CELEBRATE DIVORCE

Husband and Wife, About to Part, Give Dinner Party and Ball

Christiana, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Brun, wife of a wholesale merchant, recently obtained a divorce decree against her husband. Neither regarded the severance as a domestic tragedy. During the six years of married life they enjoyed much happiness. They resolved to celebrate the divorce with a dinner and ball, so that all the world might know they parted friends. With this object the divorce celebration was held at the same hotel where six years before, the wedding feast had taken place and every guest who attended the wedding was invited.

Oh, Hen!

The eagle is a noble bird. The nightingale, as we have heard, with song makes glad the nights. The ostrich, with its plumage rare, is welcomed now and then, but none of these you can compare Unto the barnyard hen!

We overlook her worth of yore, But now we realize She should be valued vastly more Than any fowl that flies! We join to praise each egg she lays And hope she'll lay again. She is the idol nowadays, That good old barnyard hen! —Washington "Star"

Dease

"Where is the centre of population around here?" "I don't understand you, mister." "Where is the population densest?" "Dunno what you mean." "I guess the population is densest right here," opined the stranger and he drove on.—Kansas City "Journal."

Failing Sight

It's a serious matter for you to have failing sight. It's a more serious matter if it is the distant vision that is failing.

And the most serious part of this trouble is that it comes on so gradually, that you do not notice it until it has become quite a serious matter.

If you suspect that you are not seeing as well as for merly, or as well as you should, or if it requires more of an effort to see well, then you should have us examine your eyes and tell you just what they need. The sooner you have this attended to the better it will be for your eyes.

GREAT SUM LOST IN WAGES B. STRIKES IN OLD LAND

London, Eng., Feb. 6.—A profit and loss account for the strikes of the last ten years, prepared from the board of trade returns, supplemented by details furnished by trade union leaders in the principal industries, shows that the loss to the organized workers' alone, from stoppages due to disputes of all kinds, has been equal to $174,188 in wages, not to mention thousands spent in strike pay.

Against this net gain in wages resulting from disputes is returned at $2,714,840, leaving a net loss of £14,698,-848.

In the same period the working classes as a whole have secured advances in wages estimated at more than £15,000,000, but the greater proportion of these advances have been obtained through conciliation, machinery and working agreements.

Of every hundred strikes or other disputes recorded in the years under review, 50 per cent. have been won by the employers, 25 per cent. by the workers, and the remaining 25 per cent. compromised.

Willie's Confession. Little Willie had been very naughty, so much so, in fact, that after having reproved him several times, his mother was at last forced to severely punish him. When his father arrived home in the evening, he at once perceived that Willie's eyes were suspiciously red. "What's the matter, sonny?" he cried. "Oh, nothing," responded Willie untruthfully. "Come, don't be frightened," said his father, in coaxing tones. "Tell me all about it; I want to know." Willie remained silent for some time, then he suddenly burst out: "Well, if you must know, I've had a thundering row with your wife."
