Bismarck's Last Years.

An estimate of Bismarck's closing years that seems well formed is found in the concluding paragraphs of the paper upon the late ex-chancellor of Germany that appears anonymously in the Catholic World. After reviewing in detail the leading events of Bismarck's public and official life, the writer of this paper says that in the days when he was driven from power, and when, for a man who had occupied such prominent positions, dignified retirement was the only fitting condition, we find him publishing state secrets for petty purposes and blasting the nything one-tenth as oriminal as himself. "Indeed," adds this writer, should be said concerning this man, in many respects so great and in many so mean, possessing the vir-The London Daily Chronicle Kharwhile cold and pitiless in carrying that it would be difficult to believe policy did we not know that this policy, had, in his strong, coarse. ypocritical nature, an element of hat strange buffonery, akin to madthe world's great statesmen, as they are called. According to the Obristian Register King Humbert, in the hope of bettering the condition of his realm, is said to be contemplating the re-moval of his court to Turin. If his royal Father had never undertaken to set up his court in the papal city, Italy would have been spared many of the ills she has experienced during the past twenty-eight years.

Well Made Makes Well

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists of today, who have brought to the production of this great medicine the best results of medical research. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, containing just those vegetable ingredients which were seemingly intended by Nature herself for the alleviation of human ills. It purifies and envices the blood, tones the stomach and riches the blood, tones the stomach and digestive organs and creates an appetite digestive organs and creates an appetite; it absolutely cures all acrofula cruptions, boils, pimples, sores, salt rheum, and every form of skin disease; cures liver complaint, kidney troubles, strengthens and builds up the nervous system. It entirely overcomes that tired feeling, giving strength and energy in place of weakness and languor. It wards off malaria, typhoid fever, and by purifying the blood it keeps the whole system healthy.
