An Open Letter To Our Customers

We regret that the war has depleted our staff of young men, which has been very much felt in our King street store. This has necessitated our engaging quite a number of young ladies. We, however, were fortunate in securing young ladies who are very anxious to please, therefore, we think you will be perfectly satisfied with our service, which will improve as our sales ladies become acquainted with both our customers and our stock. We bespeak for them your kind consideration during this unavoidable situation. We can assure you we are doing our very best to secure for you the best attention possible, and hope you will appreciate it, our slogan being, as you know, "Service and Quality."

Thanking you in advance for your assistance

Sincerely yours,

when they got out. About midnight the same evening a young actress named Odette Florelle, who was playing at the Little Theatre des Capucines, on the Grand Boulevard, hailed the same cabotake her home and found a large roll of papers lying on the seat. She took them to the lost property office, whence they were recovered by the authorities.

The general was removed from his post in the Madrid embassy and the lieutenant sent back to the army. In view of the high rank of one of the accused, the court was composed entirely of generals. Both officers, who were accused of communicating confidential documents to a third party by negligence, were acquitted. It is significant, however, that the general escaped conviction only by a majority of votes.

General Removed and Lieut.

Paris, May 1—The accidental loss, on Feb. 14 last, of a large bundle of highly confidential documents by two French officers, who were entrusted to bring them to the war office in Paris from Madrid, has led to the appearance of the two officers before a Paris court martial. They are Brig.—General Danvignes, formerly French military attache at Madrid, and his associate there, Lieut. de Levis Mirepoix.

The facts are very simple. The two officers during the course of the evening of their arrival in Paris took a cab and left the precious documents behind them when they got out. About midnight the same evening a young actress named Odette Florelle, who was playing at the course of the Court of the subway will an accent a the confidence of the same evening a young actress named Odette Florelle, who was playing at the course of the continuous collection of mummies, have been stored for the war in a deep uncompleted subway which was being constructed for the use of the post offices along the line of the subway have just raised a protest against the use of the post office authorities when the war began. TOOLS.

The spade, hoe, garden rake, trowel and digging fork are the chief tools needed in gardening. The Dutch hoe, or what is called in the United States, the scuffler hoe, is also used but is not absolutely necessary. Narrow hoes and rakes are best for small gardens. In stiff clays use the hoe after the soil has been dug in order to break the lumps. Then the rake can be used advantageously. Every tool should be ready to use at a moment's notice. Have a place to keep them and when you are through with them see that you put them away in the proper place. Provide a box of soft grease like axle grease for rubbing over the blades of the spade and the hoe, and the working parts of the tools most frequently used. Rust wears out more tools than use and makes work more laboursome. Either a hose or watering can is an essential part of the gardening equipment.

The Food Board, in conjunction with officials of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, proposes to give the amateur gardeners of Canada a daily garden bulletin which will contain some useful hint for them to follow. HEY ARE DYING FOR ENGLAND

(London Daily Chronicle.) The nation's heart goes out to the men acing with wondrous courage the nemy's crashing, scaring shells, the infacing with wondrous courage the enemy's crashing, scaring shells, the insidious gas, and the waves of attacking infantry. To think of these sons and brothers of ours, standing indomitable in the very gates of hell, barring the road to England with a rampant of English dead, makes our sheltered lives seem pitifully mean. Their deeds will never be forgotten. Their story will "the good man teach his son" until the end of time. The nation remembers, too, the mothers and wives and fathers waiting for news in cities and villages, in mansions and peasants' cots. They are paying the bitterest part of the price of freedom. Yet their hearts, with all the apprehension, must be comforted by a deep tearful pride. It is good to know that our men are such splendid men. If death comes to them, it is no mean death, but death for a great purpose—"to the Song on your bugles blown, England."

This is the testimony and admonition of Sir Walter Lawrence, an emissary of the British army, who is now in the United States. His words are recorded here to r mi id the reader to write to his relatives, friends, and acquaintances in the cervice. By the time the letters arrive in France our first hundred thousand will be in the thick of the fighting.
