THE NEWS BOOMERANG.

The News boomerang discharged on Tuesday evening has rebounded upon its author with telling effect. The despatch attempt to create the impression that Mr. Ross is incapacitated on account of ill health has proven the desperate straits in which the disorganized Clarke forces find themselves.

The telegram published in the News which purported to come from a Los Angeles paper is stamped as a fake upon its face. So far away from the truth was the alleged telegram that the name of the hospital in which Mr. Ross has been receiving treatment for his arm was not even given correctly.

The first absolutely reliable information was given in the Nugget last evening and came direct from the management of the Hospital of the Good Shepherd. The facts were brought out in a telegram which came in response to a query wired by this paper and is republished herewith as follows:

"Los Angeles, Nov. 12.—Ross was induced to come to hospital here for special treatment for arm. Been greatly benefited. General health now very good. Effects of previous illness almost completely disappeared. He intends leaving for Victoria en route north in a few days, stopping at San Francisco for brief stay en route.

Signe. "Hospital of Good Shepherd." The language of the message speaks for itself. It is a disinterested, unprejudiced statement of fact given under the seal of a highly reputed medical institution, and couched in terms which place its reliability and authenticity absolutely beyond question.

The cruel and heartless blow which the News sought in its characteristic underhand manner to deliver against Mr. Ross has fallen short of its aim and its only effect has been to confuse and confound the supporters of Joe Clarke.

Mr. Ross is today practically a well man. He has recovered from his first serious illness and was taking treatment in the hospital for a slight touch of rheumatism only.

In spreading a contrary impression the News has acted a most contemptible part and will appear later on one which will react with fatal effect upon the aspirations of the candidate whom it is supporting.

A PARALLEL CASE.

The election in Hawaii resulting in a Republican victory is somewhat akin to the contest now pending in this territory. Hawaii is governed largely by federal legislation and in electing a delegate to congress naturally selected a man who has the ear of the administration.

Had a Democrat been chosen he might have sat with his brethren in the halls of congress until the crack of doom and never caught the speaker's eye.

sound political judgment which will result in material benefit to their community. They are sending a man to Washington who goes as a friend of the administration and who will receive recognition and substantial favors where a man with a club in his hands would be given the cold shoulder.

A parallel case exists in this territory. The electors have the right of sending a man to Ottawa where representation in the hands of the right man will inure greatly to the benefit of the whole district.

If a man like Clarke is commissioned to speak for the Yukon, the result from his tirades of abuse and vituperation will prove nil. He has been rightly termed an unworthy instrument by his own supporters at Ottawa he would have no standing whatever. If Mr. Ross is selected the case will be entirely different. He will be in a position not only to make his demands heard but to have them heeded. When he speaks, he will speak with authority and a listening ear will be given to his demands. His previous efforts on behalf of the territory have been received with favor, and in every reform suggested by him ready assistance has been forthcoming from the government.

The varied wants of the territory will be given prompt attention if Mr. Ross is elected, and as practical men dealing with a practical issue stands the Yukon electorate to give him their support.

TWO MORE DAYS.

Two days remain in which voters will be given an opportunity to present themselves for registration. The enumerators lists will be closed on the 15th inst., and it is the duty of every voter to give personal attention to the matter of having his name properly enrolled on the voters' lists. For the sake of the territory generally, it is desirable that the vote shall be just as large as possible and the larger the number of ballots cast, just so much larger will be the majority for Mr. Ross. If a full vote is polled Mr. Ross will be triumphantly carried to victory.

What will be thought of the Yukon if a man is sent to Ottawa with the following record?

"Deserter from N. W. M. P. Cashiered from Government service. Plucked in examination for the bar."

Every Ross man should consider himself a committee of one to do campaign work for the coming two weeks. A long, strong, and hard pull will do the work and do it effectually.

Clarke's election would give the Yukon a set back from which it would require years to recover.

The Issue

The issue in the pending election on the Canadian side of the national order, is a simple one. It is largely a matter of business. The people of the Yukon have been given the right to send a man to Ottawa as their representative and agent. The question is whether they desire to secure the righting of any wrongs that may have been done and such legislation as will count for the development of the Yukon, or whether they desire some one to go to Ottawa to abuse the administration, for mistakes of the past. There can be but one side to such an issue.

No business man, or laboring man who has a healthy mind, can afford to sacrifice the future of his country in order to gratify a desire for some revenge against the government for some real or fancied grievance. The people of the northern country came here to better their condition. They cannot do that by devoting a future in trying to get even with somebody for mistakes that have worked to their injury. Life is too short for that.

There is no question as to who would make the most efficient representative at Ottawa. The fact is conceded by the most violent supporter of Clarke that he would be impotent at the Dominion capital. Beyond telling the administration what his opinion of it is, and what some of his constituents thought of it, nothing would ever come of his Reparation Demanded. Constantinople, Oct. 27.—Red sea pirates have been raiding the island of Dhalak, in the group belonging to Massowah, capital of the Italian colony of Eritrea. Two Italian gunboats which went in pursuit of them cornered the pirates at the island of Mindia, off the Lohela (Araab) coast which the Italians briskly bombarded. The gunboats afterward proceeded to Hodeida, the most flourishing port of Yemen, and demanded reparation. The Porte has promised the officials of the Italian embassy here to take measures to arrest the culprits. In the meantime the commanders of the Italian gunboats threaten that unless prompt reparation is accorded they will be compelled to take action necessary to obtain it.

Favor Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 22.—Gen. Snyman, late of the Boer army, and Marshal Bond, of New York, who are here investigating the suitability of Mexico for the settlement of Boer colonies, are pleased with the country. They have had an interview with Finance Minister Limantour, and will travel in several states, examining lands. The British subjects residing here have shown generous hospitality to the Boer generals.

FIGHTING TREADGOLD

Suit Over No. 3 Above on Bonanza

Appeal is Being Taken From the Decision of the Gold Commissioner.

Gold Commissioner Senkler yesterday rendered a decision in the application of Reuben Brown and Francis M. Smith against A. N. C. Treadgold for an extension of time in which to perfect an appeal being taken from a former decision of the commissioner in the same case.

Hard Lot of Apiches

Washington, Oct. 22.—The worst drought in the history of northern New Mexico prevailed during the six months ending last July, says the annual report of the agent at Jiricalla, Apachian agency, New Mexico. The crops for 1902 are a total failure. The Indians dug under the rocks for enough water to quench their thirst, and drove their stock for days before finding water for them. Many horses, cattle, sheep and goats, according to the agent, died of hunger and thirst.

"The Indians," he says, "have been drinking water that would kill an ordinary man. In spite of their self-help, there is not enough income to keep the Indians from want."

The remedy advocated by the report is the sale of timber which, it is stated, would soon enable them to support themselves if the proceeds were applied to the purchase of sheep and cattle. If a remedy is not applied, the report suggests, it is likely that the Jiricalla Apiches always will be a burden to the government.

Few Are Held Abroad.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The report of Judson W. Lyons, register of the treasury, for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, was made public today. The most interesting feature of the report is an analysis of the holdings of loans, showing the number of foreign holders of United States bonds. This analysis shows that out of a total of $782,924,330 of bonds, only $16,922,850 is held by foreigners, and of this latter amount $12,578,000 is held by insurance companies and is on deposit with the superintendent of insurance in the various states of the union. These deposits are required, in order that the policyholders in the states wherein the companies do business may be secured from loss. This leaves the individual foreign holders of United States bonds $3,344,850. The bonds most largely held by foreign insurance companies are those of the 4 percent loan of 1905. The insurance companies of England, China, Scotland and Sweden, have on deposit in this country bonds of this loan to the amount of $3,617,000.

Wealthy Syndicate

London, Oct. 6.—The Belfast correspondent of the London Daily Mail reports that inquiries are being made there on behalf of an American syndicate which proposes to erect large mills on the waterside at Belfast, Londonderry, Dublin, Cork, Waterford and Galway. Maize and wheat will be imported in bulk from the United States, and after being milled will be distributed by means of small coasting steamships, also the property of the syndicate, the members of which are said to have behind them a capital of $4,000,000. It is pointed out that the corn duty gives a slight advantage to the home milled article as against imported flour, and that what in bulk can be carried more cheaply than flour in sack. The output of maize and flour is calculated at 20,000 tons weekly.

Fatal Fall

Harrisburg, Oct. 22.—O. B. Fetherhoff and Frank Hirt were killed, and two others seriously injured today in the bridge and construction department of the Pennsylvania Steel Works, at Steelton. The men were painters, and were working on a row of steel girders weighing about ten tons apiece. The girder on which they were working fell with them, and the others piled on top of it.

Five Years for Bribery

St. Louis, Oct. 4.—Robert M. Sydney, banker and promoter, was tonight found guilty of bribery in connection with the passage of the Central Traction bill. Sydney's trial began on Oct. 2. He is the first of the alleged "hoodlums" to be convicted as a result of the sensational revelations in connection with the granting of city franchises. The jury fixed the punishment at five years' imprisonment.

The Ride and the Pretty Girl. He was a young man—a very young man—and, although he had his special shaving outfit at a certain tonorial artist's, the said artist's labors were, as yet, preliminary. He had the appearance of a college freshman, and although he would not weigh over 115 pounds; he had the broad shoulders, hips and patent leather increased feet of a senior of a dozen secret societies.

It was raining slightly one morning recently when he boarded a closed-inward-bound car on Massachusetts avenue, and slumped noisily by the centre to the only vacant seat between a little shop girl and a clean-shaven, dignified-looking man of iron gray hair and irreproachable clothes.

His first act after seating himself was to carefully inspect the bowl of a huge, amber-stemmed, curved pipe; then he blew in it, rapped it vigorously on his open palm, gave a hitch to his baggy trousers and commenced to "size up" his fellow passengers.

About three seats below him, on the opposite side of the car, were two very stylishly gowned girls—one of whom was a remarkably pretty blonde, with large eyes and long lashes.

The young man stared at them for a few minutes, but as neither of them took any notice of him he gazed abstractedly at the car, meanwhile casting furtive glances in their direction. Finally the blonde girl glanced his way with a dazzling smile, but he turned too late to receive it. Nevertheless a warm glow o'erspread him, and he cleared his throat somewhat noisily, and commenced to make eyes.

Again came a smile, this time accompanied by a distinct wink, which he answered with a look that would have lighted a cigarette. The girls were holding a very animated conversation, and he knew that they were discussing him. The blonde dropped her handkerchief and Chappie was just rising to rescue it, when an old lady who was sitting next to them picked it up and returned it.

"Well, what do you think of that?" exclaimed Chappie, as he turned to the dignified man with a look of disgust.

"I did not observe," was the answer.

"Why, I just got that dream across the way where I wanted her, and she dropped her lace rag to give me a chance to 'make good,' when the old hen picks it up, and, bah!"

The dignified one smiled, and the handsome blonde flashed a look of inquiry across the car.

THE MERCHANT AND THE MAN

A small, active and enterprising novelty vender of the itinerant variety was standing near the corner of School and Washington streets the other evening, loudly expatiating on the contents of a sealed envelope which he held in one hand, while with the other he shook a small, gaudy covered pamphlet in the faces of the "rubbering" crowd.

"Get together, gentlemen, get together," he exclaimed, with a Chellean dialect and an expressive sweep of the pamphlet to the gaudy crowd that hovered near.

"Is that all we get?" inquired a tall, lanky chap, with a sleepy face and a moist mustache.

The vendor pretended unconsciousness and the crowd snickered.

"Now, gentlemen, I'm selling you this envelope for a nickel, a half-dime, 5 cents, and I'm giving you this book at the same time. The book is advertising, but to place it in your hands I must sell you this envelope."

"What's the matter with selling the book and giving the envelope away?" queried the lanky chap, clearing his throat noisily.

"What's in the envelope?" asked an interested spectator.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the man of the sleepy face, and the crowd echoed him.

The vendor looked fierce for a moment, and then said: "For the benefit of those who have just arrived, I will open one. And he opened and ordinary Manila pay envelope and took out five plain white cards.

"Hold them up to the light, gentlemen, that's all. That's all."

"And I guess it'll be enough," vouchsafed the lanky chap, with a queer grin.

A smile ran through the crowd while a number loudly laughed at the supposed anger of the little man in the plain suit.

"Gentlemen, these cards are transparencies. One is called 'The Dancer,' another 'The Bathing,' another 'Through the Keyhole,' the fourth one is 'The Vision,' and the title of the fifth one I wouldn't dare to say, but I think you will readily recognize in it the features of the smart aleck who is trying to make a monkey of me and injure my business."

This witty drive at the jalkative man pleased the crowd immensely, and they immediately sided with the vendor, who for a few minutes had quite a brisk trade.

Then the lanky chap spoke: "Cheese it, the cop!"

"Gentlemen, my business is perfectly legitimate. If I wasn't here I would be managing a railroad—or—" "Or in jail," interrupted the tall man with a prolonged groan and a funny cackle of a laugh.

THE MERCHANT AND THE MAN and a patrolman, who was on the outskirts, grinned and quietly disappeared up School street.

"Gentlemen," piped the merchant, as he made a couple of quick sales, "I'm sorry for this unavoidable interruption. This insulting loafer, instead of being at home with his starving wife and children, or trying to earn an honest dollar to keep them from the poorhouse, bums enough drinks to make him foolish, and then treats by trying to take the bread and butter out of my mouth."

"Who's fate?" queried the lanky chap.

"I am!" was the answer.

"Thought yer name was Green?" "You didn't!" said the street vendor fiercely, "do you want to fight?"

"No; but I'll take a chew of tobacco if yer have it handy."

The merchant shook his fist at him, and then turning to the laughing crowd: "As I was saying, gentlemen—"

"Good-by," interrupted the lanky chap, with a horse laugh.

The vendor scowled darkly. "As I was saying, gentlemen, the book is an advertisement, but the envelope—"

"And as the crowd recovered from their fit of laughter, the lanky man had disappeared in the darkness."

But the crowd was a huge one by this time, and in the best of humor, and until the last envelope was disposed of to do else but sell.

An hour later the writer saw the vendor and the lanky chap convivially discussing two large glasses of amber-colored fluid in a north end saloon. Verily, there are tricks to every trade.
