Warren Leland, Manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprise of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of navigation to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Some time ago Mr. Leland had recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.
Some years ago one of Mr. Leland's men labored under a skin disease. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scurfy swelling lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and stinging pains through the lump, made his sleep almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running close to the surface, the effects of high living, salt dishes, and the use of stimulants, were discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. Leland's direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which he used for some time, and the disease was cured, the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

MARBLE HALL, QUEEN ST.

THE WORM WILL TURN.
(From the Detroit Free Press.) We were winding down one of the mountain roads of Tennessee in a car when the driver, a man of about 40 years, the cabin got better than hove, and it was a very good people made a bare living or were content to stay. By and by we came to a turn in the road where there was a rough to water horses, and cabin of a settler. This cabin was the poorest of all and nothing around it indicated that the owner made any attempt to cultivate the soil. We reached the cabin in time to witness a tableau. A woman, poorly dressed, and her face bearing the look of one who had seen much worry and suffering, stood near the trough, and a scotch filled with clothing sat on the ground beside her. Five feet away stood her husband, a burly, tough-looking mountaineer, and he held a switch in his hand. Neither minded us as we drove up, and it was full a minute before the husband said:
"Mary, I'll wallop ye!" he replied.
"Jim, ye can't leave me, now!"
"Jim, I'm giv'ing ye to do it! I've starved an' suffered till I'm clean gone! I'm going home."
"Mary, I've not take ye up that satchel and march in I'll wallop ye good and sound!"
There were two of us besides the driver.
The woman looked up and scanned our faces, as if to judge how far she might count on our help, and the driver said: "Tain't rubable for strangers to mix in, Mary, and Jim's got a knife and would kill somebody better for ye."
"Never!" she cried.
"If ye don't," said the husband as he came a step nearer, "I'll make the fur fly, Take that!"
With a wish he brought the switch down across her shoulders and raised it again. She stood stock still for a minute and looked him in the eye, and then walked into the house.
"Rather poor, but the girl will cure her!" grimed the husband as he drew the switch through his fingers.
His triumph was short lived. In sixty seconds Mary reappeared. She had the mountaineer's heavy rifle in her hands, and as she came out she raised it on a line with the man's head.
"Jim, I want ye to git!"
"Sartin!"
"Shoo! Can't ye do it?"
Click! Click!
"Kill ye like a wolf in yer tracks if ye don't wake up!"
"What?"
"Ye see! Ye see! Go somewhere—keep gone! I don't never come back! Hurry up, fur I'm going down on the stage!" He looked into her eyes and saw the change. Poverty and brutality had come to an end. Love had turned to disgust, and in place of fear was such bravery as he would not have looked for in a man on the road. He saw "shoo!" in her eyes, but he still hesitated.
"Mary, drop that rifle," he whispered.
"Jim, git! If ye are here when I've finished counting twenty I'll kill ye with as sure as there is a God in heaven!" He began backing away. When he had gone twenty feet he turned and walked. When he had gone a hundred feet he halted, wheeled about, and after a long look muttered:
"Wall, by gosh! Mary, let's make up!"
"Keep a-goin' Jim," she replied, as

A LESSON TO LOVERS.
She, with a milk pail on her arm, Turns aside with her young cheeks glowing.
And such down the lane the slow, dull tread Of the drove of cows that are homeward going.
"Don't!" he said. At the sound she turned,
Her blue eyes full of childish wonder.
"My mother is feeble and lame and old—I need a wife at my farmhouse yonder."

"My heart is lonely, my home is drear, I need your presence ever near me;
Will you be my guardian angel, dear, Queen of my household, to guard and cheer me?"
"It hath a pleasant sound," she said;
And never forget that the sweetest face To warm your heart and cheer your home And keep the sunshine ever near it.
But I am only a simple child.
So my mother says in her daily chiding.
And what must a guardian angel do,
When she first begins her work of guiding?"

"Well, first dear Bessie, a smiling face Is better far than the rarest beauty;
And mother, faithful, lame and old,
Will require a daughter's loving duty.
Will you see to her flannels, drape and tea,
And talk with her of lumps and liver,
Give her your cheerful service, dear,
When she first begins her work of guiding?"

"You will see my breakfast is piping hot, Make golden butter and snowy milk;
Will you see to her flannels, drape and tea,
And talk with her of lumps and liver,
Give her your cheerful service, dear,
When she first begins her work of guiding?"

she still covered him with the rifle.
In five minutes he was out of sight up the road. The woman placed the gun and satchel in the cart, walked into the house to be gone two minutes, and when she came back to the cart and took a seat with us, flames were seen creeping through a hundred crevices between the dry logs.
Without a word she climbed in, and only one during the five-mile ride did she utter a word. At a bend in the road she looked back at the pyramid of smoke and flames wrought by her hands, and said, as if to herself:
"Jim didn't know Mary, Jim didn't!"

GEN. GRANT'S OBSEQUES.
MOUNT MCGREGOR, Aug. 4.—At eight o'clock this sun shining brightly, the Grant family in a group and alone took their final farewell of the remains of the dear General. Last night at half-past eight the doors of the Grant cottage were thrown open and a stream of visitors poured in steadily for over an hour—About nine o'clock the head of a long line of vehicles appeared climbing up the steep incline. Soon the area in the vicinity of the cottage garden was thronged with horses and wagons and farmers with their wives and families. At 9.30 the train brought Gen. Hancock and a number of distinguished visitors. At 10 o'clock

THE SERVICES AT THE COTTAGE were held in presence of over a thousand people. The ceremonies opened with the reading of Psalm No. 90, which was followed by an impressive prayer by Rev.
Bishop Harris. The hymn "My Father looks up to Thee" was joined in by the whole assemblage present with fine effect.
Dr. Newman then came forward and delivered his sermon, the family sitting near about the remains in the parlor. At the conclusion of the discourse, the hymn "Nearer my God to Thee" was rendered impressively by the congregation. This service ended with the benediction.
Mrs. Grant concluded not to go with the funeral train and will not probably leave here till Friday. The U. S. Grant Post of Brooklyn here remains from the cottage to the station shortly before one o'clock.

THE MILITARY were drawn up and a salute paid the remains as they passed to the depot. All stood with uncovered heads while the casket was borne to the car. The transfer from the cottage to the train was accomplished without difficulty. At one o'clock the word was given, Engineer Martin shut off steam and the train starting as it did upon a grade slowly started by its own weight and impetus down the mountain. The bluffs and ridges on each side of the track were densely thronged with people. The train started slowly, the mountain was alive with spectators and every vantage occupied; the mountain was hushed and still except for the booming of the guns and bidding farewell. The train passed slowly down the mountain and to the plain beyond. Along the route numbers of people had gathered and they stood with

UNCOVERED HEADS AS THE TRAIN PASSED.
When the spires of Saratoga came into view, the booming cannon planted within half a mile of the village could be heard. This battery was reached and passed, its guns saluting the train on its passage. The last curve was rounded and the train started away parallel with the tracks of the Delaware and Hudson Company, on which, just north of the Mount McGregor depot, the funeral train of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad was waiting. The mountain train drew along side and the remains were lifted silently by the Honor Guard to the car "Woodlawn," which was draped with black and hung with flags.

THE FUNERAL PARTIES were transferred to their respective cars, which were all trimmed with plain black.
The Brooklyn Guard of Honor and six men of the Loyal Legion, and a detail of regiment entered the dead car with two men of the Wheeler Post. Soon after two o'clock the impressive and heavy train moved through the throng and away from Saratoga.

ALBANY, Aug. 4.—When the funeral train reached this city the remains were placed within the mounted catalogue and six black horses with black trappings were hitched to the funeral car, and at the head of each car no leaders were members of the Grand Army of the Republic.
The crowd at all the stoppings was dense—The remains having been deposited in the funeral car it was drawn out into Spencer street, thence accompanied by a large military escort progressed to the Capitol.
There Gen. Hancock dismounted and retired and the remains were deposited behind the great catalogue in the Senate corridor. Before being so placed the body was conveyed to a private room in the Capitol building, where the under-car and embalmers prepared the list of the casket to inspect the body to restore its condition after its journey from the mountain. They found the remains in excellent condition. The public was admitted about five o'clock being permitted to walk two abreast on each side of the casket, which lay on an inclined dais—7,400 persons viewed the remains in the first hour. The remains will lie in state in the Capitol continuously until 10.30 a.m. to-morrow, when the doors will be closed. At 11.30 the funeral procession will be again formed, the remains will be transferred from the catalogue in the Senate corridor, and will be escorted to the Central Railroad Depot. The funeral train will leave the depot here at 12.30 p.m.

SERVICES IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.
LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Grand military service in Westminster Abbey this afternoon was an imposing event added to the history of England.—The edifice was crowded with soldiers and sailors, every member of which was a distinguished person. The order of service was as follows.—1st, Schubert's funeral march; 2nd, funeral procession to the nave of the Cathedral to the choir; 3rd, opening burial services; 4th, 90th Psalm; 5th, the day's lesson; 6th, funeral sermon by Canon Farrar; 7th, Spohr's anthem "Blessed are the Departed"; 8th, Handel's anthem, "His Body is Buried in Peace"; 9th, two concluding prayers; 10th, the burial service; 11th, blessing; 12th, the funeral march to the nave of the Cathedral, and the remains of the General were deposited in the National Crematorium, which was built by the Synod hall for the Irish Protestant Church, has fallen on evil times financially.

Mr. Ross, the distiller, who spent $1-250,000 in restoring Christ's Church theological, Dublin, and built the National Synod hall for the Irish Protestant Church, has fallen on evil times financially.
