TRIAL OF O'DONNELL ferdict of Wilful Murder Returned After Two Hours' Deliberation—Removed by Force from the Dock,

The trial of O'Donnell was commenced on riday before Judge Denman in the Old Bailey. wo sheriffs and several aldermen occupied coupled seats upon the bench. The court-room was crowded, and several ladies were present. All awaited the opening of the trial amid suppressed excitement. All the approaches to the court were thronged. No person was admitted without a ticket. Mr. Chas. Russel, M.P.. Mr. A. M. Sullivan, Solicitor (hyv. and Gen. Roger Progresses). Guy, and Gen. Roger Pryor were present as counsel for O'Donnell, and Sir Henry James, the Attorney-General, and Messrs. Poland and Wright appeared for the Government. Sir Henry James opened for the Government. He described Carey's departure from England and his voyage to Capetown, and said there was no evidence to prove that the prisoner embarked on the steamer Kinfauas. Castle to kill Carey, but the new witness Cubitt would testify that at Capetown he remarked upon receiving it, "171 shoot him." The Attorney-General repeated the details of the murder, and declared that the act was not committed in self-defence, but was a wilful premeditated murder. He enjoined the jury not to allow any feeling against Carey to prejudice them. O'Donnel against Carey to prejudice them. O'Donnell listened closely to the address. He has been allowed to use tobacco, which he chews freely

Parish, the steward of the steamer Melrose Castle, repeated the evidence he gave at the preliminary examination. Two plans of the abin of the Meirose Castle, one prepared by the prosecution, the other by the defence, were shown the witness, who declared the one offered by the defence was incorrect, Judge Denman examined the latter plan and rejected it.

Mr. Russell cross-examined the witness.

He insisted that O'Donnell was sitting down when he fired the shots at Carey, wno stood leaning against the corner of the cabin two yards away. Carey might easily have reached O'Donnell, but he made no gesture to seize him. Witness saw no other pistol than O'Donnell's. He did not see young Carey go to his lather's berth, and only knew by hear-say that his father's pistol was found upon

Mrs. Carey was then sworn. She was dressed in deep mourning, and spoke in a subdued voice. She repeated her testimony given at the preliminary examination, and reiterated that O'Donnell exclaimed he was very brief, and no new evidence was elicited. Marks testified that he was sitting in the hatchway, and saw O'Donnell and Carey below. The former was very quiet, but Carey was talking very excitedly. Soon after this he heard a shot, and saw O'Donneil's hand go down, and then up to fire a second shot. He saw no indications of violence on the part of Carey. There was no pistol in Carey's hand. He heard O'Donnell tell Mrs. Carey he could not help it.

Robert Cubitt—Deposed that he was a passenger on the steamer Kinfauns Castle with Power." He was unaware that "Power"

He was unaware that " Power was Carey until they arrived at Cape Town. He was there shown a supplement of the Freeman's Journal containing a portrait of Carey, and an account of his connection with the Invincibles. He recognised the portrait as that of Power. He showed the portrait to O'Donnell, who remarked, "I'll shoot him." O'Donnell asked for, and witness gave him, the portrait. On cross-examination Cubitt said that when O'Donnell remarked "I'll shoot him." he spoke nell remarked "I'll shoot him" in a pleasant manner, and wit no importance to the remark. EVIDENCE FOR THE DEFENCE. Walter Young, a Port Elizabeth cal fied that he frequently drove the Carey family around Port Elizabeth and they ought to know him. When Mrs. Carey and her son denied it he was panic-stricken. He once said to Tom Carey at Port Elizabeth, "You are a fine fellow; why didn't you shoot O'Donnell when he shot your father?" The son answered, "I had not the revolver. I went to get it, but it was gone, father had it, Vitness mentioned this to other cab drivers. The cross-examination elicited no new facts.

Mr. Russell made an eloquent appeal to the jury for an unprejudiced and calm considera-tion of the case. He spoke for four hours, and was loudly applauded on concluding.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE. Judge Denman then delivered his charge. In reviewing the evidence he said the witnesses agreed with each other that up to the moment of the shooting O'Donnell and Cares eemed friendly. As to-O'Donnell's words t Mrs. Carey, under the circumstances the jury should adopt the version most favourable to the prisoner. It was plain that O'Donneil did not say, "I am sorry, but I had to do it—he attacked me first." The boy Carey, who was a tute, over-sharp, deeply in terested in the result, and likely to stretch the truth, contradicted himself and other witnesses. His statements should be narrowly watched, and were not to be relied upon unless corroborated. The DOUBTS OF THE JURY EXPLAINED. When the jury first repred, at seven o'clock, O'Donnell stood up in the dock to look about with great composure. The jury first return-ed to ask if a man had a deadly weapon in his hand, and another thought that he was about to use it against him and shot the fo mer, would it be manslaughter or murder?

The Judge replied that it would be neither, but he asked where was the evidence of any act done by Carey which induced O'Donne to think that Carey meant to shoot him?
When the jury returned the second time they asked the judge the meaning of "malice aforethought," which the judge carefully explained. The jury again retired, and returned in four minutes, at nine o'clock, with VERDICT OF "WILFUL MURDER." When Judge Denman asked O'Donnell he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be pa sed upon hun, O'Donnell made no reply. The judge then passed sen-tence of death in the usual form.

The prisoner now wanted to speak: the judge, however, ordered his removal. The police seized him, when O'Donnell held up his right hand with his fingers extended an shouted, "Three cheers for old Ireland. Good bye, United States. To hell with the British and the British Crown. It's a plot made up by the Crown."

The prisoner, shouting, cursing, and strug gling, was then forcibly removed by the police amid the most fearful confusion. This action of O'Donnell caused the greatest ex citement and surprise, as he had previously gained the sympathy of the audience by h good behaviour.

It is said that O'Donnell's frenzy at the

Spiritualists in Trouble,

A very interesting case has been decided in the Brooklyn, N.Y., courts. Mr. James claims to be a spiritual medium, and was backed in his pretentions by Mr. Jonathan M. The services at the theatre at Wexford on Sunday night were being conducted by Major Whitle, of Chicago. The mob made a bonfire of all the bibles and hymn books that could be found. One Protestant gentleman was at-tacked and carried down to the harbour, the intention of his assailants being to drown him, but some respectable Catholics interfered. Another Protestant was chased through the streets and finally sought refuge at the police barracks, where he was told the police were unable to protect him. He was seriously wounded. The police were confined to bar-

It is reported that the riot at Wexford was renewed on Monday. The Methodist church, the room of the Christian Association, the County Court-house, and some houses of the Protestant population were again attacked. All was quiet on Tuesday, but police are pat-

Lord Rossmore's commission as justice of the peace in county Monaghan has been sus-pended, owing to his action on the occasion of the Orange and League meetings at Roslea, county Fermanagh, October 16th. The Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal in a letter to Lord Rossmore charged him with and angering the public neares by leading a endangering the public peace by leading a procession of Orangemen in close proximity to a League meeting, despite the remonstrances of the magistrate and the police. The letter is convinced his action at Roslea was the most practical manner of responding to Mr. Gladistone's appeal to the wealthier portion of the Irish people to help themselves.

The Commissioners of the Privy Seal, replying to Lord Rossmore's letter, say they regard his action as utterly subversive of the public peace. Loyal subjects can hold meetings to protest against sedition, but must not provoke collision with their opponents in so doing, and magistrates cannot be allowed to sanction such a course.

The Deputy Grand Master of the English Orangemen has issued an address in connection with Lord Rossmore's case. He says he calinot tamely submit to see his Irish collesgue so treated. He suggests that effective steps be taken to express sympathy with the Orangemen of Monaghan and Fermanagh.

Orange lodges continue to pass resolutions strongly condemning the suspension of Lord Rossmore. Public meetings are to be held in various parts of Ulster, to pass resolutions of a like tenor.

he followed her to her retreat. He was seen skulking about the neighbourhood for several days, his countenance bearing evidence of a renewed debauch. Finally, on the night in question, when Mrs. Clark was alone in the house he cowardly stole within it, and sent a bullet crashing through the brain of his wife. Her brother, who was in the barn-yard, hearing the report of a weapon, hurried into the dwelling and found his sister lying on the floor dead. The appearance of the room and of the body showed that Clark had first assaulted his wife, evidently with a view of choking her to death, and that in the desperate struggle which she had made for her life he had shot her in the back of the head. Failing in this to produce speedy death he completed his deviliah work by cutting her throat, and then fled. The murderer is about 26 years of age, and his wife about two years his junior. They have been married upwards of five years, one child being the fruit of their union. His parents are engaged in agricultural pursuits, and are very respectable people.
