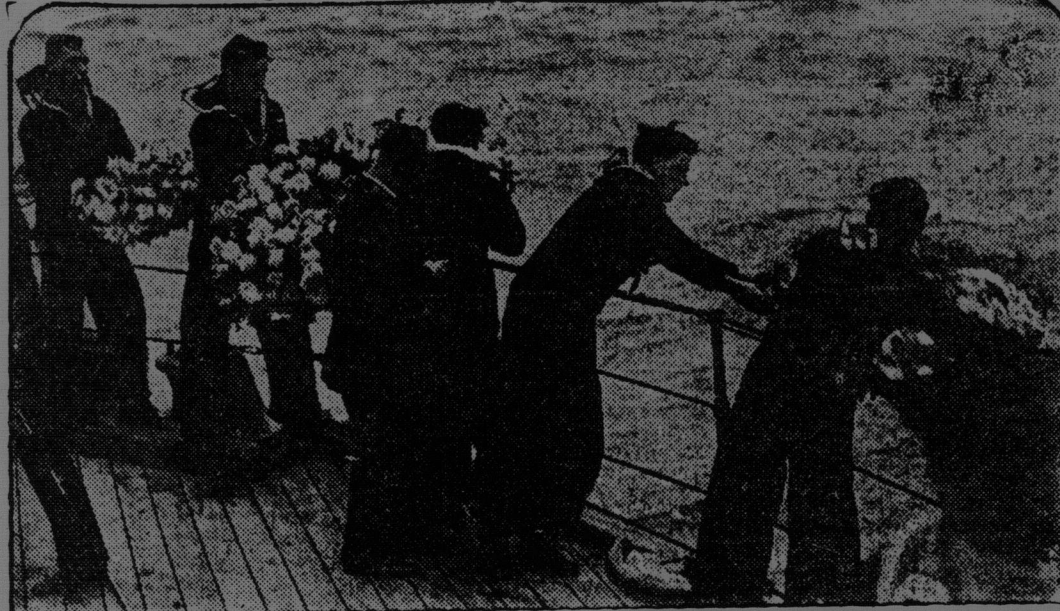

"Ignorance is the cause of much of the trouble in this world, and when it is dispelled there remains scant opportunity for misunderstandings," he said. "The international railways enable men to travel more freely and more frequently and thus become acquainted with the other fellow's point of view."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 4.—Although only primitive methods of cultivation are employed, tobacco production in Brazil has increased the past decade until this country today ranks third or fourth among the tobacco-producing countries of the world.
