"Peter!" Mrs. Grayson called. "Come in and get your face washed. The min-ister is coming to tea!"

Peter was little. He hated soap and water—and ministers, so he said "Plague take it!" under his breath and came in at a snnil's pace.

"What's be comin' for?" he asked resentfully while his mother poked a wash cloth uncomfortably around in his ear.

"To visit your father and me," Mrs.

International Bible Lesson for To-Morrow-Jesus calms the storm 4, 35-41.

Golden Text—"He maketh the storm a calm so that the waves thereof are still.—Psl. 107, 29.

It will be hard for higher criticism to make this miracle the result of some natural law; no weather probs, then; this is either a miracle or a

What object had our Lord in bringing about the events of our lesson ing about the events of our lesson? Most assuredly to produce faith in His disciples and in us. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me" (as you do in God), "The Master of ocean and earth and skies"; yet how many of us to-day, like these disciples, fear when the lightning flashes and the thunder rolls, and think the Lord is careless of our weffare when He decared. careless of our welfare, when He designs it all for our highest good.

Verses 35 and 36—We are called to follow Jesus over the sea of life to the shore of eternity, we must leave the multitude to do so.

Verses 37 and 38—At our Lord's direction they set sail, to meet on their short voyage an opposing storm. Everyone who keeps company with the Lord Jesus meets the storm of sinful opposition, of foes, sometimes of his own household, but Christ in of his own nousehold, but Christ in us (Christ fellowship) is the hope of glory and the assurance of safety. Verse 39—Jesus is Lord of all ele-ments; His will and word controls and directs them; behold Him as man and directs them; behold Him as man while He sleeps with fatigue, and as God calming wind and wave. He will calm any sin-tossed soul to-day who calls upon Him, for He says, "Come unto me all who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

WHAT SHE COULD DO

The Martha Washington hotel, in New York, has an elevator girl. Her services were volunteered, and were accepted only as an experiment in an emergency. They have proved so satisfactory that a petition will be presented to the managers, requesting them to do away with the elevator boys.

them to do away with the boys.

Yesterday was a busy day at the Martha Washington, and the boy managing the second elevator ran it to the third floor and descrited it at a time when one of the other elevators was out of order. A crowd gathered on the third floor, and there was furious singing of elevator bells. Finally, a neat little maid appeared.

"I'll take you down," she volunteered.

teered. "Oh," exclaimed one of the ladies,

"Oh," exclaimed one of the ladies, "mercy on us!" "Do you know anything about it?"
"I guess I can do anything those boys can do," said the gir!
Several of the women said they were not afraid, and stepped in, and the elevator shot down with a jump. It went so fast that Mary shut off the power with a yank that brought the emergency brakes into play, and the elevator stopped with a terrific jolt half way between the first and second floors,
"It's all right," said Mary, reassuringly. "I just started too sudden and quit too sharp. Now, this time it'll be all right," and it was.

Then, just to show what she could do, Mary ran the car from the top to the bottom of the building twice without letting the passencers out. She ran the car until the boy came back and demanded his job. — New York Sun.

The Magi Waters

Pure merit did it.

Peter started for the stair door, sniffing hungrily as he passed the loaded table. "You can come down and eat your supper when you're ready to say you're sorry for telling such a story, is mother called relentingly. Peter's room was directly over the parlor. When there was talking down below he could hear it distinctly. It was warm weather now, and the stove had been taken down, so that he could see as-well as hear. When the door bell rang he lay flat on his stomach and watched his mother usher the Rev Mr. Phillet into the parlor. "I shall ave to ask you to excuse me." she said, "while I whip some cream for the Peter's mouth watered. Peaches and paipped cream! He didn't know they were to have that. No wonder the min were to have that. No wonder the min-factor looked pleased! He watched him seat himself in the easiest chair in the room; it was directly under the stove-pipe hole. An idea came into Peter's little, closely cropped head—he would fish the tidy from the back of the minister's chair! Tiptoeing over to the dresser, he took a pin from the cushion and bent it into a hook; then he rum maged in his pockets and brought out a glass stopper, a horse chestnut, half a dozen "brownies," the stump of a lead pencil, four corks, a "lucky" stone and a piece of twine. The twine was what he wanted. He fastened one end of it to the bent pin and lay down to fish at his leisure. The hook swung to and fro over the head of the unsuspecting Mr. Phillet. He was a young man, with a "fine head of hair," and the hook lifted a lock of it in passing. He put up his hand and "shooed" at an imaginary fly. Peter giggled so that he missed the tidy, but that wasn't all. The minister heard him and looked up. He smiled, and Peter thought he must always remember to brush his teeth they were so white.

"Come down and see me," he said

just like an everyday man,
"Can't," Peter said,
"Why not?" the minister asked, getting up from his chair. "Have to catch fish for supper?" he said laughingly, with a glance at the book and line.

Peter blushed through his freckles.
"No, sir," he said. "Ma says I can't me down till I say I'm sorry." "Sorry for what, Peter?"

"Sorry I told such a story bout you."
"About me?" the minister said. "Yes, sir. I-I-said you was fond of Mr. Phillet laughed heartily. "That isn't a story," he said. "I am." "That ain't all," Peter confessed. "I said you ate all the chicken you could

Mr. Phillet blushed guiltily. "I'm afraid I am something of a p-i-g when there's chicken before me. Was that all you said, Peter?"

"No, sir. I said"—
"Yes?" the minister prompted him gently. "You said"—
"I said you came here to see Aunt Bertha," he blurted out.

Bertha," he blurted out.

The Rev. Mr. Phillet sat down again in his chair and gasped. "Did your Aunt Bertha hear you say that?" he asked feebly.

"No, sir. Don't you worry, sir. She wa'n't anywhere around."

Mr. Phillet was silent so long that Peter grew uneasy. He cleared his throat in hones that the minister would.

ook up, but he didn't. He sat still, so overy still that Peter imagined all man-ner of dreadful things—probably he was dead or having a fit! That was t—he was having a fit! They threw water on folks when they had fits. Billy Barnes had said so. Peter was thinking seriously of getting his pitch-er and treating Mr. Phillet to share er and treating Mr. Phillet to a shower bath when the doorknob turned, and his Aunt Bertha came into the room. To his delight the minister rose from

"Why, Mr. Phillet," she said, "what s the matter? Your face is so flushed. Have you a fever?"

"No," Peter called down. "I guess it was a fit." Aunt Bertha looked up. "What does the child mean?" she said, turning to the minister "Don't talk to them," Peter shouted,

"They have to be kept quiet. I'll tell you. I said he ate all the chicken he could hold, and he says it's se, and I said he came here to see you, and he says it's a story. He didn't jest say so, but he thinks so, and it give him a fit, Bertha's face was as red as the minister's, "Of course Mr. Phillet de come here to see me, Peter," she said severely. Aunt Bertha had never spoken to him like that before. He shut his eyes to keep the tears back. When he opened them the minister was look-he opened them the minister was too ing up at him.

"Come down here, Peter," he said,
"and change places with your Aunt Bertha. It is she who tells a story. You are truth itself. I do come here to see her, but I've been afraid to say so. Yeu, see, she doesn't care for me at all,

You see, she doesn't care for me at all, Peter."

Then his Aunt Bertha said something very disrespectful, Peter thought, to the minister. She said very low: "Who is telling a story now? It is you who should go upstairs."

But neither of them went up. They moved over into a corner of the room, where Peter couldn't see them at all. And by and by his mother came in and said supper was ready.

Peter began to undress very slowly, for his stomach was empty, and he had almost decided to go down and say that he was sorry, but it was all true. He was putting on his coat again when his mother came into the room. She kissed his freckled little face and said soothingly: "Go down, deaf, and eat your supper now. Aunt Bertha has a big dish of peaches and cream ready for you. The minister has explained everything. He says you did him a great kindness."

Peter wondered what it was.

"That's a pretty noisy passenger you've got in there," remarked the man who was smoking on the front platform. "Is he crazy, or only drunk." "Neither one," said the motor man. "He's just got a flat wheel in his head."

reschological Milk.

A curious fact in the psychology of cows is communicated to the world by the staff of the Technical College, at Chelmsford, England. Cow-study has taught these experts that the cow is full of nervous sensibility and given to likes and dislikes. To a sympathetic milker, who is in harmony with her, she will yield much more milk than to a brutal, stolid, or unsympathetic milker. For instance, one Chelmsford milky mother of herds gave her favorite milker nineteen pounds of milk, while to a less agreeable or, intelligent hand she afforded only fifteen. Our farmers do not give time enough to cowpsychology. The more psychology, the more milk.—Everybody's Magazine.

Birdell, Ont., Feb. 29.—(Special.)— Postmaster Henry Bird of this place is one of those grand old men who carried Britain's flag to victory over the walls of Sebastopol. He tells many interesting tales of those terrible days and also how he escapes the pains and aches brought on by so many days and nights of hardships and exposure.

"I have been troubled for years," he says, "with Kidney Trouble brought on by lying in the trenches in front of Sebastopol where thousands of my brothers in arms lost their lives. But every time I feel my trouble coming on I use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have found them do me good each and every time.

"I never took more than one 'er two boxes at a time and so never gave them a chance to make a complete cure in my case. But when I feel my trouble coming back I shall surely use Dodd's Kidney Pills can do even more than is claimed for I know Dodd's Kidney Pills can do even more them for the same trouble as myself and who are well-people to-day."
