SOFIA, Nov. 1.
Details, thus far, of the rout of the immense Turkish Army by the Bulgarians, show that the victorious forces were numerically far inferior. The Turkish Army is reported to have aggregated 200,000 men, inclusive of the garrison which had retreated from the captured Kirk Kilisash, and the main body of the troops which had advanced from Constantinople. In fact the Turkish Army virtually comprised the whole of the Turkish European troops, apart from the garrison of Adrianople, Solonika, Monastir, Janina, Scutari and other strongholds. The great army was under the personal command of Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, who was assisted by some of the most able generals serving in the Army. The fight opened with the discovery by the Turks of a number of Bulgarian cavalry scouts. The Turks drew their outpost. These were followed by lines of Bulgarian skirmishers, who were succeeded by the main Bulgarian Army in fighting formation. The battle, which was destined to last several days, resulting in the defeat of the Turks, was soon in progress all along the line. The Bulgarian troops repeatedly delivered fierce attacks, sometimes at one point, sometimes at another, all along the line extending from Lule Burgas to Serai (about 30 miles east). The Turkish troops offered a stubborn resistance, but were unable to withstand the onslaught of the impetuous Bulgarians. Finally they turned and fled southward in great disorder towards Tchorlu. The losses to the Ottoman Army are reported as enormous in dead, wounded and prisoners, as well as of ammunition and other supplies. The capture of a third Turkish military train near Lule Burgas, before the battle, was an immense advantage to the Bulgarians, as it furnished them with more facilities for transporting their troops and supplies to the scene of action.

The Math publishes an interview with Noradunghian Effendi, Turkish Foreign Minister, who is quoted as saying, "Turkey cannot lay down her arms until she is victorious. However, if Europe intervened, for the purpose of mediation, we are ready, as in the past, to follow the advice of Europe. We cannot forget that we participated in the labours of the Conference at the Hague, and to-day, as yesterday, we shall not disavow a single one of the dispositions adopted at that conference, and to which we placed our signature. M. Poincare will find that Turkey will not stand in the way if he takes up the courageous task of attempting to re-establish peace. To-morrow, as to-day, we shall show the Great Powers of the West, that peace has no supporter more loyal than Turkey."

With a view to deciding the heavyweight championship, Kelly, representing McIntosh, the Australian promoter, has signed a contract with McKillick, manager of Joe Jeannette. The contract calls for the appearance of Jeannette in five contests in Australia, the first to be with Langford and the second with McVey, both of whom are now in Australia. McIntosh agrees to give Jeannette $25,000 with 25 per cent. gate money, and five round trip tickets for himself, manager and partners. They sail from San Francisco at the latter part of November. McIntosh will also give a gold belt, emblematic of the World's heavyweight championship.

Page Croft, Unionist, asked Premier Asquith in the Commons whether the Government has decided upon the manner in which the Overseas Dominions would be represented at London in matter of Imperial defence, and whether Premier Borden would be able to include that information in his forthcoming naval pronouncement. Mr. Asquith replied that no decision had yet been arrived at, but the subject was one of confidential communication between the two governments.

The Turkish cruiser Hamadith discharged nine shells at Cape Mine lighthouse between the Bulgarian ports of Burgas (Bulgarian's principal Black Sea port, about 100 miles north of Lule Burgas, which is an inland town) and Varna. The lighthouse was damaged. The Bulgarian government intends to protest against the bombardment of a building devoted solely to peaceful purposes.

Describing the defeat of the Turks at Kallar, in Macedonia (midway between Monastir and the Grecian boundary, and about 60 miles west of Saloniki), a despatch to the Morning Chronicle says that they left 2,000 dead, while 500 were taken prisoners. Seven guns fell into the hands of the Greeks. The main body of the Greek Army is now marching in force to the attack of Saloniki.
