How the Lutzow Sank

STORY OF JUTLAND BATTLE TOLD BY GERMAN.

The First Description of Admiral Beatty's Victory From the Point of View of the Tons of Salts to Reach English-Speaking Public Comes From The Hague.

Scenes on board the German flagship Lutzow during the Jutland naval battle, when some of the newest and largest of the German battle cruisers were battered or sunk by British ships, are vividly described by P. Krug, one of the Lutzow's survivors, in a pamphlet which has just been published at The Hague. It is believed to be the first detailed story of that great battle, from the point of view of the German sailor, to reach the public eye.

Torpedoed by a British warship early in the engagement, the Lutzow, which was the flagship of Admiral Hipper, was hammered unmercifully by the big guns of the British vessels and soon became a complete wreck, a "ship of the dead," as Krug describes her.

According to his story, twenty-seven German sailors were trapped in the Diesel dynamo room before the battle had been long in progress and remained there when the Lutzow, a disabled hulk, was abandoned and sent to the bottom by a torpedo from a German destroyer. Two of these "prisoners" had been driven into the Diesel room by the ship's pumps.

After describing the first part of the battle and telling how the arrival of British battleships turned the tables on the Germans, Krug writes:

"Suddenly the entire ship is roughly shaken. The colossal heaves far over, and everything that is not fixed is upset. The first direct hit! The torpedo pierces the fore part of the ship. Its effects are terrible. Iron, wood, metal, parts of bodies, smashed ship's implements are all intermixed, and the electric light, by chance spared, continues to shine upon this sight."

"Two decks lower, in the Diesel dynamo room, there is still life. That compartment has not been hit, and 27 men in the pride of life have been spared, but the chamber is shut off from all others, for the water is rushing into all sections. They are doomed to death. Several 38-centimeter shells squarely hit their mark, working terrible havoc. The first hits the wireless department. Of the twelve living men who a moment ago were seated before the apparatus there is nothing more to be seen. Nothing is left but a smoking heap of ruins. The second shot pierces the fore part of the ship. The entire fore part of the vessel as far as the Diesel motor room was past saving.

"Another broadside meant for the Lutzow fell short, but a torpedo boat close by disappeared, leaving only a few odd pieces of wood and a smashed lifeboat drifting round. It is now half-past seven, and the hostile circle grows ever smaller. The Lutzow and the Seydlitz, with their bows deep in the water, both are badly mauled. The fore part of the Lutzow was in flames. Shells burst against the ship's side in rapid succession. A terrible sight is presented on board the Lutzow, and it needs iron nerves and soon became a complete wreck, a "ship of the dead," as Krug describes her.

The Admiral decides to transfer to the Moltke. He gives orders to turn and get away from the scene of the fight, but the Lutzow has not gone a mile before she receives a broadside of 38-centimeter shells. The entire ship was filled with the poisonous fumes of the shells, and anyone who failed to affix his gas mask was doomed to be suffocated.

"It was three-quarters of an hour before the lighting installation was restored. Then for the first time could the extent of the damage wrought by the salvo be seen. One of the shells had landed in the sick bay. Here there were three doctors and fifteen attendants besides 160 to 180 wounded. Of all these only four remained alive. These four were hurled into the next compartment by the air pressure; there they lay unconscious.

"The Lutzow was now a complete wreck. Corpses drifted past. From the bows up to the first 38-centimeter gun-turret the ship lay submerged. The other gun-turrets were completely disabled, with the guns sticking out in all directions. On deck lay the bodies of sailors in their torn uniforms in the midst of the empty shell cases. From the masts fluttered torn flags, twisted signal lines, and pieces of wire of the wireless installation. Had not the look-out man and the three officers on the commander's bridge given signs of life, the Lutzow would have truly resembled a ship of the dead. Below, on the battery deck and in the coal bunkers, there still lay innumerable wounded, but there was no longer a doctor to attend to them.

"Night came on and hope was entertained of getting away without a further encounter. But at 3 o'clock in the night news of the approach of two British cruisers and five destroyers was received, and just at that critical time the fore and middle bulkheads gave way.

"Orders were given to carry quickly the wounded to the stern. Then the order rings out: 'All hands muster in division order abaft.' A tumult arises on the lower deck, for everybody is now bent on saving his life. It is impossible in that short space of time to bring up all the wounded, for they are scattered everywhere. Eighteen men had the good fortune to be carried up, but all the rest who could not walk or crawl had to be left behind.

"The 27 men shut up in the Diesel dynamo chamber had heard the order through the speaking-tube for help, and it was learned that two of their number lay bound because they had become insane. Inspired by their sense of duty, these sealed-up men had continued to carry on their work in order to provide the ship with light.

"The torpedo-boats now quickly took off the crew of the Lutzow, and those left behind were doomed to death. It was resolved that no piece of the vessel should fall into the enemy's hands. An order was given and a torpedo cleft the waters. Just then seven men were to be seen running like madmen round the red deck. Over-fatigued as they were, they had apparently dropped off to sleep and only just awakened. As the torpedo exploded, the Lutzow's bow quickly dipped, and the stern rose until she stood on end. Then she heeled over and sank, forming a great whirlpool that carried everything within it into the depths.

"When the roll was called it appeared that there were 1,003 survivors of the Lutzow; 597 men had perished in the battle."

Peace Offer for Italy Coming.

Games Hoped to Put Her Out of the Game for Good, but Blow was not a Knock-Out.

Rome, Nov. 1.—The new Cabinet of Premier Orlando has not altogether escaped criticism, but few are inclined to worry over the question of the less important portfolios. There is agreement in general with the Orlando Cabinet, the "Cabinet of National Concord." All eyes are turned to the plains of Friuli and Veneto. Yet it is necessary to watch and explain political tendencies, for it is practically certain that a peace offer from Germany and Austria to Italy is a matter of weeks, if not days. It is evident that this tremendous blow was intended to put Italy out of the game for good. There is no questioning the military success of the enemy—so far. Mackensen, if it be he who is directing the offensive, struck Cadorna at his weakest point, and for reasons partly explained and partly unexplained, sent him to the ropes, but the blow was not the knockout intended. Cadorna has slipped away from his weighty adversary and stands on guard—unbeaten though breathing hard. The enemy too has to take breath. It remains to be seen whether he will attempt to push the military decision on the plains or thinks that already he has sufficiently advantageous a position to launch a peace offer.

The invaders still have a few friends in this country. The official Socialist Party caucus has decided that it will not modify its attitude. Meanwhile accounts from all over the country seem to indicate that the answer of the real Italy is clear. Accounts from the front pay remarkable tribute to the splendid work of the army at Carso, which remained unshaken and fusing back the enemy's repeated counter-attacks. When it had to retire it did so in perfect order, bringing all its guns away. It's covering troops did wonderful work. London correspondents emphasize the realization in England that the fate of Europe may perhaps be decided on the plain between the Alps and the Adriatic. The idea of a single front at last has been forced upon us.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

Eat Without Fear of Indigestion or Sour, Acid Stomach

Instant relief! "Pape's Diapepsin" ends your stomach trouble forever.

Wonder what upset your stomach— which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Hymenal.

PICCOLI—COLLINS.

The marriage of A. W. Piccoli, Esq., Manager of the Gorton Pew Company for Newfoundland, and Miss Mamie D. Collins, of this city, took place at St. Thomas's Church last evening, Rev. Dr. Jones officiating. The bride looked charming in a champagne travelling costume and wore a bouquet of lilies. She was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Augustus Osmond and attended by Miss Clarice Piccoli, daughter of the groom, who was supported by his cousin, Mr. Geo. W. Jardine. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome silver service and to the bride a diamond necklace. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Osmond, after which the bride and groom motored to Bay Bulls to spend their honeymoon. To Mr. and Mrs. Piccoli, their many friends extend a very happy voyage over the matrimonial sea.

Mother! Give Child "Syrup of Figs" if Tongue is Coated

If cross, feverish, sick, bilious, clean little liver and bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver, and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Herring Struck in and Disappeared Again.

During the early part of the present week the waters around Harbor Breton and vicinity were teeming with herring. If nets had been on hand when the fishes struck in profitable results would be obtained. Two days later all the herring had disappeared. When the S.S. Fortia, which arrived yesterday, was at Bonny Bay the prospects for a successful herring voyage looked gloomy, as the total catch then was not half as much as it was at that time last season, although preparations of a more elaborate and costly character were made this year.
