The Russians are successfully continuing their difficult task of clearing the enemy out of the Carpathian passes in order to better make way for the invasion of Hungary.

In the Verdun fighting the French have made an advance between Fleury and Thiaumont.

War correspondents of German papers are commencing to paint in vivid terms the horrors to which the German soldiers are subjected under the "murderous" artillery fire of the British and French. The fact that the despatches have been allowed to be published in all their lurid terms is regarded as an indication that the Berlin authorities desire to have the popular mind prepared for serious reverses.

A despatch from Germany makes the claim that the trading submarine, Deutschland, has safely arrived after a twenty-three days 'rip from the States.
