A Cardinal Sin.

The waves were fiercer than ever—but, oh, sight of terror! he saw not only waves. There was a devil on each one, riding, dancing, or lying on the crest of it. Large devils on large waves and small devils on small waves, and every one was grinning, mouthing, mocking and stretching out his arms toward him. Their eyes were all like fire, the very hiss of the water was caused by its contact with their burning bodies. As far as he could burning bodies. As far as he could be recognized. Then the land—retained him in its bosom until be recognized. Then the was a gruesome sight and scarcely to be recognized. Then the land—retained him in its bosom until he was a gruesome sight and scarcely to be recognized. Then the lease of the Mary Ann, Gloster pilot-boat No. 13, while scanning the channel for a ship in want of his services, saw not far off two black points rising above the water. So the Mary Ann went about and sailed down to those two black points which rode at some distance from each other, and found they were the heels of a drowned.

But there was something else to come. From the black waves by the side of the ship a thing rose—a ghastly, filthy thing, with long arms or suckers. One by one they came in sight and fastened on the left arms of suckers. The conditional straing him in the face, the bold summoning of Manders into his presence, that he might hear the lie Philip Bourchier had found nerve enough to speak with those lips so soon to be stilled forever, had amply sufficed to sweep away every fear and doubt from Allan's mind. Mander's collapse and abject appearance had well seconded.

'ADVANCE"

TOGETHER AT

One Dollar and Sixty Cents a Year!

I have made the foregoing changes in the business of the ADVANCE TORRYBURN CORNER, WATER ST., CHATHAM The first is because many patrons who have been given credit have abused the privilege to such an extent as to make the business of publishing the paper a non-paying one, and it is necessary, in my own interest and that of those who do pay, that I should no longer continue to furnish the AD JANCE to those non-paying subscribers. The second reason is, that I wish to meet the competition of the city weeklies, which are made up from the type of the dailies and, therefore, cost little for production in comparison with a local paper like the ADVANCE, the type of which must be set up especially

Having published the ADVANCE for sixteen years, and endeavored to make it a creditable representative of Miramichi and North Shore enterprise—a paper which may be taken into any household without fear that it has catered to sensationalism at the sacrifice of that cleanenterprise—a paper which may be taken into any household without fear that it has catered to sensationalism at the sacrifice of that cleanliness of matter, which is too often neglected by the press of the day—
I have reason to hope the foregoing announcement will meet with general approval and be the means of largely increasing the circulation
