LONDON, July 6. The Governor, Newfoundland: Admiral Jellicoe's despatch con-cerning the Naval Battle will be published to-morrow, with a letter from the Admiralty, congratulating the officers and men of the Grand Fleet on the first fleet action since the outbreak of the war, resulting in the enemy's withdrawal, severely punished, to his own ports.

After a full description, the despatch states that the enemy losses were as follows:

Two Dreadnought battleships sunk.
One Battleship sunk. One Battle Cruiser sunk. Five Light Cruisers sunk.

Six Torpedo Boat Destroyers sunk. One Submarine sunk. The following were seen to be so severely damaged as to render their reaching port extremely doubtful: One Dreadnought Battleship. One Battle Cruiser

NOW RESTING.

PRESS CAMP, BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 6.
The battalions which have been fighting since the battle began have been relieved from the front line and are in billets in quiet villages or towns free from the sound of shell blasts or the cracking of bullets. Answering questions as to what they wanted most when relieved, they in variably answered in three words "Sleep, wash, shave."
