MEXICANS ARE AT LEAST POLITE

Mexico City, June 9.—(Associated Press Correspondence)—Courtesy is a common commodity in Mexico. No Mexican is too poor to afford it.

The roughest soldier will not pass one in a narrow corridor without saying "Con permiso," or "pase usted," which are Spanish expressions equivalent to "excuse me." The same phrase is invariably used when one person takes leave of another, to which the answer invariably is "Pase Ud."

Upon giving a new acquaintance one's address, it is customary to say "At number—street is your home (or office)," the implication being that the new friend is to consider one's home his own. Persons introduced to each other, when their respective names are pronounced, say: "Your servant, sir," or "Juan Garcia, for the purpose of serving you, sir."

When taking leave of each other, formal acquaintances who wish to continue relations with each other say: "I remain at (or I offer myself to) your service."

Observance of these forms, which a Mexican rarely disregards, is a valuable aid to a stranger who wishes to establish profitable commercial or pleasant social relations in Mexico.

P. R. FOR MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

(Manchester Guardian.)

In Scotland proportional representation is already at work, with the best results, in the election of school boards—Scotland sticks to her specially elected school boards—and in Ireland it is now the law for all local elections and was carried through with brilliant success at the recent urban elections. It is proposed for parliamentary elections in Ireland by the new home rule bill. If local bodies in England had power to adopt it some of the more progressive, such as Leeds or Bradford or Manchester, would be sure to give it a trial, and once tried it would soon spread. The method of triennial elections is in itself a great improvement on the troublesome and inconsistent annual elections. The whole council would be returned together; the larger issues of policy could be raised in a way not now possible, and at the same time, as all parties would be represented according to their voting strength, there could be no very sudden or complete turnover in the representation, and the more experienced and better-known councillors would be practically certain of election. All success to Lord Parnborough and his bill.

WERE TURKS PRISONERS.

Paris, June 7.—(Associated Press Correspondent)—Mrs. Richard Mansfield, widow of an American actor, and Colin Clements of New York, poet and playwright, have returned to Paris after being held prisoners by the Turkish Nationalists at Urfa, Mesopotamia, for three months. They have been doing relief work among the Armenians for the last year. They escaped to Jerusalem, on the Saphra, and from there were taken to Aleppo by friendly Arabs.

GENERAL OF 94

Says He Has Not an Enemy in the World.

(London Daily Mail.)

"I can remember every incident of the Crimean War, clearly and vividly. I had many interviews with the Duke of Wellington."

These words were spoken yesterday, as though the speaker were talking of a few years ago, by General Sir George Higgenson, who lives in the house at Marlow-on-Thames in which his family have lived since the days of King Henry VIII. It is a wonderful example of the beneficial influence of an open air life. In a large wood-panelled room, hung with many military trophies including bayonets which he picked up on the field of Inkerman, he looked altogether a soldier.

He can read without spectacles, and enjoys exercise. Perhaps the fact that every morning he still practises physical drill may have much to do with his splendid health. Four years ago he wrote "Seventy-one Years of a Soldier's Life." On Saturday he went to an inspection at Wellington College, of which he is a governor, and made a speech.

"The army is my life. For seventy-five years I have been connected with it, and I am deeply interested in it today," he said. "I have seen the Crimea, the Boer War, and this last war. I followed the history of my regiment, the Grenadiers, with great interest, and one great consolation in my life is that they have never forgotten me."

"I can truthfully say that I have not an enemy in the world—and I have had plenty of time to get one."

Is there anything as lovely as Baby after the bath?

PINK and dimply—kicking and "goo-ing" with delight! Free from discomfort—no clothes to restrain or hamper; just cool, soft air—and MENNEN'S.

Of course Baby must have clothes, but there need not be the discomfort that usually goes with them. Little seams and ridges that seem nothing to you are big things to a Baby—they almost tear the delicate skin.

Then involuntary habits make the little legs so sore and red that it is a wonder some babies ever stop crying.

Take care of the seams and ridges, and when your Baby is bathed and sweet and "goo-ing," dust with MENNEN'S—as your mother dusted you—if you're not yet 40 years old (for the first Mennen Talcum was produced that long ago).

That will make for coolness and comfort. "Chaps" and "chafing" will be unknown.
