The Balloon (Enterprise) Goes Up.
 The great balloon that was to have started last night from New York for Europe did not leave its anchorage. The seams ripped under the pressure of the gas used in inflating it, says one telegram, and it hole in it, says another. This result was not unexpected. It was generally understood that something would happen to prevent the ascent, and cautious journalists refrained from spreading themselves on ballooning in general and this enterprise in particular. So far as has been demonstrated by actual observation the balloon would be as likely to sail westward to the Rocky Mountains as eastward over the Atlantic, although Prof. Wislizenus fondly holds his theory of a steady easterly current at a certain elevation. If the balloon should start at the beginning of a big blow from the west it would undoubtedly be carried safely across the pond in two or three days. "Old Probabilities" should be chosen for starter if a successful passage is the only thing desired. This, however, would not settle the vexed question of the easterly current, and the practicability of other voyages by the same route. It is too bad that so much money has been expended, and so many hopes raised, for nothing, and we hope the balloon will yet be started on its journey. The proprietors of the Daily Graphic have been perfectly sincere, and they will be subjects for commiseration if the men for whom they have expended so much money back out of the enterprise now. It will be strange, indeed, in this year, one and a half century ago if volunteers cannot be found to take the place of any who may back out of the enterprise in consequence of the demonstrated weakness of the balloon. The following dispatch to the Boston Journal, dated New York, Sept. 8th, shows that a hitch somewhere was expected:

There are strange rumors of a bad hitch in the transatlantic balloon enterprise. It is said that Prof. Wise is much dissatisfied with the manner in which the balloon and some apparatus have been constructed. The principal defect of which he complains is the fact that the strips of gauze which form the balloon enter into the seams, and are not sewed together with cotton thread, instead of silk thread, thus increasing the weight of the balloon. It is also said that the balloon is too heavy, and that the ropes are too high winds and rough weather. It is quite certain that Professor Wise has threatened not to go on the proposed trip at all, and some of his friends claim that he has already done so. A gentleman named Ford, who has been reliable on one or two occasions, says he is now undecided as to whether he will go or not. Donaldson, however, said to us that he has no intention of backing out, and he should go up with the balloon, no matter what the course of Wise and Ford may be in the matter. If Wise and Donaldson all go on a trip, a fourth man will still be wanted. This fourth man has not yet been selected, so far as is known to outsiders. This fourth man, it was intended, should be some experienced aviator.

The men who have furnished the capital for the enterprise are not so persistent, and if any one or more of the party who have been announced to go should in the last moment be out, other volunteers will probably be enlisted to accompany Prof. Donaldson. The balloon and apparatus were taken yesterday taken to the Captoline Grounds, Brooklyn, were visited by quite a large number of people to-day, and the deepest interest was manifested. Prof. Wise is not present, but Donaldson is, and he is supporting the final preparations. Donaldson seemed somewhat gloomy and reticent, but in conversation with some persons expressed his firm belief in the success of the enterprise. The balloon was inflated with common air, and the air being pumped in with a steam engine and force pump, in order to test the strength of the balloon. The preliminary and experimental inflation was completed at 9 o'clock, and there were no signs of a breaking or giving away of the fabric. Many of the visitors came from out of town, being anxious to avoid the crowd of Tuesday and Wednesday. A special feature was the presence of a large number of families. These spent hours upon the ground, watching the inflation, and the laying of the gas pipes, and the busy little steam engine with its current of condensed air to be pumped into the huge envelope. Two hundred cubic feet of air was required to inflate the balloon.

The Girl Felony.
 Even the Montreal Witness, which at first halted the publication of the stolen letter with a burst of partisan exultation, has been compelled to come out in denunciation of the felony. It calls attention to the suspicious fact that there was a gathering of the Opposition leaders, as if by previous arrangement, at the post office wicket when the stolen letter was unexpectedly (?) found by Mr. Young in his box. And yet there are partisan organs shameless enough to justify what the paper that gave circulation to the canard about Sir John's suicide has grown ashamed of. The testimony of Hon. John H. Pope, taken at the investigation now progressing at Montreal, shows that it was perfectly understood by Mr. Young that he was not to retain his seat in Parliament and the Inspectorship also; that he had already offered to resign his seat if his re-appointment to the Inspectorship were guaranteed; and that the pretence that a plot to force Mr. Young to resign office was revealed by the letter is wholly false.

It is not necessary for Mr. Perley, the Government engineer, to take formal possession of the Ballast Wharf and Slip, as directed by the Minister of Public Works. The public indignation has been too freely expressed for the Minister to carry out the purpose with which the obstinate whims of his advisers have inspired him. Our representatives in Parliament can't afford to permit the Minister to carry out his purpose. They can't afford not to have influence enough with the Government to prevent the Corporation of St. John being humiliated and the harbor being permanently injured. The outrage must and shall be prevented.

Capt. The night was very dark and gusty at the time with heavy rain. The ship was instantly here to and a search made for the mate, but no trace of him could be found.

Reviews.
 A Constable was in the city yesterday, from King's Co., with warrants for White, D. Miller, and B. N. Philbrick in the Hampton Riot. The men were captured, and it is said by their friends that they have left the city. They are hidden at the houses of friends in town.

A number of gentlemen have chartered the steamer Fawn to convey spectators to the Kennebecasis on the day of the regatta.

A merry party went up the river in a launch, named after the builder's only daughter, on Monday last. The party returned at an early hour this morning.

The athletes beat the Royals at base ball last evening, by a score of 23 to 21.

A telegram received this morning by the Secretary of the Mutual B. C. Club from the Frontiers, of Calais, says they cannot possibly play with the Mutuals on the seventeenth, but on the twenty-fifth.

Carmichael, the marksman shot at the Sussex competition, is improving. Though the ball has not been taken out, he offers a very prospect of the wound healing.

The arrangement for the trains on the Intercolonial, to be run on the day of the Regatta, will be found in our advertising columns.

The Committee of Management of the social entertainment to be held to-morrow evening under the auspices of Freeman's Division, in the Y. M. C. A. Building, have decided, in order to enable their younger friends to attend, to admit all persons under sixteen years of age at half price.

A Bad Sight.
 Last evening, a wretched mother, with an infant on her breast, staggered out Waterloo street in a state of beastly intoxication. The pathetic cries of the infant and the coarse brutal language of the mother attracted general attention. The scene was indeed a sad one—another illustration of how poor, weak humanity may sink under the influence of rum.

Chap. Excursion from Boston.
 The Eastern and Maine Central Railroads have put on sale excursion tickets from Boston to St. John and return at the low price of $12. The tickets are made good to go till Sept. 29th, and return till October 15th, in order to cover the time occupied by the State Fair in Bangor, the Regatta at St. John and the sporting season in Maine and New Brunswick.

A Fatal Leap.
 A beautiful two pound trout, which for five years has been the admiration of the hundreds who daily gaze into Mr. J. Chaloner's window, last night leaped from the fountain and, after a desperate wriggling over the floor, departed this world. Mr. Chaloner mourns after it as for an old friend, and we deeply sympathize with him in his loss.

Coroner's Inquest.
 Yesterday afternoon an inquest was held at the Penitentiary on the body of Thomas Reavis, who died there on Tuesday morning. Very little information was obtained, further than the mere facts of his being taken out there and dying with no one near him. Mr. Quilton, the warden, saw him when he arrived, and noticed that he walked a little lame, but never thought there was anything serious the matter with him. The keeper who received him also noticed that he seemed ill. Faircliff, the head keeper, noticed that he was trembling, and took his description and gave him his prison clothes without requiring him to take the customary bath. The boy also told one of the other keepers that he was surprised, and had been so from the time he was born. This was reported to the head keeper, who, however, took no steps to have an examination. During the night the boy vomited, but no one heard him. The night guard slept in the building, in a room which commands a view of nearly all the cells, but they heard no noise made by the boy. In the morning, when they called him about 6 o'clock, and again at 8 o'clock, he said he was sick, but would be by the guard to be still, and he was reported to the head keeper, who took no steps to find out if there was anything very serious the matter with him. Then the doctor arrived and was taken to his cell the boy was dead. This is the tenor of the evidence yesterday.

There are many cases of the kind sent there from the Police Court, the larger portion of them being sick for a few days after they get there, and it is not surprising that more notice was not taken of Reavis. It seems, however, as if the head keeper did not pay as much attention to the case as he should have done. The inquest will be finished this afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Dead House. The remains of the lad were put in a coffin by two of the convicts, and buried last evening in the prison burying ground. His father and friends left the body with the officers of the prison.

Increased Water Supply—The New Main—Progress of the Pipe-Laying.
 The water supply of St. John and Portland is to be more than doubled in a short time. Our present supply is ample for ordinary purposes and most localities, but the demands of manufacturers and the complaints of dwellers on the elevated portions of the city grow louder and louder. Their voices will soon be hushed, however, as the work of laying the new twenty-four inch main is progressing so rapidly that the Superintendent, Gilbert Murdoch, Esq., confidently expects the work to be completed this season. About three miles of pipe have been laid from Marsh Bridge outward, some of which has been covered in, another mile is ready for pipe-laying, and the rest of the trench is in a forward state. The disbursements of the Commissioners are about $8,000 a week, but they have not had to sell a denature for less than par in order to meet the demand for money. The force on the work numbers nearly three hundred men. The new main is sunk much lower than the old one through the high land of the Cemetery and at the crossing of the Westmoreland road, thus increasing the "average fall" so much that the flow of water will be more rapid than in the old main, and the supply, consequently, much greater. The Tribune reporter, who has been watching the progress of the work in the interests of the public, recently visited the Little River Reservoir and found little to be the order of the day. Stones have been hauled for filling up a channel made by the water flowing over the waste-way, or rolling-dam, during the freshet seasons, and Fred, the man in charge of the Reservoir, thinks that the banks will be soon protected from the action of the current. Groved from the deep cut in the bank of the river, through which the pipes are carried, is being evenly spread over the low ground below the dam, strengthening the works and preventing the formation of an unwholesome swamp. A thorough system of drainage carries off the water that percolates through the dam. Mr. Murdoch intends laying the upper end of the new main lower than the old one—so low that, even though some unlooked for food sweep away, or unanticipated insect undermining, the grass-grown embankment, it will receive a partial supply under any circumstances. The land around the reservoir will, in time, be beautified by tree planting and other work; the road to the city will be made as smooth as an election with only one in the field; and citizens of St. John will proudly conduct strangers to the fountain head of our water supply.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.
 A very interesting meeting was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. building. The lecture room was well filled with young and old men. The meeting was opened by singing, after which Mr. R. B. McBurnie, of New York, made a few remarks. Though no orator—in fact, anything but a fluent speaker—his remarks were listened to attentively by the audience, while he walked round and round the desk in a nervous fidgety way. He spoke of the importance of the Y. M. C. A. work, and the necessity for young men who went to take their place in society to be Christian men—men of high principle and noble purpose. Mr. H. Thane Miller was then introduced, and he immediately commenced to sing a hymn. Then he asked the audience to sing, and they complied, after which he delivered an earnest, practical and forcible address, which was listened to with great attention. He spoke of the progress of the Y. M. C. A., and closed with an earnest appeal to all young men to join the association and aid in the work. Other addresses were delivered and the meeting closed. Mr. Miller speaks this afternoon and evening in the same place.

Something Rotten.
 There must be something rotten in the Denmark of the St. John post office when the Globe and the Tribune of the 3d inst. arrive here on the morning of the 10th—Printer's Comment.

We thought there was something rotten there this morning, when we had to wait until 9.30, fully three hours after the arrival of the night train, for the first batch of papers. If not exactly rotten, something is decayed so that locomotion is difficult and uncertain.

It is not known yet whether Biglin will make a match with Brown of Halifax or not. At latest advices he had not made the necessary deposit. If he does not do as Brown will enter for the single scull race here, and the privilege of a part entry is reserved for him.

Lovett arrived by the Empress last evening and this morning left to take his quarters at McGowan's. His friends speak very confidently of him, and claim that he has never been fairly beaten by Brown. He and his boat were given free passes over the W. & A. Railway, and the Empress by Messrs. Small & Hatheway, an act of courtesy that he fully appreciates, as does all his friends.

Biglin is expected to arrive on Saturday by steamer.

How the Old and Infirm are Supported by "Follow's" Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.
 During the vigor of youth, the expenditure of the power of the mind (which is the seat of man's strength) is balanced by activity of the nutritive functions, without the aid of science.

But time, the everlasting dissipator of reason as of events, sets a limit to his power, and it is in this epoch that the hypophosphites render the man the desired assistance, and restore the drain upon his wasted energies.

Each effort of the mind, every act of the will, will extract a volume of nervous element in proportion to the altitude of the thought or action, and since this Hypophosphite combination really will supply the vis vite to the body, it must support the human mechanism successfully after the vigor of youth is past.

A Cattle Case.
 There is nothing calculated to cause so much disturbance amongst farmers as cattle that will persist in straying where they should not. To-day a case was before the Portland Police court in which John Magee, Esq., is plaintiff, and William Graham is defendant. They both own land on the Marsh Road, and the other day Mr. Magee, when driving out past his farm, saw some cattle in it that should not be there. On inquiry he found they belonged to Mr. Graham, who was standing near by. He asked him to drive them out. Mr. Graham refused, saying that Mr. Magee's fences were not in proper repair. Mr. Magee went to drive them out and Mr. Graham and his son prevented him. Mr. Magee used his whip on the backs of the cattle, and the Graham family headed the cattle off with boards and sticks. The cattle must have been immensely delighted with the sport; but at length Mr. Magee, who is a man ready to violent exercises, got tired, and left the field and the Graham masters of the field. Mr. Graham denies refusing to turn out the cattle, and says he wanted to turn them back into his own field, instead of on to the main road, and says he put the cattle out when Mr. Magee left the case occupied some time this morning. Mr. Magee conducting his own case with great skill. The defence was in the hands of Mr. John Kerr; the case would have been decided against Mr. Graham, but in Mr. Magee's request, it was dismissed on Graham paying cost. The Magistrate cautioned Mr. Graham not to again lay himself liable to a charge of the kind.
